REVOLT SWEEPS CYPRUS; BRITISH SPEED TROOPS

Isle Once Sacred to Aphrodite.

LARNAKA, Island of Cyprus, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A strange drama of racial and national passion that reaches back to the heroes of ancient Greece is being enacted tonight here on this little Levantine island once sacred to Aphrodite, goddess of love.

The climax will come tomorrow with the arrival of four British warships from Crete and of airplanes bringing British soldiers from Egypt.

Tonight the island populace hopes to bring about union with Greece, to which Cyprus was bound of old.

Island Under Mob Rule.

Since dusk yesterday most of the island has been in the throes of mob rule which followed upon weeks of resentment against an imperial order to consult imposing a reorganization of the tariff which the legislative council previously had rejected.

Last night, after addressing a large meeting at Nicosia, several members of the council led a mob to the governor's house to present their resignations and to demand union with Greece.

The mob rushed the guard and entered the building, breaking windows and doors. Six automobiles, including the car of the governor and of police, were burned, and finally the building itself was ignited and burned to the ground.

Police Fire Into Crowd.

The police, after seeing several of their fellows injured by thrown stones, fired into the crowd and ten or twelve persons were wounded. The crowd broke into the town and the guards vainly tried to save some of the governor's personal belongings and the valuable government house art treasures. The governor escaped with his staff. His wife and the wives of most of the other officials are abroad.

A detachment of royal Welch fusiliers was dispatched from their summer station on Mount Troodos by motor lorry. It took them until dawn to traverse 50 miles of steep zig-zag roads.

Meanwhile, the spirit of revolt spread to every town and village on the island, including Limassol and Kyrenia. Detachments of fusiliers were sent to Fumagasta, where women and children were evacuated to ships in the harbor. Mobs roamed the streets here and uneasiness was felt regarding the situation at Paphos, where Aphrodite, mythology says, was born of the sea foam.

British Troops Rushed.

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 22.—(AP)—British troops were rushed by sea and air tonight to the ancient Isle of Cyprus to suppress riots and to put down a well advanced movement to link the Cyprus government to Greece.

Two cruisers, the London and the Shropshire, and two destroyers, the Ashanti and the Acasta, with more than 1,000 men and officers, were dispatched from the Mediterranean fleet base on the Isle of Crete after riots at Nicosia, capital of Cyprus.

Fifty soldiers were landed by airplane on the island, and six transport planes went from Ramleh to Port Said, near Alexandria, prepared to take off at dawn tomorrow with additional troops. No machine guns were being taken since there are plenty of Lewis guns on the island.

Troops to Take Trawler.

A company of the King's Rifles was sent to Port Said to proceed by trawler to the island—a place once dedicated to Venus and one of the first regions outside Palestine to receive the Christian gospel.

A fiery cross symbolizing revolt was raised at a mass meeting in Limassol Tuesday by the Greek Orthodox bishop of Larnaka, reported the Limassol correspondent of the Athenian newspaper Kostis. The cross later was carried to other parts of the island, where a spirit of revolt was reported prevalent.

The bishop descended on Limassol, the Kostis's correspondent said, accompanied by other Greeks who had resigned their seats in the legislature. The mayor and leading citizens of the town greeted them at a stadium. There the bishop raised the cross and made a declaration of what he termed the people's refusal to accept the "regime of the British occupation" and their determination to fight for independence and union.

The bishop then led a procession through the streets, shouting anti-British slogans. Church bells rang and there were yells of "up with Greece" far into the night.

The dispatch of war vessels and troops to Cyprus followed upon urgent

CITY'S RELIEF PLAN IS READY FOR GOVERNOR

SALARIES NEARER

Payment of salaries to Chicago school teachers drew a step nearer yesterday when the 1930 tax warrants were declared valid for investment. It now remains to sell them, which will provide nearly $7,000,000 for teachers' pay. (Details on page 10).

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Gov. Emmerson will pump some pep into his revenue commission in Springfield this morning. He is reported as annoyed and embarrassed by its failure so far—after nearly four months of work—to recommend a way out of the financial difficulties of the local governments.

JOSEPH E. BRITTAIN. [Wallinger Photo.]

According to word which Chairman Joseph K. Brittain is said to have passed out to the revenue commission at its meeting in the Union League club last night, the governor desires to call a special session of the legislature for Nov. 2. Earlier in the week the governor was represented as undecided on a special session unless there was united support for the revenue relief program, but he is said to have changed his view.

Task "Practically Finished."

At last night's meeting the statement was given out that the commission "has practically finished its task." A preliminary report on its recommendations was discussed and approved, and this was taken by a subcommittee on a night train to Springfield. Two members of the commission said, however, that several bills have not been drafted and that certain features of some bills have not been finally determined.

Nevertheless the preliminary report will be presented to the governor this morning. It is said he urged action of that character. The governor will then determine when he will call the special session. It was said in Chicago yesterday that he is opposed to making it later than Nov. 9, which would require that the commission wind up its affairs by that date, if it is impracticable to do so before Nov. 2.

Group Goes to Springfield.

Among those who went to Springfield were Chairman Brittain, S. E. Thomason, and George A. Cooke, former justice of the State Supreme court, who has been attending the commission sessions for Samuel Insull. In addition some of the advisers of the commission made the trip. They are Douglas Sutherland, secretary of the Civic federation, who is also secretary of the commission; Harris S. Keeler, operating director of the bureau of public efficiency, and Max Murdock, an attorney.

Before they left these representatives of the commission thought they will be prepared to promise Gov. Emmerson this morning that they will have their final report written by Monday, although all of the bills necessary to carry their program into effect may not be in completed shape.

Plan to Call Meeting.

If Gov. Emmerson is insistent upon calling a special session on Nov. 2, the delegation will promise to summon a meeting of the entire commission for Monday or Tuesday. The commission first consisted of 42 members, but was later increased to about 50. The executive committee headed by Mr. Brittain hopes to obtain approval of the entire program in one session of the full commission. According to that schedule, the program would be given the public—which will foot the taxes under it—next Monday or Tuesday evening.

No authoritative answer has been given to the question most frequently asked, especially by members of the legislature who must vote on the program. This query is:

"Will the plan increase or decrease taxes, and how much?"

It is understood that the preliminary report will be presented to the governor this morning. It is said he urged action of that character. The governor will then determine when he will call the special session. It was said in Chicago yesterday that he is opposed to making it later than Nov. 9, which would require that the commission wind up its affairs by that date, if it is impracticable to do so before Nov. 2.

2 BOYS DIE IN BATH; HEATER USES UP OXYGEN

Two boys, one 14 years old, the other 15, were fatally overcome in a bathroom at 4622 South Whipple street last night when a gas heater consumed all the oxygen in the small room. The victims were Henry Piekut, 14, and Bruno Bradalis, 15, of 4613 South Whipple street. It was in the former's home that the accident occurred.

Earlier the boys and another chum, Harold Gunther, 14 years old, who lives above Henry, busied themselves for an hour shoveling a load of coal into the Piekut home basement. Their task done, they decided to take baths. Harold went to his own home and Bruno accompanied Henry to the latter's. When Bruno and Henry failed to emerge after more than an hour the door was smashed in and they were found dead. Rescue squads worked several hours to revive them, but failed.

Two Boys Shot as They Flee From Police Squad

Chester Fisek, 17 years old, 2239 West 18th street, was shot in the arm, and James Mantton, also 17, of 16 South Damen avenue, was wounded by a bullet in the back early this morning when they fled from police. Sergts. John Sheehan and Herbert Burns of the Lawndale station saw the boys acting suspiciously at 22d street and California avenue, and approached to question them. The youths ran, and when they ignored commands to halt, the police fired.

Webster Springs, W. Va., Oct. 22.—(AP)—County Clerk B. F. Wooddell today traded a marriage license and a 25 cent piece for a basket of wild grapes. Okey Hamrick, 23, of Webster Springs and Evelyn Simmons, 21, of Hacker Valley appeared before Wooddell with the information they desired to marry but had no money. They did, however, have a basket of grapes and after some dickering a trade was made.

Diphtheria Toxoid Urged by U. S. for 1 Year Babies

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—(AP)—A first birthday present for every baby was suggested today by the public health service. It was diphtheria immunization by administration of toxoid. The service pointed out that most cases of diphtheria occur in the age group of less than five years and that children so young cannot be taught personal hygiene as a protective measure.

Police Close Club for Elite on Gold Coast

The ritzy Continental Gold Coast club, 19 East Cedar street, replete with gambling casino and barroom, a gay rendezvous for evening gowned women and appropriately attired escorts, closed its doors early this morning after a brief but glorious existence of three weeks.

Rather, police closed its doors. The padlocking was accomplished politely, in harmony with the exquisite trim of its furnishings and the rhythmic tempo of a 25 piece orchestra. There was nothing of the ordinary raid about the occurrence. In fact, police described their intrusion as a visit. It was none the less effective, however.

Police Learn of Club.

Closing of the Gold Coast club came suddenly. Although the place had been operating for three weeks, police appeared seemingly unaware of it. Yesterday the matter was brought to their attention with the reminder that the four story building which housed the club once was the home of the even gayer Epicure club, run by David Ablin, otherwise known as "Cockeye Mulligan." Then it was learned the club had obtained a charter to operate as a private establishment. Action was awaited. It came early this morning.

Shortly after midnight Sergt. Garrett Fleming of the East Chicago avenue station, accompanied by three stalwarts, rapped at the solid doors of the club. Sergt. Fleming and his men were readily admitted.

Luxury in tapestries and furnishings greeted their eyes and a luxuriously uniformed attendant welcomed them dubiously.

"Best People" There.

"We are officers," introduced the sergeant modestly. His eyes roved. At tables here and there sat couples and on the polished floor glided other couples as the orchestra, playing under an inviting semi-darkness, swung into a waltz. Despite the soft light Sergt. Fleming recognized what he described "as some of the best people in town." After another brief look Sergt. Fleming got down to business.

"This place has to close," announced Sergt. Fleming. "Captain's orders. He doesn't want this place to run in his district."

The manager came up to the officers, and the "captain's orders" were repeated. He produced the state charter, issued to Charles Bowman, as president; John H. Miller, as vice president, and Emory Clark, as treasurer.

Gambling Devices Removed.

"Sorry, but this place has got to close," insisted Sergt. Fleming. By this time several other attaches of the club had gathered around the policemen. Sergt. Fleming took the opportunity to send his men through the place to search for contraband, alcoholic or gambling. None was found, not even charged water, they reported. The absence of gaming paraphernalia was complete, it having been swiftly pushed out of sight.

After further discussion with the detectives, who answered every plea with the ultimatum: "This place has got to close," the officials in charge surrendered. "If the captain doesn't want us to run, of course, we won't."

Owner Shows the Place.

Later interviewers went to the club. One said he was stunned by the magnificence of the interior. Ben Marden, New York night club expert, who is running the Cedar street place, escorted them through the various elegantly furnished floors.

"We have no gambling or drinking here," said Marden.

"I can show my list of members. Their names are in Chicago's 400 set. There are no hoodlums. I don't know Dave Ablin, who is identified as 'Cockeye Mulligan,' and if I saw any cockeyed fellow coming here I'd put him out."

Murderer of Mrs. Lavander Confesses All

A 18 year old boy was in police custody early this morning as a rapist and a murderer. He is Vernon Royals of 5319 Foster avenue, a 6 foot, 170 pound youth.

He confessed late last night that he shot and killed Mrs. Agnes Lavander, 25 years old, in a lonely spot near the Forest Glen station of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad on Feb. 18, 1930. He also admitted the raping last Tuesday night of Mrs. Jane Meyers, 53 years old, of 5245 Ardmore avenue. This recent crime took place less than 300 feet from the scene of the Lavander murder.

Early this morning, Sergt. Tom Harrison and Detectives John Clike and Philip Doherty of the Irving Park station, who solved the cases, took Royals to the scene of his crimes where he reenacted them. They are convinced he told a true story.

How Youth Was Captured.

Royals was arrested after a bit of strategic police work. Following the Meyers rape, Capt. Ira McDowell assigned Clike and Doherty to the investigation. They dressed in shabby clothing and loitered in the neighborhood around the Forest Glen station. Wednesday night they saw the youth. He answered the description given by Mrs. Meyers, and they arrested him.

Last night Royals was taken to the home of Mrs. Meyers, where she is under a physician's care. She identified him. Two hours later he confessed. He was questioned further by Sergt. Harrison and Doherty and Clike about the Lavander murder because both crimes were committed in the same area. Shortly before midnight Royals broke down and admitted slaying Mrs. Lavander.

Tells of Lavander Murder.

"I needed some money," he said, "and was waiting at the railroad station. Mrs. Lavander got off the train alone. I followed her and asked her for a dime. When she opened her purse I saw some bills. Then I drew my gun and ordered her to walk down the tracks. She did for a short distance, and then broke into a run. I caught her and was about to hit her on the head. She lifted her hand and I put the gun against her head and fired. Then I took her purse."

The youth said he fled into the forest preserve and threw the revolver into a creek. The creek will be dragged for the weapon today.

History of Murder.

The murder of Mrs. Lavander threw the northwest side of Chicago into terror. Preceding it had been several other violent crimes against women, and finally a number of independent vigilante groups were formed to patrol the lonely stretches and safeguard not only women and children but men at night.

Prowlers were suspected, and more than a dozen men were arrested for questioning. The nature of the killing led detectives to believe the slayer was a moron. At first it was believed Mrs. Lavander had been raped, but medical examination disclosed she had not been criminally assaulted. The story of young Royals was that after shooting his victim he snatched her purse hastily and ran away. He said the purse contained only $10. This was the amount she was believed to have carried at the time.

Attacks Mrs. Meyers.

The rape of Mrs. Meyers was marked by somewhat similar tactics on the part of Royals as the murder of Mrs. Lavander. He saw Mrs. Meyers picking mushrooms in the field not far from the station.

"There's better mushrooms over there," Royals told her, pointing to the railroad tracks, according to his confession. He volunteered to show her. She started walking toward the place. When they arrived, Royals stuck his hand in his pocket as though he held a revolver, and ordered her into a box car, where he ravished her. Then he fled.

LAVAL IS GIVEN WARM WELCOME AT WHITE HOUSE

Guest of President at State Dinner.

Laval and Hoover

M. Laval is reported to be prepared to reduce France's armament in return for some sort of American pledge to guarantee France's "security," if attacked.

In a speech "to the American people" soon after his arrival in New York, M. Laval said that France "was determined to join its efforts to yours to ward off the dangers that menace our civilization."

Mr. Hoover is said to be firm in his stand against any guarantee of France's "security."

A state dinner was given for M. Laval at the White House, attended by 85 men.

M. Laval's daughter Josette shared honors at New York and Washington with her father. She was guest at a dinner and dance in the evening at the French embassy.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Premier Pierre Laval of France arrived in Washington this afternoon as the nation's guest for conferences with President Hoover on how the two nations may cooperate to benefit the world.

He came from New York, where he landed earlier in the day from his ship, by special train. The train had barely stopped in Washington when he appeared on the rear platform and was formally welcomed by American officials and members of the French embassy.

Goes to Home of Edge.

The premier passed between lines of infantrymen standing at attention, meanwhile smilingly acknowledging tributes from those assembled at the station. He was driven to the home of Walter E. Edge, ambassador to France, which will be his official headquarters.

President Hoover greeted the premier in the blue room of the White House with a cordial handclasp. Later the visiting statesman was a guest at a state dinner at the White House.

Ready for Conferences.

The stage is now set for the conversations between the heads of the French and American governments, which may or may not change the course of history.

Great wariness characterizes the attitude on both sides on the eve of the meeting. That the President has no program, no proposals to submit to M. Laval, is the word that comes from the White House. If M. Laval has proposals the President will discuss them with his visitor with the utmost frankness. But unless M. Laval is prepared to commit himself to radical measures for the salvation of Europe, such as a revision of the Versailles treaty, the conversations, according to the administration view, are not likely to get anywhere.

M. Laval disclaimed any intention of having come to Washington to win President Hoover's approval of any French policy.

Comes for "Tête-à-Tête.

"I have merely come for a tête-à-tête," grinned the swart little farmer of southern France, who will begin matching wits tomorrow with the millionaire cosmopolite of the White House. He was saying this to the American newspaper correspondents who thronged the home of Ambassador Edge, where he received the press on his return from the White House at 6:30 p. m.

"As an outcome of my conversation with Secretary Stimson," he went on, "I feel more confident than I did on landing in New York, although I have always felt that President Hoover and I could do something profitable for our two nations and the rest of the world.

"There never have been conversations just like those President Hoover and I shall have, for we are not approaching them with a protocol agenda, or with definitely drawn plans. We are each informed on matters pertaining to our own countries and the world at large, and by stating our opinions with equal frankness, we should logically make some progress."

At the White House dinner tonight—a dinner of 85 men guests in honor of the British, French, and German emissaries to the Yorktown sesquicentennial—the President and M. Laval had no opportunity to get down to the business that has brought them together.

Not till tomorrow afternoon, when the premier goes to the White House to be the guest of President and Mrs. Hoover until Saturday noon, will the negotiations begin. They will be continued Saturday and Sunday with the scene of them transferred to Woodley, the estate of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, and at the conclusion either of the White House or Woodley conferences a joint statement of what they have accomplished will be issued by Mr. Hoover and M. Laval.

According to one official who has participated in conferences with the President in preparation for this meeting of the heads of the two governments, the conversation will produce a showdown of the attitude of France toward revision of the Versailles treaty, reduction of German reparations, and reduction of armament.

Concessions to Be Sought.

The President, according to this authority, is not prepared to make concessions with respect to reduction of war debts unless France is ready to embrace measures for a radical reorganization of Europe and the reduction of the staggering burdens imposed by the Versailles treaty.

The approach of the President to the problems to be considered begins and ends with his conviction that the depression in this country has been caused by the deflation of Europe.

But Europe, in his opinion, can be put on its feet only by radical measures none of which can be adopted without the consent of France. Financially and economically France is now the strongest nation in Europe. With its alliances and its military resources France dominates Europe. Thus Mr. Hoover arrives at the conclusion that it is up to France to save Europe.

The President is represented as entertaining some exceedingly strong convictions on the fundamental ailment of Europe. The Versailles treaty which dismembered Germany and imposed upon it a crushing burden of reparations payments is at the bottom of the trouble, in his opinion. Not until it is revised and its hampering political and economic restrictions removed can there be any hope of the permanent rehabilitation of Europe.

Polish Corridor Cited.

The Polish corridor is instanced as among the tragic mistakes which Mr. Hoover believes the framers of the Versailles treaty made. The Polish corridor divides German territory, hampers economic development of Germany and constitutes an endless source of conflict between Germany and Poland. To undo what was done in the creation of the Polish corridor Mr. Hoover regards imperative.

Likewise, he is convinced that there can be no complete economic rehabilitation of Germany until the multitude of restrictions imposed upon the vanquished nation by the Versailles treaty are removed.

So far there has been no intimation in any quarter that M. Laval has come to Washington with any notion of suggesting or consenting to a revision of the Versailles treaty. Therefore, unless either Mr. Hoover or M. Laval does a good deal of yielding in the course of the conversations they will find themselves too far apart to get together on anything.

Security Pact Opposed.

According to the administration there is not the slightest danger of the President giving M. Laval any reason to believe that the United States would enter into a security pact with France and other powers for the implementation of the Kellogg-Briand anti-war treaty. M. Laval has been saying that France could not afford to reduce armaments unless America joined in a compact to use its armed forces in common resistance to an aggressor nation violating the pact of Paris.

On the question of a consultative pact there is less assurance on the part of the administration. In default of a security pact M. Laval would like to get America into a consultative pact which would commit this country to consult with other powers on measures to be employed against an aggressor in the event of a violation of the Kellogg-Briand pact.

On this point Mr. Hoover will endeavor to persuade M. Laval that France should be satisfied with the consultative policy which has been inaugurated by the administration in the Sino-Japanese imbroglio.

On the question of disarmament the President is represented as pessimistic. He is said to entertain little hope that anything will come of the league's disarmament conference which is to meet at Geneva next February. He thinks that as a result of the outbreak of hostilities in Manchuria not only Japan but other powers will refuse to accept any material reduction of military forces.

TOP HATS BLOOM AS LAVAL LANDS ON VISIT TO U. S.

Welcome French Premier at New York.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Pierre Laval, sturdy, sober faced, dark skinned little Frenchman of peasant stock, who rose to become premier of France, came to America today to exchange ideas on world amity with President Hoover. He arrived on the Ile de France with a staff of financial and armament technicians, bade the great steamship await his return, stopped to speak briefly at the city hall, and escorted by Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state, hurried on to Washington for a 72 hour visit.

The French premier, in his brief pause here, pleaded in a set speech that France and the United States, together "in a world torn with doubt" should "search for and apply methods which will restore calm and reëstablish equilibrium."

Field Day for Top Hats.

M. Laval is a short, solid man of 48, with black hair streaked with gray and a stubby, dark mustache. He wore a black overcoat over formal morning clothes, patent leather shoes with black cloth tops, and held his gleaming silk hat in his hands most of the time. His necktie was the famous white one he wears as a reminder of the days when he owned only one and had to wash it.

Despite the customary early morning sobriety of the city, crowds gave the president of the council of ministers of France a warm, though somewhat awed, reception. The arrival of M. Laval marked the first fall social and diplomatic get-together and official New York and its Washington visitors made the most of it. Silk toppers of every period in recent American history reflected the early morning sunbeams in Battery park and cutaway coats and pin-striped trousers of vintage as old as France's wines or as new as our own bootleg liquor dotted the crowded decks of the welcoming ship Macom.

Stimson Waits on Pier.

Secretary Stimson, who came from Washington as President Hoover's representative to welcome M. Laval to American shores, did not venture down the bay in the cold dawn, but remained in his hotel until half an hour before the Macom landed at the Battery. He and numerous other late sleeping, formally garbed dignitaries stationed themselves on the pier to await the arrival of the distinguished visitor.

Mr. Stimson was easy to recognize in the crowd. His carefully ironed top hat sat on his head a trifle more correctly than the chapeaux of his neighbors; it captured the sun's rays and returned them as a proper silk hat should.

Beneath a black, silk lapeled topcoat of the fly-front style, Mr. Stimson wore a snug fitting cutaway morning coat and dark gray trousers, so faintly pin striped that a few feet away the design was almost invisible. His shoes were black kid, bore a dull polish and were of moderately blunt pattern. The secretary did not wear spats, although spats were quite the mode later in the morning at the city hall. There was no handkerchief peeping from the Stimson pocket, but a piping of white bordered his dark vest.

Mr. Stimson wore a stiff white turnover collar with slightly curving points and a dark colored necktie flecked with white. The knot of his four-in-hand tie was somewhat larger than the once-around-and-draw-knot worn by Mayor Walker.

Wears Cane but No Decorations.

A thin watch chain was draped across Mr. Stimson's vest, but, unlike so many others present, Mr. Stimson had no aldermanic pouch to support it. He is a comparatively thin man. The secretary wore no ribbons nor decorations. A plain gold ring on the third finger of his left hand was his only jewelry. He did not wear gloves at any time today. A yellow cane with a plain carved handle ringed by a conservative silver band hung from the crook of his arm.

M. Laval came down the gangplank with his bone handled snakewood cane at salute and gave himself into the hands of Mr. Stimson. He was preceded by Mlle. Josette Laval, his dark, rather striking daughter, who accompanied him on his voyage.

On the way down the bay M. Laval parried every important question asked him by French speaking New York reporters. His English, he said, was negligible. On delicate points, he maintained a stern silence. The premier smoked one American cigaret after another, but insisted stoutly that he always smoked French tobacco at home.

Courteous but uncommunicative M. Laval was rescued from the mob of reporters and surrendered to the photographers, who made a field day of the occasion. The premier probably will be hoarse tomorrow, for he stood with his head bared on the deck of the Macom for almost an hour.

The official party arriving on the Ile de France included:

Prof. Charles Rist, Bank of France; Albert Buisson of the Tribunal of Commerce, Joan Jacques Bizot, assistant director of the treasury; Jacques Rueff, financial attaché; Andre Boissard of M. Laval's personal staff, Louis Aubert, armament specialist; Commandant Dupre, armament specialist; Theodore Marriner, counselor of the United States embassy at Paris, and Robert Thompson Pell, secretary to Ambassador Edge.

The importance of the visit led to special police precautions. There were secret service men aboard the Macon, on the pier and all along the line of march.

LAVAL'S SPEECH IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 22.—(AP)—In opening his speech at the city hall here today M. Laval complimented Mayor Walker on New York's greatness, referred to the "common past" that bound France and the United States together, and then went on in animated French:

"France was deeply touched when President Hoover invited me to visit him. She realised that this gesture was not alone the expression of an old and tried friendship between our great democracies, but that the American government had turned to her because in the midst of widespread disturbance she remains sound.

Survives Through Thrift.

"If you should travel through our countryside, if you should visit our farms, if you could better know the hard and patient labor of our farmers, you would understand France. You would become convinced that she has preserved this robust constitution through hard work and the ability to save.

"Whether it be our workmen or our artisans, they are guided by the same ancestral spirit. These are the qualities which make our ancient land a harmonious and well balanced whole. Moreover, this sense of balance shields us from the absurd accusation that is sometimes directed against us, that we seek to exercise any form of domination in Europe.

"France is peace loving. Our history, our past, both impose prudence. We do not wish to impinge in the slightest degree upon the dignity of any other nation. Our only desire is peace. But we set great store by our security. Governments and peoples should understand that security cannot be expressed merely in words of hope; it should be organized.

"If France and the United States can agree and unite in an ever increasing coöperation we may look forward to better things. I am aware of your position. I know the aspiration of the American people to be self-contained. It is a noble ideal for a country like yours, strong, rich in experience, which has enabled it to progress and to succeed. That progress itself, which has never been more devotedly served than in the warm heart of the American people by reducing and suppressing distances between continents, by amalgamating the interests of our nation, has laid down a new doctrine and imposed new duties.

"You know how to put national solidarity into practice in a most generous way and you have many times proved it. You represent a civilization which has given material and moral well being to the greatest numbers.

United Action for Stability.

"You have thus realized the highest ideal which can inspire governmental activity, but a grave crisis has arisen which has interrupted your development as well as that of other countries. In a world torn with doubt our two great democracies together must search for and apply methods which will restore calm and reëstablish equilibrium.

"It is through an affirmation of faith and confidence that I desire to come into contact with the American people. I know their enthusiasm. I know that they are capable of generous impulses, combining their deep sense of reality with their noble idealism. They will respond, if necessary, to calls which may reach them from the old world.

"I speak in the name of a country which is determined to join its efforts with yours to ward off the dangers which menace our civilization."

FRENCH BUSINESS SLUMPS AS GOLD HOARD PILES UP

Industrial Leader Calls Prosperity a Myth.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 22.—Coincidenjal with the arrival of Premier Laval in America, paradoxical revelations were made here that at the opening of business this morning France's hoard of gold stood at its highest in history, while French industry had already sunk beyond its knees in the world's depression.

The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows that reserves in bullion in the vaults of the bank total more than 62,000,000,000 francs (about $2,500,000,000). This was an increase over last week of $65,000,000.

Even this staggering figure is only an index to the total gold holdings of the nation since hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of yellow metal is lying in the vaults of other banks or in private hands.

French Business Hit.

But at the same time editions of the papers announcing the latest triumph in French gold carried the first serious revelation that the general crisis had already hit France. The revelation was in the form of an open letter from Alfred Deschamps, president of the Lille chamber of commerce, to Premier Laval, declaring that "our national prosperity is only a myth." The Lille chamber of commerce is one of the most important in France.

"The textile industry is burdened with surplus stocks which it is unable to sell, and it has been obliged to reduce greatly its working hours," the letter said. "In the metallurgical industries unemployment is gradually increasing, and all industries strikingly indicate a pronounced letup in production.

"On account of high production costs, rendered more excessive by taxation and extravagant charges for social insurance, French exports are constantly diminishing. Certain industries, which formerly sold half or a third of their output abroad, have found their foreign outlet completely cut off.

"Industry in Peril."

"On the other hand, the abandonment of the gold standard by certain countries enables them not only to supplant French firms in the foreign markets, but even to flood our own markets with their goods.

"The time has come when we must have it declared out loud that our national prosperity is no longer anything but a myth. The truth is that French industry is imperiled. Even agriculture is seriously menaced, and our workers, due to lack of employment, are scheduled for a tragic winter."

DOCTOR, FREED IN COURT, FILES A DAMAGE SUIT

Dr. Clifton K. Timmons, 5713 Winthrop avenue, a staff surgeon at the Illinois Masonic hospital, yesterday filed the praecipe of a $75,000 damage suit in the Superior court naming as co-defendants Dr. Louis K. Eastman, head of the Keystone hospital, and John Sloan and Walter Scully, both police sergeants assigned to the Cragin station.

Attorney John K. Murphy, who represents Dr. Timmons, said that the action grows out of the arrest of his client on Sept. 30, when he was charged with the performance of a criminal operation upon a young woman. Municipal Judge Samuel Trude in the Felony court on Wednesday freed Dr. Timmons.

LAVAL IS READY TO BARGAIN ON FIVE PROBLEMS

Wants Security Pact for Arms Cut Pledge.

BY HENRY WALES.

[The Tribune's chief correspondent in Paris, who came to America with M. Laval and whose dispatch presents the French premier's views and purposes in the forthcoming conferences with President Hoover.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—France's astutest politician, Premier Pierre Laval, arrived here this afternoon prepared to drive a bargain with President Hoover on five of the principal international problems which the world faces.

As compensation for a security pact carrying the pledge of the United States to guarantee his country's safety, he is ready to make important reductions in France's armaments and to agree to an appreciable reduction in her budgetary expenditures for army, navy, and aviation.

As compensation for a revision of the war debt owed to America he is prepared to write down the amount of reparations due from Germany and to agree to an extension for an appreciable period of the moratorium.

Seeks Financial Protection.

As a matter of mutual protection for the two countries, which hold nearly 65 per cent of the world's gold he is anxious to reach an accord which will protect the financial interests of Paris and New York from the menace of a concerted economic attack by the nations which have abandoned the gold standard or are in danger of being forced off it.

The swarthy smiling little Frenchman has no definite detailed program and no precise plan—to submit but he has determined to insist on considerations for his nation in the two major questions which are coming up for examination—prolongation of the moratorium and the disarmament conference at Geneva in February.

Sees Need for Action.

Laval is under no illusion concerning the instability of present political conditions due to the world economic depression, and realizes the necessity of checking the scourge before the plight of scores of millions of unemployed, starving and freezing in certain countries this coming winter, threatens to overthrow existing forms of governments and supplant them with bolshevism.

A thrifty frugal Frenchman himself, he is loath to forego the indemnity from Germany which victory in the war entitles his country to collect, and the shadow of approaching hard times in France makes this even more repugnant.

But with the realization that the faith of peoples has been shaken by the failure of governments, capitalism and finance to execute its task in maintaining the welfare of the public, he is resigned to make such sacrifices as are necessary to arrest the drift to the left.

Wants Border Protected.

As chief of Europe's mightiest military machine—the French army—he is ready to make slashing reductions in expenditures to permit the league of nations disarmament conference to show some progress toward success, but he is resolved to carry out Poincare's project of rivetting a ring of steel and concrete fortifications along the exposed frontier behind the Rhine and to continue with the precautionary safeguards in the Alps.

As compensation for giving Hoover success at Geneva, he stands pat on France's demand for a perpetual security pact, but is willing to take it in the form of whatever sugarcoated pill the President must administer it in order to overcome opposition by the senate and public opinion.

A substitutive formula whereby the United States would recognize the aggressor in a future war and pledge herself to refrain from any aid direct or indirect to that power is all Laval hopes to obtain, but he wants this to be construed as a promise that America would not help such an offender by lending money or selling munitions, foodstuffs or other supplies. This would be sufficient to deter any state from seeking hostilities, he believes.

Eyes Policy of Italy.

Laval is ever mindful that across the thirty mile wide demilitarized zone separating the Reich from his country is a nation of more than 70 millions, and France's population is only 42 millions. He bears in mind that Italian ambition is throwing Rome and Berlin into the same orbit and that the Fascist naval pretensions for parity with France in reality mean superiority, because the entire Italian fleet is concentrated in the Mediterranean and Adriatic, whereas the French marine must always be divided, with a covering force in the Atlantic.

Recent events give Laval a powerful argument for his demand that teeth be inserted in the Kellogg pact, as the Manchurian incident still hanging fire before the league council reveals the woeful deficiency in the covenant and the feebleness of all treaties which do not embody specific sanctions as a means for enforcing execution.

Impressed by Reception.

America and the elaborate arrangements for a popular reception in New York, the long train ride through the industrial region on the way to the national capital and the ornate reception arranged for him here made a visible impression on the little Frenchman, who went abroad for the first time last summer when he visited England, and whose travels since have only included the flying visit to Berlin.

He had seen Broadway's reception to Lindbergh in the movies; he had seen pictures of the towering skyscrapers of Manhattan, but when he first saw the towers stabbing the sky and motored through the Broadway canyon where only a slight flurry of ticker tape and torn up telephone books greeted him instead of the blizzards which assailed some of his predecessors, he was impressed.

He Chats with Stimson.

He chatted with Secretary of State Stimson and Warren Robbins and other officials on the railway journey, while his daughter, Josee, in her blue sport dress, and Reine Claudel, the French ambassador's daughter, went into the dining car and had gumbo and chicken a la king and apple pie and big cups of coffee with cream instead of the familiar demitasse of Paris.

The premier had Stimson and Robbins and his delegation at luncheon in his private car and said he never missed the absence of his customary vin rouge and, anyway, it was better for him to go on the "regime sec," as the French call prohibition, because his doctor had warned him his system was getting too acid.

At Philadelphia, when the press photographers banged on the car windows to get his attention and beckoned him to come outside and be snapped, he left his luncheon and went to the observation platform to pose, and his lamb chops got cold and the shiny-faced black chef grilled a new pair for him.

Fears Pictures Are Wasted.

"What can they do with all those pictures? What a waste!" was all the frugal little man could say as he stood up before the batteries of demon cameramen and was shot to pieces for ten minutes at a time.

"Hey, wave your hat!" shouted the photographers, and when he did it, masking his pretty daughter with his big French stovepipe hat they screamed:

"Use the other hand! You're hiding Josie's face," and he obeyed with alacrity.

"Say something, say something quick," the movietone operators snapped. Then the mike was thrust before him.

"I am deeply touched by the cordial welcome I am receiving in America," was all he could think to say over and over again.

"I thought America was going through hard times, he remarked, gazing at a cluster of fashionably dressed young women in the Pennsylvania station. "Why, our people in Paris are not dressed as well as they are here."

He reminded his secretary to give the parlor car porters a good tip as the train pulled in at Washington and then was pleased to see Gen. Pershing and Marshal Petain at the platform to welcome him. "Blackjack" looked pale and strange back in his khaki uniform and the marshal said he was pretty well fatigued after all the running around he has been doing at Yorktown.

Approves Colored Tiles.

Laval stopped only long enough in Ambassador Edge's home, lent him for the occasion, to wash his hands and remark on what a swell idea colored tiles and tubs and basins and whatnots are in modern bathrooms instead of the dead white he had always seen at home.

"Just an informal call," and he was back in the 18th street house where more movietone apparatus had been set up. In his carelessly knotted white tie and wearing the big gold wedding ring European gents always must have, he puffed nervously at cigarets while the powerful lights were hooked up.

"You are cooking me," he grumbled as the intense heat from the brilliant lamps sizzled him, and then he made his little speech again about being impressed with the reception.

"You've gotta talk louder, Mister Premier," the talkie director said, and so he repeated it all over again.

"How I wish I could speak English," sighed Laval as he turned back to face the reporters.

He then repeated an earlier statement that all questions relating to the two nations would be discussed freely with President Hoover, adding that he was hopeful some "of the false rumors which tend to separate our countries" could be dissipated.

Then He Gets Foxy.

Then he got awful foxy when the high powered political writers tried to worm out his secrets.

"But, messieurs, I cannot tell you this things before I have even talked with the President," he reminded them.

"Pete" made a good impression on the Yanks who met him, cops, chauffeurs, trainmen, waiters and others in contact with him mostly agreed.

"I never heard 'Marsellaise' so often in one day," he remarked after a marine band blared forth the French national anthem for the twentieth time at the station. Standing rigidly at salute, "Pete" tried to follow the stirring tune with the words, but forgot them about half way through—about the same way Mr. Stimson faltered on the "Star Spangled Banner" lyrics later.

Goes to White House.

After a snappy shower in Mr. Edge's glistening nickel plated tub, the refreshed premier climbed into braided pants and long tailed coat and, wearing no sash medal ribbon or other decoration, was whisked off to the White House for dinner with the President.

"No more questions, I'm pretty tired, and you boys should have enough for your stories tonight," was all he said when he returned to the ambassador's mansion and turned in to the big brocaded, silk trimmed bed.

"Disconnect that," he told his valet after glancing at a telephone at his bedside. "I don't want to be disturbed, and, anyway, I couldn't talk to anybody," he murmured.

BRITISH TROOPS AND WARSHIPS RUSHED TO QUELL CYPRUS REVOLT

Street scene in Nicosia on the ancient isle in the Mediterranean, which is the legendary home of Aphrodite, the Greek goddess of love. British troops and warships have been rushed there to deal with a movement which has as its aim the union of the island with Greece. A Cyprian baker with his wares is shown in the picture.

British warships and planes, carrying troops, rushed to Isle of Cyprus, once sacred to Aphrodite, goddess of love, when islanders rise against rule and demand union with Greece.

HOME OF APHRODITE.

Cyprus, a Mediterranean island 44 miles off the coast of Asia Minor, which was regarded as the true home of the goddess Aphrodite by the ancient Greeks, has been under British rule since 1878. In that year England and Turkey signed a convention transferring sovereignty, and in 1914 the island was made a crown colony.

The history of Cyprus has been checkered even since ancient days when it was the scene of scandalous affairs in connection with the worship of Aphrodite. Settled by Phoenicians and Greeks, it was ruled successively by Persia, Macedonia, Egypt, Rome, the Byzantine empire, the Saracens, Venice, and the Turks.

Cyprus is referred to in the Old Testament (under the name Kittim) and Christianity was preached there by St. Paul, St. Barnabas (a native of the island), and St. Mark.

Most of the modern residents are Greeks and Turks. The 1921 census showed a population of 310,709.

CAPONE IN COURT TODAY; HE MAY HEAR HIS FATE

Lawyers to Argue on Motion.

Al Capone is again scheduled for an appearance before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson today, a court session that may end with his being sentenced to Leavenworth penitentiary for income tax evasion.

AL CAPONE.

The pronouncement of judgment was expected on Tuesday, but Capone's attorneys wished more time in which to prepare arguments for a motion in arrest of judgment, and the court allowed them until today. These arguments are expected to require some time, in view of the preparations made by both defense attorneys and prosecutors.

Capone is liable to a maximum of seventeen years' imprisonment and fines totaling $50,000 on five counts of income tax fraud voted by a jury last Saturday night. The highest penalty of record in an income tax case is five years and a day, imposed upon a Capone gangster, Jack Guzik, but the federal prosecutors say they will not be surprised if Capone is dealt sterner justice.

Capone's tax fraud case is what lawyers term "aggravated." The evidence showed that he "built a stone wall around himself" in an attempt to evade taxes, kept no records, wrote no checks, and had no bank accounts.

Then when he came to trial he contended that he had no taxable income, though the evidence showed him scattering cash to the four winds.

Speculations among lawyers as to the sentence Capone will receive range as high as nine years.

The contempt case against Capone's bodyguard, Philip D'Andrea, was continued until Tuesday by Judge Wilkerson yesterday. Possibility that Capone himself will become involved in this case was seen when the court asked Prosecutor Jacob Grossman whether the gang chief knew D'Andrea came into court armed.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Claimants for cash damages found Uncle Sam a hard-fisted bargainer last year. The Court of Claims awarded only $5,828,000 in settling suits seeking over one billion dollars during the fiscal year ended June 30.

It is always the most successful velvet frock that lets its fabric walk away with two-thirds of the honors in chic. And here are two frocks that do this so successfully.

FULL sleeves wear a tight cuff of chiffon beaded in white.

MLLE. JOSETTE SHARES HONORS WITH M. LAVAL

Daughter of Premier Has a Fine Time.

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Pierre Laval, France's prime minister, and his vivacious daughter, Josée [that Josette is merely her father's affectionate diminutive] went up to their suite in the Ambassador Edge mansion late tonight with one phrase on their lips, "Tres magnifique," which as anybody can figure out means they think Washington is pretty swell.

They liked the gala welcome at the station, with Gen. Pershing standing at such stiff salute as they played "The Marseillaise" that he knocked off his eyeglasses. They liked the procession through the town, even though they had a motorcycle instead of a cavalry escort, since the asphalt has been found to be hard on the horses' hoofs.

They had a good time greeting the greeters at the Edge home. It was a busy scene there, with a French secret service man in gray suede gloves and morning coat, jumping down from the baggage truck to see that all the luggage was there. Some time in the confusion Warren Delano Robbins, the state department's chef de protocol, got a nasty jagged tear in the imported broadcloth of his cutaway, but he didn't seem to mind.

They enjoyed their formal call at the White House; enjoyed it so much they stayed twenty-two minutes instead of the regulation ten.

Glass Buttons on His Shoes.

The premier had a good, but wineless time, at the formal White House dinner later in the evening. And Mlle. Josette had a "perfectly grand time" at the dinner and dance which Ambassador and Mrs. Claudel gave for her at the French embassy.

It was a gay day of hearts and flowers, with never a reference to any of the dollars and debts that may enter the official negotiations tomorrow.

It started at a quarter past three this afternoon when the train pulled into the station and M. Laval walked down through a double line of soldiers to the presidential entrance, where he stopped to be photographed. Then you noticed two things about him; he was wearing black patent leather shoes with tiny glass buttons; and he was wearing a white tie with his morning coat. Somebody says he wears a white tie fishing.

He seemed eager and very pleasant as he sent swift French sentences in the direction of Secretary of State Stimson and Gen. Pershing. Ambassador Claudel beamed. In back of them stood a trio of girls. The girl with the big brown eyes, the bright blue corduroy suit, and the polished pink nails is Josette. The girl in black is Jacqueline Guimier, daughter of a French newspaper editor, and the small, blond girl is Reine Claudel, the ambassador's daughter.

Gets Along with Reporters.

Josette's hat is a soft, fuzzy thing of blue angora wool with a perky feather in it. Her heavy brown hair is in a long bob. The ladies now call it a "rolled bob." Her cheeks are olive, unrouged; but her lips are very red.

The photographers ask for a picture, and as her father, Secretary Stimson, and Capt. Charles Russell Train, President Hoover's naval aid, step into a White House car, Mlle. Laval poses pleasantly.

At the Edge home, she again endears herself to newspaper people. For almost as soon as she has arrived she is asked for an interview. She comes downstairs immediately and leads the way to a recessed corner, far from official interruptions, and talks gayly, but judiciously.

"New York and Washington are lovely. They are different, but both are lovely.

"I have always wanted to come to America; every French girl wants to come here.

Not Father's Secretary.

"No, no, no. I am not my father's secretary; nor his interpreter. O, some time when there is a man to see him, and nobody around, you know," a flash of the pink nails, "then I come and help. But please, please do not say that I have any official connection with anything."

What is she going to wear to the party in the evening?

"Well, really, that depends on the trunks. But I think I shall wear a white satin trimmed with navy blue. [She did.] It will be very long, because, of course, it is an evening gown. With it I shall wear a little navy blue velvet jacket, but no jewels. I have some jewels, but I do not like jewels."

As for her study of law, yes, she enjoys it, but she does not work at it, "awfully hard," rather as "something to do, you know," than as a career.

She denied strenuously that she was engaged and then she left to run upstairs and pick up a certain letter from the pile of letters waiting for her. A photographer was waiting to take her picture. She smiled at him, and said:

"You'll have to pardon me while I read a letter from my boy friend."

They Meet the President.

From the White House father and daughter, in different cars, hurried back to their temporary residence to change their clothes. Josette put on her white silk with no jewels and went to dine and dance. Her partner was Count François de Buisseret, second secretary of the Belgian embassy.

M. Laval put on dress clothes and a fresh white tie and went back to the White House to a stag dinner which the President gave for him and for the foreign guests here for the Yorktown celebration.

Here, among the ninety guests, the largest number to be entertained by this administration (you can't squeeze more than ninety-six into the state dining room), a De Rochambeau sat down with a Von Steuben. The French and German ambassadors hobnobbed.

Out of town guests included Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, and, speaking of the absence of French vintages, the Hon. George W. Wickersham.

The name of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, was not on the guest list as it was issued by the White House late in the afternoon. An eleventh hour invitation was sent him.

LAVAL'S WIFE DOWN ON THE FARM WHILE HUSBAND'S AWAY

PARIS, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Mme. Pierre Laval, facing the longest separation from her husband in twenty years of married life, has gone to their farm in Normandy to look after the flowers and stock while the premier talks with President Hoover.

She is fond of flowers and always returns to their apartment in the ministry of the interior with an automobile load of them. She is a native of Auvergne, her husband's birthplace, sister of a former deputy and has listened to politics since childhood.

She left for the country the day the premier sailed for the United States to dissipate her melancholy. She received daily radiograms from her husband during the voyage, reporting on his welfare and the behavior of their daughter, Josette.

FEDERAL AGENCY FINDS JOBS FOR 5,000 PERSONS

More than 5,000 persons have been placed in employment by the central western group of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, representing 16 states, according to a report by Chairman John A. Kratz at the close of a meeting at the Stevens hotel yesterday.

The report added that the average cost for placing each of the 5,192 persons given jobs was $316.62 and that 3,324 more persons have been placed in temporary employment, or are ready to be placed.

The board has been conducting an exhaustive study of the many different ways of classifying individuals, according to physical and mental aptitude, in order to find to which of 6,000 vocations offered the individual would be best suited.

DIES AS RESULT OF BURNS.

Michawaka, Ind., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Harvey Tebo, 18, died last night, after he had been burned in an explosion of a gasoline stove.

LINDBERGHS, FLYING HOME, SPEND NIGHT IN WYOMING TOWN

Rock Springs, Wyo., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, flying homeward after their arrival early today at Victoria, B. C., landed here at 5:50 p. m. [M. S. T.], and will remain overnight.

The Lindberghs, returning to New Jersey after an aerial trip to the orient, landed at an airport 3½ miles from Rock Springs. They had not been expected to stop here and only airport employés were at the field.

COMING CHICAGO WAY.

Officials of the United Air Lines said last night they had been informed that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who halted at Rock Springs, Wyo., for the night, intended to leave that point at daybreak and fly for New York by way of Omaha and Chicago.

STUDENTS HISS DRY SPEAKER AS HE ASSAILS WET

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Boos and hisses from 500 University of Michigan students at an open prohibition forum tonight greeted the Rev. R. N. Holsaple, superintendent of the Michigan Anti-Saloon league, when he assailed Representative Robert Clancy, wet Detroit congressman, on the liquor question. After the students first cut loose with hisses for Mr. Holsaple, the meeting was bedlam.

Wets and occasionally a few drys were cheered lustily while the audience booed, hissed, and laughed at dry speakers, although a dry element in the audience once in a while made its hisses for the wets loud enough to be heard.

Amos W. Woodcock, federal director of prohibition, was supposed to be the principal speaker, but in the open discussion which followed, the audience gave up questioning him when he refused to enter into the name-calling contest.

ELDERLY COUPLE FOUND DEAD OF FUMES IN HOME

Louis Dovenmuehle, 62 years old, a foreman for the National Galvanizing company, and his wife, Ida., 60 years old, were found asphyxiated yesterday in their home at 909 North Hoyne avenue. The police said death was accidental, due to gas escaping from a portable heater in the dining room.

Dovenmuehle's body lay on a davenport in the dining room and his wife was on a day bed in an adjoining room.

"My father and stepmother have been living there alone since I was married a week ago Monday and went to housekeeping," said a son, Henry, who is employed at the Board of Trade by the Bartlett-Frazier company. "My father's employers called me and asked me why he didn't report for work. I went home when I couldn't reach him on the telephone. Both had been dead since last night. I could smell escaping gas, although the heater was still burning."

REPORT JURORS GET "INSIDE" OF GAS BOOTLEGGING

The inside story of gasoline bootlegging in Illinois was reported to have been unfolded yesterday before the grand jury by Poole Harrison, a former operator of the Reliable Oil company, 65th and State streets, who has been a fugitive on a conspiracy indictment for a year.

Harrison was captured by Sergt. Harry Larson of the state's attorney's forces earlier in the day. He was questioned at the state's attorney's office and then spent the afternoon in the grand jury room.

According to reports, Harrison's story accused a man in the oil industry as the head of the ring, which is alleged to have defrauded the state out of millions of dollars.

This man, according to Harrison's reputed testimony, offered his services to the state and installed himself in the Chicago offices of the gasoline inspection bureau. He carried on his operations with the ring from this headquarters, it was reported.

TRUNK SLAYER TO GIVE SELF UP, POLICE BELIEVE

Husband Paves Way for Mrs. Judd's Surrender.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Belief that Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, suspect in the murders of Mrs. Sarah Ann Leroi and Miss Hedwig Samuelson in Phoenix, Ariz., was today preparing to surrender here was voiced by authorities as the widespread search for her narrowed and her prospects of escape ebbed.

Paving the way for her to give up, the fugitive's husband, Dr. William C. Judd, retained Los Angeles attorneys to conduct his wife's defense. Dr. Judd issued a statement which indicated his wife in plans of surrender.

Appearing at the offices of Attorneys Richard H. Cantillon and ex-Judge Erle P. Russell, the 47 year old physician mapped a program which, if his wife follows, may place her in custody before daylight.

Husband Begs Surrender.

Although gravely expressing "deep fear" that Mrs. Judd has retreated into some remote and secluded spot and there taken her life, Dr. Judd implored her through his statement to come forward and deliver herself to the law which has sought her for three days.

Informed of Dr. Judd's arraignment with the attorneys, Police Inspector David Davidson, who is directing the search for the woman, declared he believes she is still alive, but probably in desperate straits, without money and unable to contact friends due to the unrelaxed vigilance. The inspector expressed belief Mrs. Judd was in some small, cheap rooming house, perhaps near the center of Los Angeles.

Brother Is Shadowed.

Mrs. Judd's brother, Burton McKinnell, said at police headquarters today that he believed he could locate his sister or get a message to her if he got the chance. McKinnell refused to give any details.

He said: "I believe I know where she may be hiding. I couldn't get any cash to her, but I feel as though I could get a message to her. There may be a message waiting for me now, so I can't get it."

McKinnell referred to his constant shadowing by detectives, which, although the young man is not technically booked in connection with the murder case, began yesterday when McKinnell made a trip to Los Angeles postoffice general delivery and received a note which could not be found on his person five minutes later.

Nurse Threatened on Phone.

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Lucille Moore, 21 year old nurse, who gave a statement about the last night party in which Ruth Judd, Agnes Leroi, and Hedvig Samuelson participated with three men here, today answered telephone calls and was told to quit talking or get killed. Miss Moore reported the threat at once to Phoenix police.

Dr. R. D. Gaskins, who lived near Mrs. Judd's Brill street bungalow, also received a call telling him to "keep your mouth shut." Dr. Gaskins had informed officers that he thought all three women—Mrs. Leroi, Miss Samuelson, and Mrs. Judd—were users of drugs. Both telephone calls, the one to Miss Moore and the one to Dr. Gaskins, were in a man's voice.

Miss Moore said Jack J. Halloran, married and wealthy Phoenix lumberman, who had been attentive to Mrs. Judd, visited and kissed Mrs. Leroi and Miss Samuelson, and that Mrs. Judd cursed her two girl chums on the evening before they were murdered.

A letter was produced here today which Mrs. Leroi wrote to Mrs. Judd while the former was in Oregon last summer. It referred to an unexplained "episode" which had chilled their relations.

"Ruthie darling," Mrs. Leroi's letter read, "I promise never to repeat that episode again. I cannot wait until I come back to you and Sammy. I can never thank God enough for giving you to me. You are so sweet."

Authorities today advanced the theory that Miss Samuelson may have died during an illegal operation, performed in the presence of and perhaps with the aid of Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, sought as the double slayer. Mrs. Le Roi may have been slain in order to remove her as a witness, according to this theory.

Rep. Rainey Announces His Candidacy for Re-election

Quincy, Ill., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Congressman Henry T. Rainey, Democrat, of Carrollton, tonight formally announced his candidacy for reelection at a meeting of Adams Democratic leaders. He represents the old Fifteenth district. The congressman prophesied that the Democrats would organize the next session of the national house of representatives and that Congressman Garner of Texas would be the speaker.

BOWLER FAMILY NAMES CAPTIVE AS HOLDUP MAN

Edward Jennings, 29 years old, was arrested yesterday and identified by Thomas J. Bowler, president of the sanitary district, and his family, as one of the two bandits who robbed them on Sept. 9 outside their home at 6101 Warwick avenue.

Jennings, who said he lived at 404 South Western avenue, has a long record, police said. Mr. Bowler identified his picture in the bureau of identification after the robbery, and he was arrested yesterday in the Chicago avenue police district.

He denied complicity in the holdup, but at the Irving Park station last night Mr. Bowler, his wife, Margaret, their children, Mary and John, and Anthony Mustacit, the family chauffeur, all identified him positively. The robbers took $200 and a diamond ring valued at $1,200 from Mr. Bowler, and another ring from Mrs. Bowler.

CHICAGO WOMAN CLAIMS SHARE IN WENDEL RICHES

A Chicago claimant to a share in the $75,000,000 fortune of the eccentric Wendel family of New York came forward yesterday. The claimant is Mrs. Irene Elliott Rabin, 30 years old, of 506 Aldine avenue.

The Wendel fortune was left to charity by the last of the family, Ella Virginia von E. Wendel, who died last March. Mrs. Rabin, according to her attorney, Si Herr, is a relative of the Wendel family, her great-grandfather having been a brother of the great-grandfather of Ella Wendel.

Attorney Herr said he would file two suits on his client's behalf, one in Surrogate court in New York and the other in the New York federal district court, an intervening petition in the suit brought by Miss Rosa Dew Stansbury of Vicksburg, Miss., attacking the will.

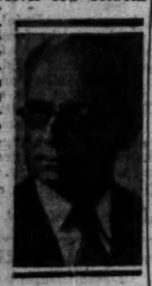
WOOD ATTACK ON NAVY MEN SETS OFF BOMBSHELL

Rumors Adams May Quit Quickly Follow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—The undercover row between President Hoover and the navy department over the advisability of further reductions in warships and personnel threatened tonight to grow to serious proportions, with rumors, at once denied, that it might result in the resignation of Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams.



WILL R. WOOD. [A. P. Photo.]

The launching of a bitter attack against naval officers today by Chairman Will R. Wood [Rep., Ind.] of the house appropriations committee, from the executive offices of the White House, may have furnished the spark which will blow the lid off the navy-White Houes controversy.

Adams Silent on Resignation.

Although Secretary Adams declined today to discuss the possibility of quitting the cabinet, he took occasion for the first time, to defend officers of his department from the attack of administration spokesmen. Immediately following Mr. Wood's characterization of naval officers as "cheap and insidious politicians" who have circulated "pure damned lies" about the Hoover economy program in an effort to arouse public sentiment, Secretary Adams issued a public statement in defense of his subordinates.

When informed that Mr. Wood had told newspaper men that he had urged the President to court martial naval officers, who he charged circulated cowardly and insidious propoganda in an effort to build a backfire against the Hoover program, Mr. Adams said:

"In view of the confidential nature of the budget estimates submitted by the navy department to the President, I would rather neither confirm nor deny the existence of the items contained therein, but I wish to emphasize that I have unshaken confidence in the character and integrity of the officers of the United States navy."

Tears in Secretary's Eyes.

Observers noted there were tears in the secretary's eyes while he spoke. Mr. Adams declined to confirm nor deny that he and the President were unable to agree as to the advisability of reducing the navy to the point where its efficiency would be greatly impaired. It became known, however, that in his recent interview with Mr. Hoover when he submitted a new economy program calling for new naval economies amounting to more than $50,000,000, Mr. Adams advised his commander in chief that adoption of this plan would greatly impair the efficiency of the navy.

Indications are, however, that if the split between the White House and navy reached the breaking point for Mr. Adams, the attacks on the naval officers by administration spokesmen, rather than prospective naval cut, would prove the decisive factor. Should the White House yield to political pressure, as now seems likely, and remove navy yards from the economy program, substituting new navy personnel cuts in their place, a new crisis might also be precipitated. The proposed personnel redutcion, it was reported, would result in the loss of jobs for 6,000 sailors.

President's Hand Seen.

The Wood attack today culminated a long series of administration efforts to discredit naval officers. As long ago as during the 1930 naval limitation conference, Secretary Stimson took occasion to criticize the loyalty of naval officers who opposed the London pact. During that period it was often openly asserted that Secretary Stimson, backed by the White House, had more to do with running the navy department than Mr. Adams.

Only a few days ago a White House spokesman denounced naval officers for giving out information regarding prospective navy budget reductions. At that time the President was represented as taking the position that if necessary he would appeal to the country to decide whether naval officers or the President had the right to set the size of the navy budget. The latest economy move marks the third time that the navy has been slashed in a little more than a year.

The fact that Chairman Wood delivered his attack against naval officer personnel immediately after emerging from a White House conference inspired reports that the President was responsible for the action of the Indiana representative. The circumstance that Mr. Wood was quoted as stating that he felt that Mr. Hoover shared his views about the loyalty of naval officers gave credence to these reports.

Wood on Warpath.

In language plentifully sprinkled with profanity, Chairman Wood charged that naval officers had deliberately inspired "propaganda" to the effect that navy yards, the navy band, and the frigate Constitution were to be laid up as the result of White House orders. Mr. Wood said the President in fact had not arrived at final economy plans. He gave the impression the original program, which called for cuts in excess of $50,000,000 in the 1933 budget may be considerably modified. He added that Mr. Hoover felt much the same way as he did regarding navy publicity on White House economy moves. The President was represented as much annoyed because he could not effect naval reductions without some naval officer first giving the facts to the press.

The President was annoyed first by publication of figures by the United States Navy league showing that a billion dollars would have to be spent within five years to bring the fleet up to parity with Great Britain. Fuel was added to the White House annoyance by publication in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the New York Times of the fact that he intended to smother the 135 million dollar new naval construction program and reduce the destroyed program. This situation was not helped when the new Adams economy program was printed almost as soon as it reached the White House.

Under current gag rules naval officers are not supposed to talk for publication about budget matters, economy or any other subject of news interest which the White House might object to.

ADAMS' LETTER TO HOOVER

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Below is the first page of a tentative draft of a letter prepared for submission to President Hoover by the navy department and sent to bureau chiefs. It will be noted that proposals to put the frigate Constitution out of commission and to abandon the navy band are contained in the recommendations. Item 23, referring to the navy band, is reproduced from page 4 of the letter.

Representative Will R. Wood [Rep., Ind.], chairman of the house appropriations committee, emerging from a White House conference today, charged that "colorful stories like the one regarding the scrapping of the Constitution and the navy band, were put out as propaganda to arouse public sentiment," and were the result of "playing of cheap politics by certain naval officers."

The letter follows:

Department of the Navy.
Office of the Secretary, Washington, Oct. 13, 1931.

My Dear Mr. President:

Since your request that the naval estimates, submitted Aug. 31 last, be reduced between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000, a study has been made of the method by which this could be accomplished which would have the least injurious effect upon our naval defense.

In order to effect so great a reduction below the estimates, the reduction must be borne by practically every appropriation and by the shore establishment as well as by the forces afloat. Therefore, I feel that you should be apprised of the essential features of the changes incident to the proposed reduction, which are as follows:

Reductions afloat as compared with operating force plan on which estimates of Aug. 31, 1931, were based.

CHANGE—	Resulting reduction in personnel.
Place Wyoming out of commission and place New York in reduced instead of full commission	1,014
Place Rochester out of commission	317
Place two 8-inch cruisers in reserve	456
Place six S-class submarines in reserve	174
Reduce crew of Rigel [destroyer base San Diego]	153
Place Constitution out of commission	60
Reduce fleet aviation	96

JEALOUS SUITOR CONFESSES FIRE PLOT FATAL TO 2

Boys Hired to Set Building in Flames.

The true story of the origin of a fire which destroyed a three story building at 160 West Oak street Wednesday night and caused the deaths of two persons and serious injuries to three others was learned by the Chicago avenue police yesterday.

For $2 a rejected, jealous suitor of a woman living in the building hired two boys to soak the stairway with naphtha and ignite it. The work was carried out with such efficiency that the exit was cut off for most of the residents of the structure. The man who formulated the plot and one of his $2 arsonists are under arrest and have confessed their parts in the crime.

Two Dead, Three Hurt.

The dead were: Aubrey Lay, 44 years old, a house to house egg merchant, and Doris Boehm, 5 years old, daughter of Mrs. Mary Arnold Boehm, 29 years old. Mrs. Boehm is one of the injured. The others are Charles Carlson, 35 years old, and Gideon Frizen, 33 years old. All three are suffering from severe burns.

Henry Thompson, 31 years old, 1943 Larrabee street, a mechanic, is the man who confessed he set out to even a score with Lay and Mrs. Boehm, who was formerly his housekeeper and left him to become Lay's. In his jealousy mad mind he first formed a project to bomb the house, hoping stairway collapsed that he could by this means frighten the woman into leaving Lay.

"But I couldn't get a bomb quick enough," he told Capt. Gregory Morsn of the Chicago avenue station. "I walked down to Milton and Chicago avenues and I met two boys there. They said they'd start a fire for $2 and I gave them a gallon of naphtha. After the fire was started I met them again and told them they started one too big. They just laughed and I gave them their money and promised them $2 more on Saturday."

The youth under arrest is Angelo Barone, 18 years old, 847 Milton avenue. He corroborated the recital of Thompson in most points, but asserted he was not with the other youth, Angelo Siro, 18 years old, when the latter poured the naphtha and set it afire. Siro is being sought. Thompson and Barone, the latter a second year student at Waller High school, have been charged with arson and murder.

Bailiff Questions Woman.

Joseph Fogarty, a deputy bailiff of the Municipal court, obtained the first information that resulted in a disclosure of the plot. He was passing the building after the fire broke out and aided in rescuing J. H. Sherry, a 73 year old resident. He then questioned Mrs. Boehm.

She told him of Thompson's threats of bombing. Fogarty informed the police and they caught the plotter.

Mrs. Boehm's story, told in her room in the Henrotin hospital, was quite different.

"I told him not to do it, that I would not go back to him under any circumstances," she declared. "Aubrey had leased the building and I was running it as a rooming house and making money. We were going to get married as soon as Aubrey made a little more money in the egg business."

When Mrs. Boehm, in her third floor room, discovered the flames they had gained great headway and her little girl had been burned on the body. She made an improvised rope of bed clothing and lowered the child with it. The rope broke, but firemen caught Doris, and it was the burns and not injury in the fall that caused her death. Lay died in his room and Mrs. Boehm got out just before the

TWO FAKE BANK ROBBERS GET 2 YEAR SENTENCES

Two youths confessed staging a fake holdup by which they obtained $2,500 from the West Side Atlas National bank, 1601 Roosevelt road, were sentenced to serve two years each in the reformatory at Chillicothe, O., by Federal Judge John F. Barnes yesterday. Both pleaded guilty to the charge.

Fred Brogni, 19 years old, 2146 South Harding avenue, a former messenger for the bank, and Nicholas Semetis, 20 years old, 2107 South Harding avenue, are the two sentenced.

Owen A. West, assistant United States district attorney, told the court that Brogni induced Semetis to hold him up on April 20 while he was carrying $2,500 for the bank. Later Brogni reported the supposed holdup to the police. Both boys broke down under questioning and confessed.

LEAGUE ORDERS JAPAN TO VACATE CHINA BY NOV. 16

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, Oct. 23. — [Friday.] — (AP) — Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese delegate to the league of nations council at Geneva, was instructed by the government today to inform the council that Japan will do her best to complete withdrawal of troops from outside the railway zone in Manchuria within three weeks if China agrees to cease alleged anti-Japanese agitation there.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Oct. 22.—At a public meeting of the league of nations council tonight a draft resolution designed to end the danger of war between Japan and China was presented. It calls on Japan to begin immediately the withdrawal of troops from outside the South Manchurian railway zone and to complete this withdrawal before Nov. 16.

It is reported that the council's sudden abandonment of its heretofore rigid policy was due to a note from Washington demanding, in the name of decency, that the council take a stand against the Japanese aggression in Manchuria before adjourning. It is even rumored that the peremptory paragraph was inserted only after the arrival of an impatient note from Secretary of State Stimson.

Tells China to Move In.

The most pungent paragraph of the initiative resolution reads:

"The council calls upon Japan to begin immediately and to proceed progressively with withdrawal of troops into the railway zone so that the withdrawal may be effective before the date fixed for the next meeting of the council."

It continues by calling on China to make arrangements to take over the territory thus evacuated and to insure the safety of lives and property of Japanese subjects, and requests China to designate foreign representatives to observe the execution of these arrangements.

Vote on Plan Today.

The resolution further recommends that both governments appoint immediately representatives to arrange the details of evacuation and also as soon as the evacuation is completed to begin direct negotiations regarding the controversial questions outstanding.

The resolution will be debated at 5 p.m. tomorrow after the Chinese and Japanese delegates have received instructions from their governments. The Japanese vote is easy to predict, a vote of Kenkichi Yoshizawa's statement to the council tonight.

"We cannot now fix a definite date for withdrawal of the last of our soldiers," he said. "The exact moment depends not only on the good will of Japan, but also on the good will of China being effectively shown."

Chinese Delegate Disappointed.

Dr. Alfred Sze, chief Chinese delegate, declared that the draft resolution "falls far short of what the situation demands." He meant that it provides for the evacuation of the Japanese troops for three weeks when it could be accomplished in half a day. However, he reiterated China's determination to abide by the decision of the league and the probability is that China will vote for the resolution.

Japan's probable dissenting vote will invalidate the resolution, which is directed against a member of the council and the vote on which must be unanimous.

China Replies to U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—The Chinese government today notified the state department of its desire to settle the Manchurian crisis "by peaceful means under conditions which give a guarantee of fair and equitable treatment for all concerned." The views of the Chinese authorities were embodied in a communication replying to the state department's notes of Tuesday urging both Japan and China to honor their obligations under the Kellogg anti-war treaty and refrain from war.

The Chinese government, the note received today said, appreciates the interest shown by the American government in the Manchurian dispute and says that China places "absolute reliance upon the principle of international law and international agreements" and for that reason has "consistently discountenanced employing force to meet the situation created by the Japanese occupation and other warlike actions of Japan."

Japanese Bomb Two Towns.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 22. — Marshal Chang Hseuh-liang's headquarters at Peiping announced yesterday that Japanese airplanes yesterday bombarded Taoshing and Kwangchengtze, both points northwest of Changchun, the northern terminus of the South Manchurian railway.

Japanese official sources admit that Japanese scouting planes were "obliged to drop several bombs in order to silence a Chinese army."

FIGHTS MOTHER'S WILL; $100,000 TO STUDIO OWNER

The will of Mrs. Anna H. Mende, 3137 North Hoyne avenue, who died on Wednesday at the age of 84, was filed yesterday before Oscar Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner. Mrs. Mende's estate of $100,000 was left to Samuel Bloom, 39 years old, owner of the De Haven studio, 5 South Wabash avenue, who described himself as Mrs. Mende's "sweetheart."

Attorney Joseph E. Newton, representing Mrs. Anna T. Wallace, Mrs. Mende's 67 year old daughter, who was disowned in the will, charged that the will was a forgery and that Bloom had exerted undue influence upon Mrs. Mende. The charges are to be heard at a hearing this morning before Judge Horner.

Mrs. Mende was taken to the Illinois Masonic hospital last Monday by Bloom. She was in an unconscious condition and remained so until her death.

The will filed yesterday left all the $100,000 estate to Bloom with the exception of a $500 gift to a home for the blind to be selected by Bloom.

The will dismissed Mrs. Mende's daughter with this comment: "I make no provision for my daughter because she is well provided for. In addition, she was never a kind and affectionate daughter to me."

The will was typewritten and dated in May, 1929. The signature of Mrs. Mende was attacked as a forgery by Attorney Newton, who displayed samples of the woman's handwriting and said there were marked differences between her writing and the signature on the will.

Mrs. Wallace, the daughter, is now in the Goodheart sanitarium, 3400 South Michigan avenue. She was adjudged insane in 1928 and a conservator was appointed for her estate, which is estimated to be worth $50,000.

Bloom, who lives at 3934 Pine Grove avenue, met Mrs. Wallace in 1906 when he was a student at the Medill High school where she was a teacher for many years. He formed an acquaintance with the high school teacher and later met her mother, Mrs. Mende.

BUSINESS BAD, HANGS HIMSELF TO TREE IN YARD

Christopher Lang, 48 years old, an electrical engineer, and formerly treasurer of the Vit-O-Net corporation, manufacturers of magnetic pads and blankets, committed suicide by hanging himself to a tree in the rear of his home at 9544 South Hoyne avenue, early this morning. His family said he had been despondent because of financial losses. His wife, Hazel, and his brother-in-law, Gurney Brownelle, 9201 South Marshfield avenue, found the body after they had become alarmed over his absence, and started a search.

Daughter, 17, Tells of Family Affairs.

For 24 years Mary and Rudolph Beckman lived together as man and wife. Yesterday the middle aged couple, the parents of eight children, seven of whom are living, were married before Judge Joseph A. Graber in the Domestic Relations court.

No honeymoon ensued. Instead, the 48 year old bride and the 55 year old bridegroom returned to the home Beckman had recently abandoned at 4134 North McVickers avenue, and Mrs. Beckan said to Katherine, 17 year old daughter: "Hurry now, fix me some lunch. I have to go to work."

"She doesn't feel very happy about it," Beckman explained in an aside, "because all these years she's been after me to get married in a church. But she'll come 'round. Everything will be O. K."

How Marriage Came About.

The marriage came about in this way. Mrs. Beckman charged, in the Domestic Relations court, that since their separation several months ago her husband, then living at 7029 South Paulina street, contributed no money to her support.

"How long have you been married?" asked Assistant State's Attorney Otto B. Steiskal.

Mrs. Beckman produced a paper, yellowed with age, from her purse.

"This is a marriage license. Where's the marriage certificate?" he asked.

"That's all we ever had," the mother of seven children replied.

Married in Court.

The court and Prosecutor Stieskal each contributed $1.50 for the purchase of a marriage license and, in the company of a policeman, Beckman went to obtain one. Judge Graber performed the ceremony. Beckman told the court that the spring factory where he had been employed for 16 years is operating on a part time basis and his pay is scant.

In the McVickers avenue house, which Beckman built 12 years ago but the ownership of which he since has lost, Katherine told another story.

"Mother said when dad got the license 24 years ago that he told her that was enough," she said, talking as she ironed. "Then after two of us were born my dad's sister visited my mother and she said they weren't legally married. Mother didn't want the neighbors to know so she didn't get married then.

"Ever since I can remember they've quarreled about it, though," she said. "Then my dad, who in the old days was a bartender, began drinking. He still does. He doesn't give mother much money. She's had him put in jail, but they always let him out right away.

"When we were little my mother always worked scrubbing floors. Then we got older and got jobs. Now my brother, Rudolph, who is 21, is out of work. There are two younger than I. And one sister isn't working. And I was let out in July. I made $9 a week as a file clerk in a loop store. Now mother's gone back to scrubbing floors. She gets $12 a week, in the same store, and my sister gets $12 there as an autometer operator."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Oct. 23.—"Brrr!" shivered 1,600 cabbies and taxi drivers in Rome two days ago. Many of them had put on their heavy overcoats. Cold weather came early to the Italian capital this year. But Roman municipal regulations will not officially recognize cold weather until Nov. 1. Until then cabbies and chauffeurs, it is decreed.

The cabbies refused. When they appeared in their dark heavy coats traffic police stopped them and levied fines. They shivered and protested.

Today the law relented. The municipality of Rome sent this paradoxial communication to the drivers of public vehicles: "It is strictly forbidden to wear heavy overcoats until Nov. 1, but you are permitted to wear them."

New York, Oct. 22.—[Special.]—That Edison died form starvation, resultating from the lack of sufficient protein in his food during the last two years of his life, was the view expressed by Dr. Nikola Tesla, the inventor, who was a close friend of Edison.

"According to previous reports," Dr. Tesla said, "Edison lived for the last two or three years exclusively on milk, consuming eight glasses a day, not quite enough.

"Still he could get along. Unfortunately he reduced his milk consumption to one-half, or four glasses, on which no fully developed human being can exist.

Soviet to Honor Edison.

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Arthur Walsh, vice president of the Edison Industries, Inc., announced today the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics through representatives in the United States, would place a wreath on the grave of Thomas A. Edison late today on behalf of the Soviet Academy of Science.

SCOTCH SINGER ARRIVES FOR HER DEBUT IN OPERA

Noel Eadie, the Scotch girl who is to make her debut in the Chicago Civic opera this season, arrived on the Twentieth Century of the New York Central yesterday. She was surprised to learn that Charles Hackett, operatic senor, had been in the next car and she didn't know it.

Last winter Noel Eadie gave London's Covent Garden a treat when she demonstrated that she could go about as high up the scale as any one in operatic history. She told upon her arrival how she and her husband were packing last August for a holiday when she received a wire from Herbert Witherspoon of the Chicago opera asking her to meet him in Paris for a tryout. She was heard there that night and hired.

Mr. Hackett, accompanied by Mrs. Hackett and their children, Joan and Charles, had spent the summer in the Mediterranean and climbing the Bavarian Alps.

Woman Keeps Foshay Jury Deadlocked Seven Days

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 22.—(AP)—A woman, Mrs. Genevieve A. Clark, Minneapolis, who refuses to change her mind despite the entreaties and arguments of eleven men, today was revealed as the central figure in a deadlocked jury. The group completed its seventh day of deliberation in the trial of W. B. Foshay and six associates on mail fraud charges without reporting a verdict. Whether Mrs. Clark favors conviction or acquittal was not revealed.

170 MORE POLICE TO WALK BEATS UNDER NEW PLAN

Mayor Approves System of Seven Inspectors.

Changes in the patrol wagon and telephone operator systems of the police department which will release 170 policemen for street patrol duty were submitted to Mayor Cermak yesterday and approved by him.

JAMES P. ALLMAN.

The changes are contingent upon the establishment of a system of inspectors to supervise groups of police districts. Police Commissioner James P. Allman said that six inspectors and a chief inspector to whom they will report will be selected soon from the present list of captains.

Commissioner Allman, with Bruce Smith, police expert, and Elmer T. Stevens, chairman of the citizens' police committee, presented the recommendations to the mayor.

Explains Inspector System.

The police inspectors, Commissioner Allman said, will not have command of the districts in their division, but will act only as inspecting officers. They will receive the reports of captains, handle some of the reports themselves, and refer others to the chief inspector, whose duty it will be to take much of the departmental detail off the shoulders of the police commissioner.

Six divisional headquarters, two each on the north, south, and west sides, will be established soon, with an inspector detailed at each place. Thereafter all patrolmen on beats and all district squads will make their hourly telephone reports to the division headquarters, instead of to their district station, as they do now.

Change in Phone System.

At present each station has one or two policemen operators on each shift, handling the hourly reports. These posts will be abolished, and clerks stationed at division headquarters will handle all the calls. If a district station wishes to communicate with one of its men he will be connected with the station desk sergeant when he calls the division headquarters.

That system will release 110 police operators for patrol duty. Those men will be placed in uniform, Commissioner Allman said, and put on the street. The change will make available for street patrols man power costing the city $290,000 a year, Mr. Smith said.

Sixty more men will be released for street duty by cutting district patrol wagon crews from three to two men. Under the reorganization plan, station patrol wagons will never leave their districts. Each division headquarters will have a transfer wagon, which will handle all prisoners going to and from courts, or being transferred from one station to another.

The reorganization proposals approved yesterday by the mayor are part of the general plan for modernizing the city's police procedure on which Commissioner Allman and Mr. Smith, who finished a survey of the department last year, are working.

Commissioner Allman said he had made no decision on what captains will be promoted to inspectorships, or at what stations the division headquarters will be placed. Those details will be settled soon, however, he said.

U. S. Raises Postage Rates to Some Foreign Countries

Postmaster Lueder yesterday announced increases in the postal rates to certain foreign countries. The new rates apply to Bermuda, the Dutch West Indies, New Zealand, and to the British possessions in Central and South America and the West Indies. The rate for letters of one ounce or less will be increased from two to five cents with an additional three cents being charged for each additional ounce. The rate on single post cards will be increased from two to three cents and for double post cards, from four to six cents.

GIRL MISSING IN COURT; HALT MURDER TRIAL

Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday halted the trial for murder of Thomas Calabrese, 47 years old, who asserted that the slaying of his next door neighbor, James H. Hill, was done "to avenge my daughter's honor," when it was discovered that the girl, Rose Calabrese, 18 years old, had disappeared from the courtroom.

ROSE CALABRESE.

Police were instructed to find her and another witness who failed to appear in court. If they are found, the trial will be resumed today. The other witness was Tony Ferrone, owner of a newsstand at Neva avenue and Harrison street, an eyewitness of the shooting.

Ferrone's brother reported to the state's attorney's office that "Tony said he was going blind and would not be back until he got his eyesight back."

Police Sergeant Leonard Burch, who arrested Calabrese, testified that he asked him why he shot Hill, and that Calabrese replied:

"He raped my daughter. Here's the gun I did it with."

ATTORNEYS PUT O. K. ON SCHOOL PAY ROLL PLAN

Officials to Offer Tax Paper to Banks Today.

Legal approval was given yesterday to the plan to obtain approximately $7,000,000 to apply on the long overdue salaries of Chicago teachers and school employés.

Chapman and Cutler, bond attorneys, delivered an opinion yesterday afternoon to former Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch, chairman of the committee which formulated the plan. The opinion held that it would be legal to raise the interest rate on tax warrants now held in the city treasury from 4 to 6 per cent, to increase their saleability.

To Go Before Bankers.

One thing remains to be done to put the plan into operation. That is the sale of the warrants. That will be broached to a group of bankers today by a committee of city officials.

The meeting will be held in the office of George M. Reynolds, chairman of the executive committee of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company. Other representatives of the banks to be present will be: Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank; Solomon A. Smith, president of the Northern Trust company; a representative of the Harris Trust and Savings bank; and Attorney Alfred S. Austrian, counsel for the Continental bank.

The committee appointed by Mayor Cermak at Wednesday's council meeting to represent the city consists of Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], who is chairman, Barnet Hodes [7th], and James B. Waller [43d], Controller Szymczak, Corporation Counsel Sexton, and Sewell L. Avery, chairman of the mayor's advisory committee.

Seek Sale to Taxpayers.

The city hall committee will not confine its request to the bankers today to the purchase of tax warrants by banks alone. Its members said they would ask that the banks get in touch with all the large taxpayers of the city who are among their customers and urge those companies and individuals to purchase the warrants from their surplus funds in quantities sufficient to pay their 1930 taxes when they fall due, probably next February.

The Chicago Surface lines have already indicated that they will cooperate in such a plan. Attorney Harry P. Weber went before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday and obtained his permission for the board of managers of the surface lines to purchase sufficient 1930 tax warrants to meet their taxes.

The amount of warrants to be purchased will not be known until the board of managers meets next week, Mr. Weber said. The tax money has already been set aside in a reserve fund, and he pointed out to Judge Wilkerson that if invested in tax warrants it would earn a higher rate of interest than it does lying idle in banks.

Details of Relief Plan.

The school relief plan contemplates the sale of $6,985,000 worth of 1930 educational fund tax warrants of the school board, now held in the city's aggregate of funds. The money received from that sale would then be used for the purchase of 1931 school board tax warrants, in order to give the board cash to pay employés who have had no cash payments since April.

Warrants in anticipation of 1930 taxes are preferred by investors to 1931 warrants because taxes for the redemption of the former will be available shortly after the first of the year. One technical objection to the warrant sale plan, raised several days ago, was that if the interest on the 1930 warrants were raised, it might be necessary to issue new warrants, purchasers of which would have to wait until holders of all prior warrants of the 1930 issue had been paid off.

Official Answers Objection.

This objection is groundless, it was stated yesterday by Victor S. Petterson, deputy city controller. In 1930 the city and other taxing bodies raised the interest on a majority of the $74,000,000 worth of warrants which were sold by a citizens' committee to lift local governments out of their financial troubles.

In that case the old warrants were delivered, and the increase in their interest rate was evidenced by coupons attached to them. The coupon plan was approved at the time by Chapman and Cutler, files of the controller's office show.

Leiter Estate Pays $63,286 Taxes on Property in Loop

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Levi Z. Leiter estate gave two checks—one for $41,761.07 and the other for $21,525.78—to County Treasurer McDonough yesterday as payment of the 1929 taxes on the property at the southwest corner of Clark and Madison streets. This total of $63,286.25 represents not only taxes but also $3,583.60 in interest accrued since the taxes became delinquent on May 15.

JOS. B. M'DONOUGH.

A few days ago E. A. Bronson of the Leiter estate wrote THE TRIBUNE that it had paid all of its taxes, payable by it, but explained that it had some property leased where the lessee was obligated to pay the taxes.

$474,613 Now Collected.

With yesterday's collection an aggregate of $474,613.75 has been collected from fourteen owners of large income producing properties since THE TRIBUNE urged such owners to pay at least part of their taxes, even if they desired to contest in court the part which they deemed unfair and illegal. Per owner the payments have averaged $33,900 each.

The owners of approximately 132,000 parcels of Cook county real estate are fighting their 1929 taxes in court. Many of them have not paid a dollar in taxes and some of them are large properties with solvent owners.

Twenty-two of these objectors are on the County court call of Judge Jarecki for this morning. State's Attorney Swanson claims that these 22 owe $1,763,827.59 in 1929 taxes, an average per objector of $80,100 each. The prosecutor claims that these objectors owe considerably more on their 1928 taxes. The state's attorney's list of these objectors was printed in THE TRIBUNE Thursday morning.

Promises to Pay Part.

Among the delinquent tax cases heard yesterday by Judge Jarecki was that of Lewis Podiofski, 4823-49 Addison street. It was charged that this owner owes $17,926 in taxes spread over the last four years. Mr. Podiofski promised Judge Jarecki yesterday that he will pay "a substantial part" of his taxes at an early date. The judge expects the money today.

In another case Judge Jarecki gave the county collector judgment for $27,025.51 in 1929 taxes on the North Park Building corporation. This company has an eleven story apartment hotel at Clark street, Ogden and North Park avenues. The objector to the tax, according to the collector's records, is John F. Jelke, who is also shown as objecting to the valuation before the board of assessors.

The state's attorney's records show that this property owes $23,269.31 on its 1927 taxes and $22,778.64 on its 1928 taxes.

For assessing purposes the property is valued at $1,161,230, and Assistant State's Attorney James Clancy was prepared yesterday to prove that valuation is not unreasonable, but the attorneys for the property, O'Bryan and Bishop, did not appear in court.

On this apartment hotel the tax officials have obtained a circular, dated May 11, 1925, which offered a bond issue on the property of $1,500,000. This circular says that Fred S. Oliver appraised the real estate at $520,940; Joseph A. Holpuch, R. K. Ellenberger, and Henry Paschen valued the building at $1,538,333, and Albert Pick & Co. the furnishings and equipment at $400,000—a total appraised value of $2,459,273.

To Contain 447 Rooms.

This circular said that the structure was to be of Italian Renaissance, cover 26,000 square feet, and contain 193 apartments of two, three and four rooms each, a total of 447 rooms.

The building property which fronts 175 feet on North Park avenue, 93 feet on Ogden avenue, and 176 feet on Clark street, is, as the circular recites, "directly across the street from Lincoln park."

The circular also says that in this fireproof structure "every convenience for comfort and privacy of the most ultra-modern furnished apartment hotel will be provided, including silverware, dishes, linen, running ice water, all kitchen equipment, maid service and mechanical refrigeration."

There Is a Building.

One of the objections to the 1929 taxes, which seeks to give Judge Jarecki the impression there is no building on the property, reads:

"Because said real estate was, through fraud, accident, or mistake assessed for improvements made thereon, when, in fact, no improvements had been made thereon for many years prior thereto."

The board of assessors valued the building alone, for taxing purposes, at $1,161,230; and a recent recheck of the valuation brought a report to Judge Jarecki yesterday that no error had been made. The assessors asserted there is a building on the property and that the assessed valuation placed upon it is in harmony with other tax valuations on the books.

U. S. AGENTS DRAIN 166 BARRELS OF BEER AFTER RAID

Dry agents caused a temporary drought on the south side late yesterday when they raided a warehouse at 2516 Lime street and confiscated 166 barrels of beer, all ready for delivery.

The beer, it is believed, belonged to Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, chief purveyor of wet goods on the south side. Without any formality, the raiders carted the barrels into the alley and smashed them open, while a large crowd gaped as the alleged O'Donnell product flowed foaming towards the gutter.

Two other raids were made. In a saloon in the rear of a restaurant at 515 South Wells street the operatives arrested Frank Lucke and Victor Poloczolo. At 711 West 43d street agents seized some beer and whisky and arrested William Fox. Charles Vinci and Earl Kennedy were stopped in their car at 33d and Halsted streets when agents noticed a can of alcohol in the machine.

GOVERNOR MAY CALL REVENUE SESSION NOV. 2

Commission Will Report to Emmerson Today.

nary report which the delegation will hand Gov. Emmerson does not answer that question, but some of the men who went to Springfield are said to be prepared to make an oral estimate, if the governor requests the information.

The "guess" of certain members of the legislature is that the plan as a whole will boost the tax burden, but that is largely based upon the secrecy which the commission has thrown around its deliberations.

Members of the commission have said privately that its procedure, including executive sessions, was copied from that of the citizens' committee which recommended the remedial legislation of 1930. That legislation increased the tax burden. It was rushed through and its sponsors still believe it would have worked if the property owners had paid their taxes in sufficient numbers. But they didn't.

Little information has been made public on what there is in the present plan which will persuade the property owners to pay taxes assessed against them. Many owners now feel that their taxes are being spent extravagantly or wasted outright. One of the men who went to Springfield last night gave an indication of what is proposed to get the public to pay taxes by this sentence:

"We have gone the legal limit in relieving taxes on real estate."

The Commission's Program.

Part of the plan is an income tax, ranging in amount from one to six per cent of income. That payment, it is planned, will be an offset for real estate taxes.

Another relief for real estate is a proposed tax on tobacco, cigarets, and perhaps amusement tickets.

A third measure proposed is to "lift" a part of the 1930 taxes, which are payable Jan. 1, 1932. This plan provides that the taxes for state purposes, between 6 and 7 per cent of any tax bill, shall be levied and collected, also that there shall be levies for bonds and interest. Altogether, it is said that the proposal is to levy about 55 per cent of the taxes for 1930, the remainder to be paid in five annual installments, beginning with the 1931 tax bill.

This plan was explained at length by Mr. Keeler to leading members of the Chicago Real Estate board on Wednesday. This board has desired a plan which would permit the deferred taxes to be paid in 20 annual installments.

The board asked for a written statement of the plan, or a copy of the bills which would put it into effect. Until these are obtained the real estate representatives said yesterday that they have no criticism to offer, but at first glance—in their opinion—they thought they saw as many legal objections to the commission's plan as had been offered to the board's program.

In addition, in the opinion of one real estate man, the commission's plan would make it impossible for any one to get a loan on real estate until he settled in full for his 1930 taxes. The real estate interests have other objections to the commission plan, but are withholding comment for publication until they get the written proposal.

Silence On Cost Cutting.

At first the commission started out on an aggressive plan to cut the costs of government. It was thought that such a program would aid in persuading property owners to pay their taxes, but nothing has been heard of that feature for nearly two months. No information has been received on what the commission proposes along that line, except that it will recommend that public officials cut out waste and extravagance.

Some members of the delegation that went to Springfield are anxious to get Gov. Emmerson's view on the recommendations, particularly whether he thinks the legislature will adopt them. If the governor expresses disapproval of particular recommendations, it is said the commission will later meet to consider his suggestions.

CUTMORE DENIED COUNTY HEARING ON ASSESSMENT

Commissioners Refuse to Read Charges.

The county board finance committee refused yesterday to hear Harry S. Cutmore's charges that the assessors' new appraisal system allows wholesale graft and will increase the taxes of the small home owner. The committee then voted to appropriate $25,000 for the board of assessors. Charles E. Fox, director of appraisals for the assessors, asserted that this sum was necessary to continue the quadrennial revaluation work.

Not all the committee members, however, were in favor of ignoring the charges made by Cutmore, who formerly was chief appraiser for the assessors and who directed the 1928 reassessment. A motion to read his formal letter to the county board was debated for 90 minutes before it was voted down.

Miss Sears Urges Reading.

"It is the duty of this board to familiarize itself with all the information relative to the facts which Mr. Cutmore will present," Commissioner Amelia Sears informed the committee. "We can not afford to sweep aside Mr. Cutmore's letter. The members of this board should lay aside all prejudice and try to get to the bottom of this situation."

"But this is just a controversy between Cutmore and the assessors," Commissioner George A. Miller said. "We've no part in it. Besides what can we do about it?"

"Well," resumed Miss Sears, "there must be some basis of fact beneath all this. Mr. Cutmore completed the reassessment. Certainly he knows something of what he says."

Busse Raps Reassessment.

"The reassessment," commented Commissioner William Busse, "was worse than the assessment made in 1927. I know from my own personal experience."

"But, Mr. Busse," Miss Sears replied, "no one man's personal experience as a taxpayer is adequate. You forget that there were 1,160,000 parcels of property in this county beside your own. The man who assessed it all has a great store of scientific knowledge which the board should share."

"O, if there is scientific knowledge in Mr. Cutmore's letter I've no objection to having it read," interposed Mrs. Glenn E. Plumb. "Is that what it's like?"

But no one answered her question and a vote was taken on the motion of Commissioner Peter M. Kelly, who asked that the letter be read.

"Because I think this is a personal scrap between Cutmore and the assessors I vote no," Commissioner Busse declared as the roll was called. Commissioners Homer Byrd, Mrs. E. F. Fleming, Maurice Kavanagh, George Miller, and Charles Weber supported him.

4 YOUTHS HELD TO GRAND JURY FOR 90C ROBBERY

Four youths who held up William Banko, 3504 Buffalo avenue, and took 90 cents from him, were held to the grand jury in bonds of $10,000 each on charges of robbery yesterday by Municipal Judge Leon Edelman. The prisoners are: William Kubicki, 19 years old, 3430 Baker avenue; Harry Jamrock, 18 years old, 3507 Brandon avenue; Leo Szyncak, 18 years old, 3361 Burley avenue, and Chester Anczak, 18 years old, 3528 Buffalo avenue. Mrs. Francis Kubicki, mother of one of the prisoners, was sent to the Bridewell to serve out a $25 fine when she admitted threatening Philip Novak, 15 years old, who testified that he had been offered a 15 cents bribe to withhold his testimony against her son.

HOOVER MAY ASK LUXURY TAX TO CUT U. S. DEFICIT

Levy Likely to Hit Radios, Autos and Stamps.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—(Special.)—A selective sales tax which would hit luxuries, but exclude necessities such as food, rents, fuel and clothing, bulks large on the administration's tentative tax revision program, treasury officials disclosed today.

While President Hoover has not announced officially that he would recommend an increase in taxes when congress convenes, administration officials indicated today that steps would be taken to increase the revenues and trim down a prospective two billion dollar deficit for the current year.

It was disclosed today that treasury experts have been studying the entire revenue raising field for several weeks in an attempt to work out a program which would bring in the revenues needed to balance federal expenditures, at least by 1934, with the least interference with business recovery. Today it was said that the imposition of a tax on such articles as automobiles, stamps, radios and other articles whose sales it was thought would not be too greatly affected by increased taxation now is looked upon with favor by treasury officials.

Increase in Surtaxes.

Luxuries and semi-luxuries would be required to pay a stamp or excise tax if the new program wins congressional approval. The treasury program is designed to broaden the present revenue production base. It is expected to include an increased surtax on incomes above $100,000, although it was said that the amounts to be derived from such a tax would not be as large as many anticipate, due to the decreased number of taxpayers in these high brackets.

The treasury program is expected to go to the White House shortly after the termination of the visit to the United States of Premier Laval. The size of the tax increase suggested to congress is expected to depend upon business conditions thirty days from now, the European situation, the President's success in trimming a total of 300 millions from the departmental budget estimates for 1933, and the prospects for the passage of new legislation calling for increased appropriations by the new congress.

Disclosure of the treasury's views toward a selective sales tax aroused considerable opposition on Capitol hill. Many senators and representatives asserted that passage of any kind of a sales tax would be impossible. The news that the treasury was studying the tax problem in an effort to bring federal revenues closer to federal expenditures had the immediate result of stimulating congressional interest in taxation matters.

Rome to Move for Tax Boost.

It was said today that regardless of whether the administration urges a tax boost, a move to increase taxes is certain to be initiated in the house, where all revenue producing bills originate. It also was made known that President Hoover, in his message to congress, is expected to outline the need of increased revenues even if he makes no direct recommendation for a tax increase.

The federal deficit today stood at just in excess of 600 million dollars. Some treasury officials estimate it will approach two billions by the end of the year if no move to increase revenue is made. Next year's deficit, except in event of a big business upturn, threatens to run above the billion dollar mark. Treasury officials now favor making a beginning toward balancing the budget this year, bringing revenue and receipts closer together in 1933, and balancing the budget in 1934. They hold the American tax system needs revision to stabilize revenues through bad and good times.

Might Increase Tobacco Tax.

To a limited extent, it was pointed out today, the government already imposes a sales tax on tobacco. It is possible this tax might be raised, officials said, although such a step was considered unlikely. Attention was called to the circumstance that state taxes on gasoline have not decreased the use of this commodity. The belief was expressed that there are many articles which could be taxed without injury to the producing industry or without much increase to the ultimate consumer.

It was suggested as an example that there might be a half cent tax on cartons of matches.

The question of resumption of the tax on motion picture admissions is being studied, it was said.

Candidates Ask More Home Rule for Cities of Illinois

Opposition to the tendency of legislatures to control city governments was urged before 300 members of the Illinois Municipal league in Waukegan last night. The theme of discussion was home rule. The league is holding its 18th annual convention in Waukegan.

The evening meeting was one in which candidates and suggested aspirants for the governorship, could indicate their platforms. Among the speakers besides Mayor Cermak of Chicago, who espoused no candidate, were Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom, a Republican candidate, and Dr. Charles M. Thompson, dean of the college of commerce of the University of Illinois, a suggested Democratic hope.

Horner Sends Statement.

Although he was unable to attend the meeting, Judge Henry Horner of the Cook county Probate court, mentioned as a Democratic candidate, sent a paper outlining his views on home rule for municipalities.

Judge Horner said in his letter that "cities can best govern and control home affairs," and declared that the legislature was continually curtailing powers of the cities whereas it should add to those powers.

Attorney General Carlstrom also announced himself in favor of municipal home rule, asserting that he was opposed to the increasing army of federal men doing state work, and the increasing army of state men doing city work.

Dean Thompson Speaks.

Dean Thompson followed him, explaining that he was not "an active aspirant" for any office, and expressing himself in favor of giving more power to municipalities. Mayor Cermak asserted that some way must be found to stop the legislature from assuming all city rights.

Today's program of the convention includes more discussions, one by William H. Malone of Park Ridge, an avowed candidate for governor. Officers of the league also will be elected.

INDICT LAWYER IN POLICE JOB GRAFT INQUIRY

Attorney Wilbur McGinness, former employé of the civil service commission, who is accused of taking money from policemen and firemen on the promise of obtaining promotions for them, was indicted by the grand jury yesterday. Two indictments were returned before Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Circuit court.

Two witnesses were reported to have testified before the grand jury. Their testimony was supported by receipts introduced by Assistant State's Attorney Harry Gabel, it was said.

Thomas Durso, deputy sheriff, who has taken the examination to become a policeman, was reported to have told the jury that he paid $30 to McGinness in return for the attorney's promise to place him among the first 100 in the list of successful applicants for police jobs. James Daley, a city fireman, was reported to have testified that he paid a total of $250 in two payments to McGinness in return for a promise of a preferred position on the police list.

McGinness' sister, Mrs. Mary Flynn, presented a petition for a writ of habeas corpus earlier in the day, but Judge Fisher dismissed the action when Assistant State's Attorney Euclid Taylor said that the matter had been taken up by the grand jury.

POLICE ON WATCH AT FUNERAL RITES FOR MATT KOLB

Matt Kolb, who was shot to death in the Club Morton, a roadhouse in Morton Grove, early Sunday morning, was buried yesterday. Curious throngs crowded the mortuary at 1033 North California avenue, where the services were held. The widow, Mrs. Florence Dillon Kolb, and the slain racketeer's divorced wife, Mrs. Alma Kolb, sat in the mourners' seat. Burial was at St. Joseph's cemetery. Several detectives attended the funeral. Carl Fontana and Martin O'Leary, two gangsters arrested on Wednesday night in a drive by Chief of Detectives Shoemaker on known hoodlums, were held last night as suspects in the murder.

WINS TIME FOR RESTITUTION.

Harry B. Thayer, 34 years old, 5330 Cornell avenue, arraigned before Judge Matthew D. Martigan yesterday on a charge of passing bad checks totaling $675, was given until Monday to make restitution.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE TAX STRIKERS.

Governments cannot function without revenue. That is so obvious that it ought not to need saying and would not be said at this time were there not active in this county organizations and individuals seeking on one pretext or another to induce property owners to withhold their taxes. Failure to pay taxes must result in the bankruptcy of local governments, the impoverishment of school teachers and other public servants, and if persisted in can lead within a relatively short time to civil disorder and a state of anarchy in which no man's life or property will be safe.

That is the objective toward which the don't-pay-your-taxes propagandists are moving, whether they know it or not. It is noteworthy that the more responsible men in the community, however hard pressed they may be for funds, are giving little or no support to the tax strike.

These men pay their taxes not for the sheer delight of handing over their money but because they can see beyond their noses. They know that the breakdown of government can be far more costly to property owners than any tax payment that has been imposed. They know, too, that the credit of any man or any corporation which does not pay its taxes is bound to suffer. And this is precisely as it should be. Those who do not pay are plainly irresponsible, unless they haven't the money to meet their tax bills. If they haven't the money they are not good credit risks, and if they have they have displayed a willingness to live parasitically at the expense of fellow citizens who do honor their obligations.

Of course there are many taxpayers who are convinced that their property has been incorrectly appraised and that their taxes are accordingly too high. The proper procedure in these circumstances is to pay what is regarded as the correct tax and to contest the rest in court. That is the method which is being pursued by many taxpayers upon the advice of able lawyers, and there can be no objection to it if the complaints are well founded.

As for the men who are conducting the campaigns of tax resistance, it is for them to explain why they are not to be considered undesirable citizens, racketeers or worse.

THE LEAGUE IN ACTION.

The shifting trends and delays in the league of nations' handling of the Manchurian affair are giving concern to the ardent advocates of that institution. We doubt that they surprise any European chancellery, but for those, mostly Americans, who view the league as an insurer of international peace and justice the proceedings can hardly be satisfactory. That American leaguists will abate their devotion is not to be expected. Their anxiety is lest public opinion will note the facts and draw conclusions not favorable to their propaganda.

This, it is to be hoped, will be the result, a much needed check upon the recent drift of our foreign affairs. The normal devotion to peace and innate idealism of the American people, our optimism and our inexperience in world politics, incline us to the acceptance of any scheme which seems to promise peace and concord. We need no encouragement in that direction. We do need understanding of the forces which control international action. Especially we need to realize that even though the league of nations were a disinterested agency of international justice and not what it is, a complex of national interests, the task of adjudicating claims, of arriving at justice or even at a safe expediency is far more dubious and difficult than our league champions seem to think.

But the league council's hesitations and delays are not chiefly the result of this inherent difficulty. They are the result of the inevitable play of national interests, which it is folly to expect the council to be free from. It is folly to expect that representatives sent by governments to sit at the council table at Geneva are transformed by the process and leave at home their nationality and all it implies. That is the implication of the leaguist propaganda, maintained by political preachers and pacifists. But the council in fact is a projection of the governments that compose it and must register their wills. That primarily is why the council cannot act with the swiftness and decisiveness its impatient champions demand of it in the Manchurian imbroglio. Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy each has interests in the far east which qualify their policy and complicate their decisions. Each has stakes both in China and Japan, and the balancing of these interests is no less difficult at Geneva than at home. It is a choice of expediencies and the choice will be made by the home governments through their representatives in the council. The French representative, indeed, is the French foreign minister. The Italian representative is the Italian foreign minister. These men have not dual personalities.

Such moral enthusiasm as American league advocates have raised and organized among church people is possible only because the nature and functioning of the league are not realized. League propaganda can only be effective in the United States by ignoring what the league is. The league has uses, but they are not what the advocates of American adherence are offering us as an inducement. The proceedings of the league council in the Japanese-Chinese controversy will do much to deflate the pretensions which support league propaganda in this country.

MEMORANDUM FOR OUR DIPLOMATS.

The report that Premier Laval is in this country to propose, among other things, a 50 per cent cut in the war debts has been officially denied. The report was published in Le Matin, a responsible and usually a well informed newspaper. The denial is not altogether convincing. Perhaps it means merely that the French do not insist on a 50 per cent reduction; they will be willing to take less or more.

The last time the French discussed their debts with our representatives billions were taken from the American taxpayers. We settled for 40 cents on the dollar, after we were told that the settlement represented the most that France could pay. How far wrong our calculation was is indicated by subsequent events. France today has a quarter of the world's gold stock.

Our corn fed diplomats who were traded out of billions of dollars only a few years ago seem to be in some danger of making further sacrifices for the benefit of the taxpayers of France. France's capacity to pay may be gauged by the fact that in recent weeks some $600,000,000 in gold has left this country and most of it has gone to France. If M. Laval wants the debts reduced further it would be helpful to know what France proposes to do with all her gold.

THE PARING KNIFE ON THE NAVY.

The first protest against the navy reduction program has been made to President Hoover by a Philadelphia delegation. In substance and purpose it justifies the forecast of what would happen. The Philadelphians object to the suspension of work on the navy hospital there. The line of greatest resistance is the line which has the least to do with the primary reason for the navy. When economy hits the least necessary expenditures it encounters the strongest political entrenchment of local advantages. It is easier to put battleships out of commission and reduce personnel than to close navy yards. The navy on land is surrounded by political and protective wire entanglement. The navy at sea has no special interests to protect it. The navy experts in the service are silenced and politics has little concern for the fighting ship afloat.

It is to be feared that navy cuts will be forced into the essentials of the fleet. Economy, when it has made its compromises with politics, will spare the fat and cut the muscles.

Editorial of the Day

THE PLEASURES OF SURGERY.

[Boston Transcript.]

It has heretofore been the general idea that the pleasures of surgery, save as they were enjoyed in retrospect, were limited to the surgeons and the nurses. But we are informed on expert authority that this is a mistaken view. It is a most unfortunate mistake, and one that should be corrected immediately. Consider the statement of the case by Dr. Edward Martin before the congress of surgeons in New York. He said: "There are some thousands of people in this country who will die within this year because they do not know that surgery is both safe and pleasant." Needless deaths and a pleasure missed!

As things are, surgery has added much to the joy of life for those who have submitted to it. They have been provided with a never failing topic of conversation. Sometimes, to be sure, these reminiscences have not been altogether a source of interest and pleasure for the listeners, but the great enjoyment of the narrators may be counted as sustaining the contention that the pleasures of the surgical operation, as pictured in memory's fondest dreams, outweigh the boredom of those who try to be good listeners.

Modern science has recently made possible no little addition to the delights of surgery. Local anesthetics are now used in operations that were once regarded as serious, not to say dangerous. So while the operation is in progress the patient may enjoy it. No longer is his the rôle of the outsider, as it was when he was far removed in mind if not in body by the use of ether. Now he may discuss the progress of the repair work if the surgeon is one of the talkative kind. If not, perhaps an obliging nurse will keep him informed concerning the alterations which are being made in his anatomy. Under such circumstances, a surgical operation should indeed be an occasion much enjoyed by all.

THE CREAM-LINE ON MILK.

THERE are two processes connected with the production and marketing of milk which have to do with the safety of the product—one is pasteurization and the other clarification. This statement assumes that the cows are healthy and that the milking is done in accordance with the best practices. Pasteurization is of major health importance. Clarification, consisting of the removal of gross dirt, is also worth while from the health standpoint. Neither has come into universal use for several reasons, one of which is the effect of both processes on the body of the milk. Clarification, in that it tends to disperse clumps of fat globules, changes the body slightly. Pasteurization changes it considerably.

The housewife thinks having a fat standard and making Babcock tests is all foolishness. She knows good milk when she sees it. She goes by the cream-line and the body. If these are all right the milk is rich. If they are not, it is poor. A person who pays attention to any other method of judging is to be pitied. And that is the common opinion.

As a matter of fact, the housewife's method of judging is misleading and, what is more to the point, it can be manipulated to mislead at will. For instance, the trade has long known how to change the body by a process known as liming. It consists in the addition of a solution of some preparation of lime. Another method is to age the milk at the right temperature.

Dr. C. J. Babcock has made a study of a number of factors which affect the body of milk and cream. Dr. Babcock is with the dairy division, and his study is issued as a technical bulletin of the United States department of agriculture. Babcock agrees with the housewife that increasing the amount of cream in milk improves its body and gives a better cream-line. If this were the only factor—improving the body—the housewife would be all to the good. Unfortunately, there are more than a dozen others, and in the light of these possibilities the milkman is in a position to make a monkey out of the housewife. Two milks or two creams having exactly the same proportion of butterfat can be made to have a good body or a poor one, a fine cream-line or one that would cause it to be in disfavor, by the manner in which it is handled.

Pasteurization makes it have a poorer body and a poorer cream-line. The woman who goes by these signs thinks the milk was watered or skimmed and the milkman is cheating. Clarification has somewhat the same effect, though in lesser degree. Ageing improves the body. One way for a milkman to make a housewife think she is getting a rich product is to sell her old milk.

By manipulating the temperature a milkman can modify the body considerably. Acidifying has a slight effect. Alkalinizing has more. Keeping milk in cold storage improves its body. There are other factors that modify body and cream-line. The housewife needs a new test.

A MISTAKEN BELIEF.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—An alien entered this country in 1906 and declared his intention to become a citizen and shortly afterward separated from his family and later died without becoming a citizen. His son grew up under the impression that his father was a citizen and swore to that fact before the steamship inspector when applying for an able seaman's certificate. Later he learned that his father was not a citizen. He is now married and wishes to obain citizenship papers. Can he be prosecuted for perjury under the circumstances? What should he do to right the error? C. L. H.

Prosecutions for perjury for violating the naturalization law must be instituted within five years from the date of perjury. If he desires to become a citizen he should apply for naturalization by filing a declaration of intention and two years thereafter apply for citizenship.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Recently a bomb exploded at a motion picture theater in the vicinity of my home. The concussion from this bomb broke windows in a number of homes in the vicinity. What my neighbors and myself would like to know is whether we have any claim against the city for the damage to our property from this explosion. W. J. M.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

OF COURSE, THEY'VE GOT their own French phrases all learned by heart down in Washington to use when conversing with M. Laval. Naturally, "Oui, oui, oui," is their favorite, and every one will make so much use of it they'll wear it out. We used to say "oui, oui, oui," ourself a great deal in France when we were over there during the late guerre. Any American in France is prone to oui, oui, oui, a great many times in France when anything is said to him in French, because, while the French person may be talking about the weather, how to cook tripe in the Normandy style, or merely stating that Napoleon was the greatest man that every lived, they might also be asking, "How about having a little drink?" You can never tell when a Frenchman is going to slip in an observation about having a little drink. And if one non, non, nonned about the weather, how to cook tripe in the Normandy style, the fact that Napoleon was the greatest man that ever lived, then one might carelessly say non, non, non when the subject of removing the cork from a bottle of champagne or spilling a little brandy around was mentioned.

For that reason Americans in France are very careful to oui, oui, oui everything that is said to them in French from the moment they get off the boat at Le Havre or Brest or Bordeaux, or wherever it is they get off the boat. Safety first! The French are very voluble conversationalists and are quite liable to talk about a great many subjects all run together. But very often, even when they are speaking about the Revolution and Robespierre, the French colonial policy in Africa, Jeanne d'Arc, or the best place to dine on Montmartre, they are quite liable suddenly to switch the conversation and ask you what you'll have to drink.

Now, naturally, if all the French you know is oui, oui, oui, or non, non, non, of course you could make your conversation more varied and keep from becoming somewhat monotonous by alternating the thing; that is, after you have oui, oui, ouied for a while you can throw in a few non, non, nons for a while. Many do that and get a reputation for speaking French very fluently. But there is always the danger that you may say non, non, non at just the time the Frenchman shifts the conversation to a sudden invitation to have a drink. Which is simply heartbreaking when one finds it out afterwards. So it is that continually saying oui, oui, oui when speaking French has become a grave American fault and should be carefully guarded against in Washington. For M. Laval may say something about us guaranteeing the French security in the event of war or about canceling the war debt. In that case, if we followed our usual habit and said oui, oui, oui, it would not be so good. But if, on the other hand, M. Laval talked about modification of the Volstead act to permit American importation of French wine—now there—we should indeed be sorry if we picked out that moment to say non, non, non.

IN STRATFORD.

In this old town, by Avon's quiet stream,
Great Shakespeare dwelt, and built, of fact and dream,
His deathless plays. Within these simple walls
He sat and mused, and lo! dark castle halls,
Proud palaces and gruesome caves were there
To tell their tales of lords and ladies fair,
Of clowns and shepherds; fairies swarmed about;
Dread armies thronged and put their kings to rout;
And even witches hovered at his side
With presage dire; fair maidens loved and died;
And mad philosophers held forth with him
In argument of life; in battles grim
Brave men went down, while cruel lances gleamed—
Thus life passed by, while Shakespeare sat and dreamed.

ONE MAN out of every four in New York, so reports from Gotham state, is out of a job. Which merely proves that three out of every four men in New York belong to Tammany.

CHARLEY CURTIS, according to wild rumors knocking about all over the place, is to quit the vice presidencing business before Christmas to be the Bill Hays or the czar or something like that of the oil industry. And those very rude and impossible Democrats are snickering loudly and saying that all the Republican office holders ought to be forehanded, as Charley is said to be, and get some good job that will last longer than March 4, 1933.

ONE OF OUR news sheets yesterday in speaking of the anti-suicide advisory committee recently organized in Warsaw, Poland, headlined the story, "Suicide with Advice City Will Combat." Or, as we sometimes say, "Lena, throw the cow over the fence some hay."

THE WORLD is growing happier. The newspapers speak of "four jolly bandits who joked with their victims as they robbed them." It is indeed a sign that happy days have come again when the bandit who pokes a gun against your stomach and tells you to put 'em up tells you an amusing incident or a funny joke as he takes away your watch and your pocketbook. "Say," says the jolly bandit as he tickles you with a thirty-eight, "ask me who was that lady you saw me with last night." "Ouch!" you say. "Well, who was that lady I saw you with last night?" "Wait till I git yer diamond ring off yer finger. Now, then, this is going to be good. You'll just die a-laffin'. Why, that wasn't no lady, that was my wife. Ha, ha! Hain't that a scream?" They may be jolly bandits to some, but somehow they don't sound any funnier to us than the ordinary kind.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 23, 1915.

LONDON.—King George has issued the following appeal to his subjects: "At this grave moment in the struggle between my people and a highly organized enemy who has transgressed the laws of nations and changed the ordinance that binds civilized Europe together, I appeal to you. I rejoice in my empire's effort and I feel pride in the voluntary response from my subjects all over the world who have sacrificed home and fortune and life itself in order that another may not inherit the free empire which their ancestors and mine have built. I ask you to make good these sacrifices. The end is not in sight. More men, and yet more, are wanted to keep my armies in the field and through them to secure victory and an enduring peace. In ancient days the darkest moment has ever produced in men of our race the sternest resolve. I ask you, men of all classes, to come forward voluntarily and take your share in these fights. In freely responding to my appeal you will be giving your support to our brothers who for long months have nobly upheld Great Britain's past traditions and the glory of her arms."

LONDON.—The Austro-German-Bulgar vise is slowly but surely squeezing the life out of Serbia, if all the reports from the front may be believed, and they have not been denied from any quarter. The Anglo-French offensive in the south, reported this morning, appears to have crumpled. The Bulgars have driven the enemy back and have pursued them across the Vardar river.

OCTOBER 23, 1901.

LONDON.—An all British iron and steel corporation with a capital of $200,000,000 is being negotiated by an American promoter to stop the invasion of British territory by American manufacturers. The new combination will include the largest iron and steel manufacturers in Great Britain and will control the manufacture of steel rails in the United Kingdom. The American organizer is John R. Bartlett.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—All New Haven is preparing to welcome President Roosevelt tomorrow and the day will be the climax of Yale's bicentennial celebration. The degree of doctor of laws will be conferred upon the President.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—The burning of some wood on a polyscope, due to a poorly insulated electric wire, caused a panic in the Temple theater in which twenty persons, mostly women and children, were injured. When the cry of fire was raised the entire audience, numbering about 1,200, rushed for the single stairway and those injured were caught in the rush.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 23, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—Judge Cox assigned Leigh Robinson as assistant counsel for the defense in the trial of Charles J. Guiteau, charged with the assassination of President Garfield. This assignment is made under the power of the court to assign counsel to poor persons accused of crime.

CLEVELAND.—President Garfield's body was quietly transferred from the public receiving vault to Capt. L. T. Schofield's private vault, the finest in Lake View cemetery.

QUINCY, Ill.—Another break occurred in the Sny levee ten miles below Hannibal, letting in an immense volume of water. The crevasse is now 250 feet wide and is constantly extending. All freight trains for the west have been discontinued and a freight blockade has resulted.

CHICAGO.—Miss Mary Anderson closed her two weeks' engagement at McVicker's theater with a new play entitled "The Daughter of Roland," translated and adapted from the French of Henri De Bournier by Miss Annie Ford of Baltimore. This drama is a favorite with Miss Bernhardt, and the character of Berthe is regarded as one of her great rôles.

FROM JAIL.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Your "Alimony Racket" editorial in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE proved interesting and entertaining to hundreds of victims now incarcerated in the jail.

We are sorry it did not go further into another phase than the designing female. Why not discuss those who are willing to support their children but are out of work? We have no income and no assets, but are sent to jail for six months. This naturally helps to remedy the situation, as it leaves the children objects of charity, renders the father helpless and increases the burden of the taxpayer.

What a ridiculous fate. A man anxious to fulfill his obligations sent to an institution designed for felons!

This vicious law was undoubtedly meant for those able but unwilling. Sending a man to jail when he himself is a victim of adversity is like trying to get milk from a dry cow.

We heartily agree with you it is a racket and the wife, children and father lose out in the end. C. B. D.,
Member of the Alimony Club, County Jail.

JAPAN'S RESPONSIBILITY.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—In the present conflict between China and Japan I think that Japan continues to play the same part as she played before in the history of China. I do not hesitate to say that the present policy of Japan is a bandit policy. Japan has no right at all to encroach on Chinese sovereign rights. Manchuria is Chinese territory, and if China was obliged to recognize the special interests of Japan in this province, these interests are only of an economic nature. Moreover, the treaties by which China was obliged to grant Japan these economic interests were imposed upon China by force, and the Japanese government does not refrain from forging provisions which she thinks useful to support her plans.

I think that the present state of war between China and Japan is a strong test for the league of nations. It would be a deplorable failure if the league of nations did not succeed in making an end to this war. Japan is now doing her best to lose any claim to being a civilized nation, and I hope that every civilized country, and above all the United States of America, may lead a new crusade against militaristic Japan. I know that this statement is, of course, very strong, but I do not think that my official position restrains me from an expression of opinion which I think I ought to tell the American public regarding the present policy of Japan in Manchuria. I cannot forget that above all I am a jurist, a soldier of the law, and this honor places duties on my shoulders. I comply with my duties by stating that the above is the truth as I see it. Professor of Law, University of Paris; Lecturer in the Institute of Chinese Studies, Paris; Legal Adviser to the Chinese Government, etc.

ANOTHER NO-MAN'S LAND.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—I derived a lot of amusement reading Mr. H. S. Hansen's letter of Oct. 14. Just let a Norwegian occupy space in the Voice of the People a few times and that space also will become no-man's land—to be claimed by Norway. HANS L. LARSEN.

FROM THE GAS COMPANY.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—The import of Dr. Cunningham's letter in your Voice of the People this morning is, by inadvertence or otherwise, misleading.

Dr. Cunningham alleges an "added service charge" in the new rate for home heating with gas, and seems to imply that it is an additional charge over and above the announced 31 per cent reduction in the home heating rate. Neither the allegation nor the implications is well founded.

What Dr. Cunningham calls an "added service charge" [the radiation-demand charge] is in no sense "added." It is a part of the home heating rate itself, and is taken into account in figuring the 31 per cent reduction in the cost of home heating with gas, as applied to the general run of typical home heating customers.

Dr. Cunningham's viewpoint evidently springs from the circumstance that his is a special case. He has a large ballroom which he uses only occasionally or closes. But that large room has to be included in the potential heating requirements of his home, else we would be discriminating against homes that are entirely occupied and heated all through the winter.

Even in Dr. Cunningham's unusual circumstances he will gain substantially by the new home heating rate, including the thing he mistakenly calls an "added service charge." On the basis of his home heating costs last winter, the new rate will yield him a saving of 26.7 per cent. BERNARD J. MULLANEY,
Vice President, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company.

YALE VS. CHICAGO.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Rarely have I witnessed such an atrocity as that which occurred at the Midway Saturday. For eight years I have seen every game which has been played at Stagg field, but the utter lack of precision and sluggishness of yesterday's performance is unparalleled. It can also be said that the Yale aggregation displayed an exceedingly mediocre brand of football. The unfortunate situation, with respect to Chicago, can probably be attributed to a lack of adequate material and to the persistence of a coaching regime which long since should have been discarded.

Either the University of Chicago should build a team which approaches Big Ten caliber or it should eliminate football from its program of intercollegiate sports. I saw the Chicago team play good football at Ann Arbor last week when the regular quarter back was absent. STUDENT.

THE MILWAUKEE FUND.

Its accurate reports of the development and progress of the drive have been of great assistance in this effort for the betterment of human welfare. For the needy who will be helped by the fund agencies during the coming year I express sincere thanks.

CLOSED BANKS READY TO PAY OUT $2,000,000

Depositors to Get Checks Next Week.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson yesterday announced that approximately $2,000,000 will be paid to depositors of state closed banks within the next two weeks. Court orders permitting receivers of the banks to make payments have been filed with courts. Closed banks have already paid $1,000,000 to depositors this month.

Three banks have checks made out for Monday. They are:

	Payment.	Pct.	Depositors.
[illegible] Trust	$2,000,000	30	12,000
[illegible] Trust	100,000	40	4,000
[illegible] State	90,000	10	9,000

Five other banks are ready to pay smaller amounts. They are:

	Payment.	Pct.	Depositors.
[illegible] State	$150,000	15	15,000
[illegible] State	30,000	15	3,000
[illegible] Two State	115,000	20	6,000
[illegible] State	27,000	10	3,500
[illegible] Savings	$12,000	75	9,000

The North Town State bank expects to get its checks in the mail next week. Charles W. Bainbridge, receiver, and the Columbia State Savings bank asked its checks to depositors by Nov. 21, by which time Receiver Edward H. Schmidt predicts all legal difficulties will be cleared. The bank has $157,000 in cash on hand and assets which can be disposed of.

Those waiting for the dividend at the Industrial State bank Receiver Paul Gorman found that only 2,000 of the 19,000 depositors have filed claims. The dividend for the South Side Savings bank and Trust company will be paid about Nov. 1. The condition of the bank is such that a second dividend may be paid before the first of the year, Auditor Nelson said.

Dividends Already Paid.

Three closed banks have already paid dividends this month. The Binga State bank paid $138,000 to 17,000 depositors, the Ridgeway State bank paid $15,000 to 3,500 depositors, and the Lake View State bank paid $555,000 to 12,000 depositors. The Lake View State bank has paid two dividends to its depositors.

The auditor asked receivers of all banks to make every effort to pay the greatest possible amount before cold weather can add to the difficulty and distress of depositors who have suffered through the closing of banks.

Depositors Get Money at Their Bank, But Don't Like It

In the Safety State bank, 5617 Belmont avenue, depositors who had been asked by the bank to come in and withdraw their money yesterday moved reluctantly toward the paying teller's window throughout the day. When the bank closed, fewer than 1,000 depositors, less than a third of the total number, had received in full the amounts they had on deposit.

No trace of nervousness was visible in the amiable crowd which stood quietly in line at the paying teller's window. As they pocketed the cash returned to them at the bank's request, the depositors turned to shake hands with the cashier, Roy C. Hansen.

"I wanted to make another deposit, but they wouldn't take it," said Samuel Fishman, dry goods merchant, 5149 Belmont avenue, to the cashier. "This neighborhood needs a bank. Don't know what we'll do. I had $500 in another bank and lost it. We hate to see you close up."

Always Had Confidence.

"I always had confidence in this bank," said Mrs. Rachel Wood, 3925 North Parkside avenue, an original depositor when the bank opened June 29, 1928.

Another original depositor, Olof D. Lund, 5823 Henderson avenue, a mail carrier, who had not withdrawn a penny during the period when several suburban banks closed, declared he would not be doing so now if the bank were not forcing him to.

A 60 year old depositor who had done business with the bank for two years protested against taking his money out. Stopping at the cashier's desk, he said:

"When others drew their money out I left mine in. I've drawn out $10 now, and I'm going to leave the rest of my $300 with you, where it's safe."

Bank to Close Oct. 28.

Mr. Hansen explained that the bank would close its doors Oct. 28 and that all accounts must be paid in full by that time. The depositor, tears in his eyes, went back to the paying tellers' window.

When the bank opened in the morning, no depositors were waiting. Within half an hour more than 100 persons entered and stood in line. When they had been paid, they stood outside and talked in groups, deploring the fact that the bank was to close.

"I was here on the day it opened, when baskets of flowers crowded the floor," said Mr. Hansen. "Now it is as if we were hanging crêpe on the door. But I'll be able to walk through the neighborhood and hold my head high."

Have Two Other Banks.

Most of the depositors asked the cashier where they now might do their banking. With the bank's demise there is no bank left in the 39th ward. He told them that the Service State bank, at North and Central avenues, was under the same management. Daniel V. Harkin, former chief of national bank examiner for the state of Illinois, who previously held the same position in the state of New York, is the president of both banks, as well as the Westwood State bank, Elmwood Park, and the same board of directors functions in all three banks.

NINE SAILORS GET PRISON TERMS IN STRIKE AT PORTS

KIEL, Germany, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Five stokers of the German freighter Asta were sentenced to two months in prison today on a charge of participating in a strike in Russian ports ten days ago.

The stokers were convicted by a special court, which is working twenty-four hours a day in three shifts to try 120 sailors accused of going on strike, tying up forty-one German vessels. The trial is expected to last at least four days.

The defendants from the Asta testified that immediately after their ship anchored at Leningrad, Oct. 6, they were invited to attend a meeting, which was presided over by a Russian and at which the strike was voted.

PUT UNIVERSAL PROHIBITION AS METHODIST GOAL

Denomination Committed by Conference Action.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Universal prohibition was held up today as the goal of Methodism.

The sixth ecumenical conference of the followers of John Wesley adopted a resolution, committing the denomination throughout the world unequivocally to a program of education, legislation, and law enforcement to "protect society from the ravages of the liquor traffic."

Both the United States and Canadian sections of the conference presented separate reports on the subject, which with the resolution, received unanimous approval by the conference.

The American report said it was the "bounden duty of the government to exact respect for all laws," and declared Christian churches must "lead this whole temperance reform." It appealed to all classes to adopt obedience to law, submission to governmental authority, and loyalty "to the ideal of a sober world."

Resolution Is Unequivocal.

The resolution adopted by the conference follows in part:

"The sixth ecumenical conference on Methodism places itself on record as unequivocally committed to a sustained program of education that will build throughout the world a conviction of the imperative necessity of sobriety and to a program of legislation and law enforcement that will effectively protect society from the ravages of the liquor traffic.

"We especially rejoice in the progress of the United States of America in its supreme effort to exterminate the traffic."

The report of the American section was lengthy and reviewed the progress of efforts toward complete prohibition.

"For 150 years Methodists have encouraged every method that would tend to lessen the evils of intemperance and curb the traffic in alcoholic liquors," the report read. "Therefore, we appeal to all classes of people that, everything else having been tried, they now adopt obedience to law, submission to government authority and loyalty to the ideal of a sober world.

Appeal to Teachers to Aid.

"We call upon every mother with a child upon her knee, every father with the responsibility of this example upon him, every school teacher with the welfare of her pupils before her, every minister of the gospel, every molder of public opinion and leader of sentiment, to unite in the appeal of the immortal Lincoln for reverence for law."

In reference to the situation in Canada growing out of government control of liquor sales the report of the Canadian section of the conference reads:

"The effect of government sale upon citizens is alarming. The law forbids drinking in any public place and requires that the liquor be consumed in the home or in a hotel room. It provides that the public treasurer shall receive the profit, including every citizen as a beneficiary.

Allege Canada Bootlegging.

"It proposes to destroy bootlegging, but bootlegging continues in every province, often with increased frequency. It gives respectability to the traffic, breaking down the natural antipathy of young and old toward it. It familiarizes the presence of liquor, removing any sensitiveness concerning its possession.

"In consequence the home becomes degraded and too often the whole family participates in the juice; the pocket flask becomes common and the bottle is frequently introduced to guests.

"The liquor traffic is a supreme lawbreaker, a ruthless home destroyer, and a menace to character, to employment, and to every good thing in human life," the report said.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Dr. Oscar W. Lowery, 84 year old physician who died here Sunday, requested in his will that he be buried "in warm underclothes."

The will filed for probate directed: "In case of death, dress me in warm underclothes and in my dress suit, turn my body slightly to the right side, face in the same direction."

G. B. S. TELLS WHY HE THINKS DRY LAW IS GOOD FOR AMERICA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 22.—George Bernard Shaw tonight made his first speech on prohibition and teetotalism, "which is a curious sensation for a man of 76," he declared. Shaw was speaking to the congress of the World Prohibition federation at Westminster.

"On the subject of teetotalism I stand either as an example or a warning," he said. "I have always been a teetotaler, and my life's work can compare on the whole quite respectably with that of the average beer drinker."

Referring to prohibition in America, where he said the "direct results are absolutely convincing and satisfactory," Shaw declared the fact that bootleggers have corrupted and intimidated the courts and defied the authorities is not a convincing reason for abolishing prohibition.

"The question for American citizens is whether they are going to be beaten by the liquor trade or learn how to deal with brigandage," he declared.

ITALIAN FLEET TO GIVE IL DUCE 21 GUN SALUTE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Oct. 22.—Twenty-one guns from the first naval squadron of Italy will roar a salute to Premier Mussolini Saturday when he arrives at Naples for the grand reunion of all Fascist party chiefs at the celebration of the ninth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome.

Il Duce has decided to go by sea. He will arrive aboard his own yacht, Aurora, a 700 ton vessel captured from the Austrians and refitted for the premier.

This will be Mussolini's first visit to Naples in seven years. He will receive officials on board his yacht and then debark through long files of Blackshirt legions. He will remain in Naples two days, first attending the convention at Maddaloni hall, where the orders went out nine years ago for the Blackshirts to march on Rome.

On the following day Il Duce will make a speech in Plebiscite square in Naples, where in 1922 he watched his legions march by and reached the decision that the time had come for Fascists to take over the powers of government.

MURDER VERDICT RETURNED.

A verdict of murder by persons unknown was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Victor Frankiewicz, 37 years old, 3221 West 62d place, Cicero, real estate broker. Frankiewicz was found shot to death on Oct. 7.

HUNT DRUGGAN AS COURT SEEKS ASSETS OF BANK

Judge Doubts Story Told by Broker in Quiz.

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday continued his search for assets to satisfy claims of depositors of the defunct West Central State bank, which had dealings with Terry Druggan, beer baron and public enemy. At the same time deputy sheriffs continued their search for Druggan, who obtained loans of $23,000 from the bank without security and a personal loan of $12,000 from Andrew H. Dressel, president of the bank.

As court convened the judge ordered Bailiff Louis Green and several deputy sheriffs to search every person in the courtroom for weapons. Throughout the day each person who entered was searched. The judge explained that he had been informed that police characters were mingling with the spectators and loitering about the court. It was rumored that Dressel had been threatened with violence for his disclosure of the loans to Druggan. Dressel denied the report.

Broker Is a Witness.

Louis Klusman, a former broker, who lives in an apartment formerly occupied by Druggan at 7044 Greenview avenue, was the first witness. Druggan had deeded the property to Dressel as security for the $12,000 personal loan. Attorney Jacob L. Fox, representing the receiver of the bank, instituted foreclosure proceedings against the property on Wednesday afternoon.

When deputy sheriffs went to the building they found Klusman moving furniture from the apartment. He was subpoenaed as a witness. In court he told the judge he had purchased the furnishings from Druggan for $3,000 cash. He said he had gone to school with Druggan.

"I don't believe your story," Judge Feinberg said. "Go into my chambers and commune with yourself and then come out and continue your story."

Klusman stuck to his story when he was recalled. The judge then gave him until 2 o'clock to reconsider. At that hour the judge said he had conferred with Klusman's brother, a dentist, and that the brother had asked for an opportunity to talk with Klusman. The judge granted the request, telling Klusman to reappear this morning.

Unable to Pay, Peddler Says.

Jacob Spector, a peddler, who borrowed $15,000 from the bank and who has repaid only $2,500 of the loan, said he had no assets to meet the obligation. William Randall, president of the United Auto Wreckers, 2425 South State street, said he might be able to raise $2,000 which he owes the bank.

Attorney Simon Murray, who owes the bank $13,500 on notes obtained for four companies, which he controlled, promised to assign accounts of approximately $6,000 in the bank and raise other funds to meet the debts.

Abe Krecun, 2253 North Kedzie avenue, clothing goods dealer, described by the judge as the county's most frequent bankrupt, declared he was unable to pay an unsecured note of $14,000. The judge declared he would investigate Krecun's shift of ownership of a clothing house to a corporation whose stock is owned by a law clerk and two stenographers in the office of a friend of Krecun.

CURTIS DENIES BEING OFFERED JOB AS CZAR OF U. S. OIL INDUSTRY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—(AP)—An invitation to become czar of the oil industry may be coming his way, but Vice President Curtis knows nothing about it.

He disclaimed any knowledge of such an offer today when questioned about a story published in the Tulsa [Oklahoma] World saying he would resign as Vice President before Christmas to take up the post.

To messages of inquiry, Mr. Curtis replied:

"I have not been tendered the position mentioned."

To friends, he made his emphatic denial that he knew of such an offer.

Washington's Great-Great-Great-Grandniece Dies, 83

Norwalk, Conn., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Cardiza, 83, a descendant of the family of George Washington, died here last night. Mrs. Cardiza for many years was treasurer of the Colonial Dames of Washington, D. C., and a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She was a great-great-great-grandniece of the country's first President.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of pep and ambition.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a dull, bad taste and your breath is foul. Your skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

To take these good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS is to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, remarkable when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Refuse substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

let's all go to Turkey

Where Turkish tobacco comes from

Eastward ho! Four thousand miles nearer the rising sun—let's go! To the land of mosques and minarets—so different from our skyscrapers, stacks and steeples.

Let's see this strange, strange country. Let's see the land where the tobacco* grows in small leaves on slender stalks—to be tenderly picked, leaf by leaf, hung in long fragrant strings, shelter-dried and blanket-cured. Precious stuff!

In every important tobacco-growing center of Turkey, Chesterfield has its own tobacco buyers on the spot

Let's taste that delicate aromatic flavor—that subtle difference that makes a cigarette!

XANTHI . . CAVALLA . . SMYRNA . . SAMSOUN . . famous tobaccos!

*Turkish tobacco is to cigarettes what seasoning is to food—the "spice," the "sauce"—or what rich, sweet cream is to coffee!

You can taste the Turkish in Chesterfield—there's enough of it, that's why. Chesterfield has not been stingy with this important addition to good taste and aroma; four famous kinds of Turkish leaf—Xanthi, Cavalla, Samsoun and Smyrna—go into the smooth, "spicy" Chesterfield blend.

This is just one more reason for Chesterfield's better taste. Tobaccos from far and near, the best of their several kinds—and the right kinds. And pure, tasteless cigarette paper, the purest made. The many requisites of a milder, better smoke, complete!

That's why they're GOOD—they've got to be and they are.

KOHLER FOR JOBS, NOT INSURANCE, FOR THE JOBLESS

Tells Senators His Ideas on Unemployment.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Walter J. Kohler, head of the plumbing fixture firm bearing his name and former governor of Wisconsin, appeared before the special senate committee on unemployment insurance today to urge the "development of employment assurance rather than unemployment insurance."

Stabilization of industry is the basic remedy in considering the welfare of workers, Mr. Kohler believed, and he gave little encouragement to the establishment of relief insurance. If unemployment, he said, unemployment relief should be undertaken voluntarily. They were, however, he asserted, but a palliative, since they were so small by comparison with full time that they meant a much lowered standard of living. Such benefits, to be maintained, carry with them, he said, the probability if they are in the nature of a government dole, the danger of breaking down initiative and creating a tendency for employers to treat employes "in a perfunctory manner."

Says Improve Production.

"The most valuable help we can give the workers is to improve production methods so as to provide continuous employment," Mr. Kohler declared. "That involves many factors. For example, the anti-trust laws prevent collaboration in industry. We need more accurate forecasts and better business management.

"We need to stabilize raw material prices so that manufacturers will not set up heavier inventories."

With the stabilization of raw materials Mr. Kohler declared, the level of employment would also be stabilized through manufacturing in anticipation of future demand, "at not much more expense than would be incurred in giving unemployment insurance."

Statistics on Depression.

Senator, another special committee, headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette Jr., insurgent Republican of Wisconsin, listened to statistics of the depression from E. A. Goldenweiser, research expert of the federal reserve system, and Laurence H. Seltzer, vice president of the Standard Statistics company. The La Follette committee is examining a proposal to establish a national economic council.

Dr. Goldenweiser testified that the total operating income of the railroads had dropped from $1,250,000,000 in 1929 to $675,000,000 in 1930; that employment on the railroads had decreased from 1,700,000 in July, 1929, to 1,150,000 today; that bank failures had increased from 491 in 1928 to 642 in 1930, to 1,346 in 1930; that deposits in suspended banks totaled $138,000,000 in 1921, $234,000,000 in 1929, and $565,000,000 in 1931.

He estimated the total hoarded money in the United States at approximately $1,000,000,000.

Public Still Fearful.

Mr. Kiser declared that people are still fearful and were holding purchases to a minimum. Using index figures, he marked stock market progress at: 1923, 80; 1926, 100; 1929, 227; May, 31. He estimated industrial output as "well below" 50 per cent of capacity at present, and thought the national income in 1931 would be 25 per cent less than two years ago. He termed the depression the worst this country ever experienced on the gold standard.

"I do not look for a return of industrial activity in the near future," he concluded, "but I think the worst is past and that October probably will have been the lowest month."

Superior Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday granted Mrs. Gladys Schick Wakem, young society matron, a divorce from her husband, Harold Dixon Wakem, whom she charged with cruelty. Mrs. Wakem, daughter of Thomas F. Schick, president of the Schick-Shaving company, waived alimony. Each parent was allowed the custody of their son, Dixon, 2 years old, six months a year.

Mrs. Wakem testified that her husband struck her on several occasions. Finally, she said, she left his apartment at 812 Sheridan road, Evanston, and returned to her father's home at 1040 Ashby avenue. She was married on April 21, 1928, and left her husband last March.

Reds Periled by R.O.T.C. Machine Gun Bullets

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Machine gun bullets which found their way accidentally into carbines "supposed to contain blanks" used by members of the University of California at Los Angeles Reserve Officers' Training corps today almost cost the lives of a group of reds who walked into the line of fire when real bullets whined past the guns. The reds dropped to the ground and the corps instructor ordered cease firing.

INDIA'S LIBERTY MADE ISSUE IN BRITISH ELECTION

Labor Predicts Parley's End if MacDonald Wins.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 22.—India was tossed into the boiling pot of British politics today and was badly scalded. The London Daily Herald, official organ of the Labor party and the paper with the third largest circulation in England, printed a first page story that in the event of victory at the polls next Tuesday the first task of the national government would be to close up the Indian round table conference and send the delegates home.

SIR SAMUEL HOARE
[Acme Photo.]

Indian delegates who do not understand the subtleties of a British election were greatly alarmed and spent the day rushing from one British politician to another protesting. Prime Minister MacDonald immediately issued an official statement at Seaham Harbor characterising the Herald story as a "disgusting attempt to break up the conference," and declared it utterly untrue and a pure invention.

Insists Allegation an Untruth.

Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary of state for India, issued a similar statement and in a speech tonight in his own constituency, Chelsea, declared there was not a word of truth in the allegation by the Herald.

"As long as there is any chance of obtaining useful results from the conference we are prepared to continue with greatest good will," he said.

In the meantime the conference is proceeding with the weary work of hammering out details of the proposed government of India. Today the federal structures committee discussed the proposed federal court and heard a protest by Dr. Ambedkar, representative of the "untouchables," against the failure to provide enforcement decrees by the supreme court. It would be absurd to expect, he said, a provincial government controlled by one of the great communities to enforce a decree which is distasteful to it. He pleaded for a court like the United States supreme court with power to enforce its own decisions.

May Adjourn Soon.

Everything now points to adjournment of the conference in the first week of November. Many leading delegates have reserved accommodations on a steamer sailing Nov. 13. It is hoped that there is time to arrive at a general agreement so that the text of the constitution can be prepared either by a new and more representative conference, or by a joint committee of Indians and British. The measure agreed upon can then be introduced in and passed by parliament without change as was the case with the Irish settlement.

Mahatma Gandhi, India's Nationalist leader, disappointed by his failure to impress either his British or Indian colleagues with his self-government demands, or to secure an agreement between the warring Indian factions, has almost withdrawn from the work of the conference.

GANDHI DECLINES BID OF TWO CHILDREN TO VISIT AMERICAN CITIES

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Mahatma Gandhi today disappointed the two children who had come all the way from New York to deliver invitations of welcome from the mayors of American cities.

The children were Mariam and Lilli Ghose, the daughters of Sailendra Ghose, self-styled president of the Indian National Congress in America. With their mother they journeyed to Kingsley hall in the east end of London this morning and squatted on the floor beside Gandhi as they delivered their messages.

The mahatma smiled when reading the invitations but said that he could not accept. "America is not ready to receive me," he told Mrs. Ghose. A few minutes later, however, he gave the children a thrill by taking them and their mother with him in an automobile on his way to St. James' palace.

EMBEZZLER WOLF STARTS SERVING PRISON SENTENCE

Reaches Joliet After Dash for Train.

Walter Wolf, embezzler of $3,666,000 from the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, started his sentence of 10 to 100 years last night at the old Joliet penitentiary. The former manager of the bank's coupon department was taken by train to the prison yesterday afternoon.

Because the records office of the penitentiary had been closed for the day, Wolf was placed in a detention cell. Today he will be given a number, and will don convict's garb for the first time.

Mittimus Late, But Wolf Goes.

For a brief period yesterday it appeared that Wolf's departure from the county jail would be delayed. The clerk's office at the Criminal Court building was late in preparing the mittimus, and officials found that the embezzler could not be placed on the train at 3 p. m. at the Union station, as had been planned.

Then arrangements were made with the Chicago and Alton railroad. Wolf, manacled to Chief Bailiff James Gabriel of the Criminal court, boarded a train at the Brighton Park station, 37th street and California avenue, to begin his journey.

Disappointed over Hearing.

Wolf seemed sullen, apparently in disappointment over the outcome of his last court hearing on Wednesday. Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court refused Wolf's plea for a new trial and ordered commitment papers for his imprisonment. The judge held that no moral or legal reason had been offered for granting Wolf another trial.

Wolf and his attorney, Louis Piquett, failed to show that he had been promised leniency for pleading guilty.

City Employes of Warsaw "Strike" but Stay on Jobs

WARSAW, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Municipal workers in Warsaw declined to work today, although they appeared as usual at their desks and jobs. The "strike" is in protest against irregular payment of salaries. The orchestra chorus of the civic opera invaded the city hall yesterday demanding back pay and the demonstration having proved effective, the municipal employés today determined upon the passive resistance policy.

HOODLUM FREED IN MACHINE GUN CASE; JURY FIRED

Acquitted on Charge Under New Law.

Mike Mattalo, a south side hoodlum allegedly linked with the gang left leaderless recently by the murder of James L. Quigley, was acquitted late yesterday by a jury before Criminal Court Judge George Fred Rush of illegally possessing a machine gun. The jury deliberated for four and one-half hours. The case was one of the first tried under the new state law prohibiting the use and sale of machine guns.

JUDGE G. F. RUSH.

A Thompson sub-machine gun, two shotguns, a quantity of ammunition, and some fuses were found in the basement of Mattalo's home at 6737 South Paulina street on July 29. He was asleep near by.

Judge Dismisses Jurors.

Judge Rush seemed incensed when the verdict was read.

"Although you were to have served three weeks, you men are through right now," he told the jury. "Give them their pay checks, Mr. Clerk."

After the twelve had left the courtroom their foreman, Albert D. Prescott, 1118 North State street, said the jury was of the opinion that the guns might have been "planted" in Mattalo's basement.

It was reported that the jury stood 7 to 5 for conviction on their first ballot, but in the ensuing debate they reversed their first attitude and cleared Mattalo. He could have been sentenced to one to ten years in prison had he been found guilty.

The evidence showed that the submachine gun had been stolen from the office of Sheriff John Peruccha of Morris, Grundy county, last March 24. It was also revealed that Mattalo served time in that county's jail in 1927, becoming a trusty.

Mattalo was represented by the public defender's office. His plea was that he "had no idea" the guns were in his home.

PLACED ON PROBATION.

William Elay, 21 years old, 4044 West Erie street, a member of the National Guard, was placed on probation by Judge John J. Rooney yesterday on a charge of carrying a pistol and a tear gas bomb. He said he had found the bomb at Camp Grant and was taking the revolver home after target practice.

WOMAN, 3 MEN HELD FOR PLOT TO LOOT BANK

A woman and three men were held to the grand jury on charges of attempted robbery, on the purported admission of one of the number that they intended to rob the West Thirty-first Street State bank, 555 West 31st street, when they were arraigned yesterday before Judge Samuel H. Trude in the Felony court. They are Mrs. Viola Nagle, 28 years old; her husband, James; Hoard Kane, all of 2242 South Wabash avenue, and Thomas Clark, 650 West 31st street. Police received information on the intended robbery and awaited their arrival at the bank. When they failed to appear all were arrested in the Nagle home. Policeman John Olson of the Stockyards station said Clark confessed the intended robbery following his arrest.

START HUNT FOR MISSING HEAD OF CLOSED BANK

Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers was making an effort yesterday to discover what had happened to Edmund H. Glos, 60 years old, president of the closed Citizens State bank of Melrose Park. He disappeared 10 days ago, Mr. Ayers learned. The prosecutor said he suspected that Glos had departed because of threats. Glos was a witness for the prosecution in the case of Charles J. Wolf, a former president of the bank who is under indictment for embezzlement.

"Glos succeeded Wolf as president of the bank in July, 1930, and the bank was closed in October, 1930, due to the discovery of several shortages," said Prosecutor Ayers. "Glos was ready to testify against Wolf, whose trial is set for next Monday. Two months ago he received a series of threats over the telephone and we traced some of the calls to a roadhouse owned by Rocco De Grazia. Now we learn that Glos moved his family and furniture away ten days ago and left no word as to where he was going."

It stamps your social status!

Clothes may not make the man—but with a woman they go a long way toward revealing her taste, her social status, her intelligence.

Tooth pastes are indicative, too. Use a tooth paste simply because it pleases the palate, or simply because its advertising entertains—and you join the non-thinkers. But select one for the good it will do your teeth and you prove your intelligence.

40% of every tube of Pebeco is a costly ingredient found in no other tooth paste. It has a different taste—there's a tang to it that convinces—a clean after-taste that spells true oral comfort.

WHY do you use a tooth paste? Think a moment! Are you fooled by flavor; are you fooled by taste, are you misled by unfulfillable promises? It's what is in the tooth paste that counts.. Pebeco is worth a fair trial today.

COAL HEAT COSTS LESS

Among all fuels both new and old

.... much less

A NEW fuel has been piped to Chicago. It is richer in heat units, it is cheaper than the one which in the past bore its name and was offered to Chicago home owners as a substitute for coal. Naturally the burning question is . . . can I heat my home or building with it for less than coal costs me?

The answer is, NO. In fact, you could afford to pay more than $26.00 a ton for coal you buy now for less than $10.00 a ton and still save with coal.

The bungalow illustrated here is a case in point. It has six rooms, 600 square feet of radiation. It requires 150,000,000 B.T.U's (heat units) to keep it warm from November to May. Coal supplies this number of B.T.U's, for $76.00.

To get the same number of heat units from the new fuel, it is estimated that the building's owner would have to purchase approximately $161.00 worth of it.

Nor would this be all the expense he would be put to. The proposed rates for the new fuel contemplate a charge of $1.80 a month on every 100 square feet of radiation during the heating season.

So, to his fuel costs, he would have to add $64.80 radiator tax. Finally, to burn fuel C he would have to rent a burner—$60.00 a year is the regular charge—so to get as much heat from the new fuel as he gets from coal for $76.00 the owner of this house would have to spend $285.80 a year.

If you are curious to know how much extra you would have to pay in changing from coal to this fuel, call on any member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association. He will gladly help you to figure comparative costs.

STONE ANSWERS BUSINESS CRITICS OF FARM BOARD to Agriculture Is to Continue, He Says.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Chairman James C. Stone of the federal farm board yesterday issued a statement to big business men who have come to look a little more carefully before it leaps at the "recovery bird." In a caustic breath he replied that the criticism which had been heaped on the farm marketing act and its administration, as well as what it would do after the board from coöperatives seeking to seek a better marketing system for American agriculture.

Mr. Stone spoke at the annual convention of the National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers. In addition to his predecessor, Alexander Legge, and officials of an industry whose only customer is the chairman of the board whose slogan is "take the government out of business" was accused by Mr. Stone of "crying on false propaganda. What they really trying to do, he said, is to prevent farmers from seeking dealing with other industries in disposing which they produce.

"Most of these people," he asserted, "are now enjoying aid of one kind or another from the government, and would not rise up to object to the same assistance being given the farmer, who has just been taken in.

"I'm certain that the farm board and business generally will not object to using the government out of business, if government aid is to be taken away from everybody alike. But I'm not certain that they will not consent to being singled out alone for such treatment."

Aim Is Above Fourth of Cotton.

Many bankers and business men of the south have come to realize what the farm board can mean to them, Mr. Stone said. He described a movement which is completed this week by which the southern state bankers' association agrees the storing of one out of every four bales of cotton on hand. Mr. Stone said he had promised to keep out of the market the farm board's cotton and that of coöperatives until next July if the bankers do likewise with the cotton they are preparing to store.

"We can do much more than we have done to cushion such drops in cotton prices as have occurred with wheat and cotton, and bring back a measure of buying power, if we have the aid of bankers and business men as well as the farmers," he asserted. Mr. Stone predicted a carryover of 12,000,000 bales of cotton next July, as compared with 9,000,000 last July, despite an increase of 2,000,000 bales in production expected this winter.

Wants Credit System.

"The farm credit system must be developed, he declared, so that cotton, wheat, and other commodities of the United States may be sold to foreign countries which need and want to buy them. He also declared his conviction that international barriers to world trade must be removed to restore normal conditions.

"I realize full well that while we are building up a strong system of agricultural marketing, we will be subject to deal with the efficient producers," Mr. Stone said. "Nothing we can do will save the inefficient farmer. What the farmer lacks today is trading power and that we intend to provide, regardless of who may be affected in the process."

Tells Need of Improvements.

Before the farm equipment manufacturers had been told by E. A. Pearson, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, that five improvements are needed in the system of supplying farmers with equipment. These are a sales program based on scientific research proving the utility of equipment, development of a sound credit system to replace harmful time-payment plans, publicity to reform prices on machinery, a standardized system for economic and efficient distribution of farm equipment, and a national committee on farm equipment representing farmers and manufacturers to solve mutual

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Following the unsuccessful example of the federal farm board, which urged the plowing up of every third row of cotton, the dairy advisory committee of the board today urged that dairy farmers meet a threatened overproduction by eliminating at least one cow out of ten.

The committee declared that the number of milk cows is continuing to increase for the fourth successive year, the number on farms last Sept. 1, being fully 3.6 per cent in excess of the number a year previous. And a further increase was seen in the department of agriculture's prediction that 5 per cent more heifers would freshen during the last half of 1931.

The recent rise in the prices of dairy products and the reduction in storage holdings, the committee declared, should not be allowed to obscure the eventual creation of a surplus and low prices, should the increase continue.

All low producing and unprofitable cows should be culled immediately and sold for slaughter, the committee urged, and additional heifer calves should be killed for veal.

The committee commended the coöperative marketing of manufactured dairy products, urged distributors to buy milk from coöperatives, advised dairy farmers to support their coöperatives in a program of advertising dairy products, and requested dairy farmers to consume more of their own products.

EXPERTS FAIL TO DECIDE ON ON BELL'S SANITY

Alienists who went to the county jail yesterday to examine Frank Bell, convicted murderer, who was saved from the electric chair only a few hours before the scheduled time for his execution last Friday, failed to make any determination of the prisoner's sanity.

Bell declined to answer questions or to submit to tests by Dr. H. Douglas Singer, one of the state experts, who was accompanied by Dr. Francis Gerty, also a state expert. Another complication developed when Dr. Orlando F. Scott, a defense alienist, refused to talk to Bell in the presence of Dr. Singer and Dr. Gerty.

Dr. James Whitney Hall and Dr. Harold S. Hulbert, whose names also were placed in the order of Judge James Joseph Kelly as representatives of the defense, did not appear at the jail, and Dr. Hulbert declared the use of his name was unauthorized and that he would have nothing to do with the case.

If Bell is found sane the sentence of death will be carried out. If he is found of unsound mind he will be confined in an asylum for the criminal insane.

Richard Sullivan, Bell's companion in the killing of Chris Patras, a restaurant manager, was executed soon after midnight last Friday.

Destitute Woman Urges Policeman to Shoot Her

Miss Margaret Miller, 24 years old, appeared in the anteroom of Mayor Cermak's office in the city hall yesterday, declared that she was homeless, without funds and hungry, and begged Policeman Frank Bartousek, on duty there, to shoot her. Spectators of the incident took up a collection and gave her $3. She was examined by Dr. Elmer Mosely, police physician, and released when she said that she had friends with whom she might stay. She formerly lived at 6 West Superior street, she said.

I. C. RANDOLPH STATION WILL BE OPENED SUNDAY

New Terminal Is Called a City in Miniature.

Beginning Sunday, the new Randolph street suburban station of the Illinois Central railroad will be formerly opened to the public. It is the fourth railway station to occupy the site, the original station, called the Great Central depot, being built in 1853.

The new terminal will in many ways resemble a miniature city, including a large waiting room, connecting entrances and exits, ticket offices, telephone booths, rest rooms, newsstands, flower sheps, lunch stands, drinking fountains and other conveniences.

Five Tracks for Trains.

This numbers five tracks of which will hold 10 car trains and one track which will accommodate 6 car trains. These rights of way are connected by stairways to the train platforms above. When the Randolph street viaduct is completed, other tracks will be added on the lower level. The electric trains of the South Shore line will then be tracked into the main station. For the present these trains will use the structure south of Randolph street.

The new station is artificially ventilated with air duct connections which permit an equable temperature during the various seasons. It, as well as the viaduct, is supported on concrete piers dug down to solid rock 110 feet below the surface of the lake. Because the track beds are below water surface, a pumping system has been constructed to emit seepage into sewers.

Has Information Office.

A feature of the station is the establishment of a through ticket office, where information and rate advice for railroad travel to all sections of the United States, Canada, and Mexico may be had. The office also will supply data on steamship accommodations.

The new station is the fourth to occupy the Randolph street site. The first, the Great Central depot, which was described at the time as "one of the wonders of the west," served as the terminus for the Illinois Central, Michigan Central, Burlington, and other roads. It was destroyed by fire in 1871. The second station, built in 1872, was occupied by the Illinois Central and the Michigan Central until the building of the Park Row depot in 1893. The second station was then rebuilt to become the third station, and this served until the present temporary station, now transformed, was erected in 1925.

Agree to Test New Traffic Control on Michigan Avenue

Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board, agreed yesterday to an experimental installation of a progressive timing system for traffic control on Michigan avenue. The agreement was reached at the end of eighteen months' debate, in which some of the nation's leading traffic engineers have claimed that a modernization of the stop and go system would increase the average speed of travel on the boulevard from twelve to twenty-one miles an hour.

The city administration and the Lincoln park board have long been satisfied with the opinion of the experts and have sought to have the south parks join in a project to install unified progressive control from Oak to 22d street.

Few Complaints of Delay.

"I have hesitated," said Mr. Kelly, "because there have been few complaints of delay on Michigan avenue from south side motorists. The bad bottle neck has been north of Randolph street, outside the jurisdiction of the south park board.

"Also, one of the leading proponents of the progressive system has been the street car company, interested in clearing the loop of automobiles as quickly as possible more than in expediting Michigan avenue traffic.

"If the city and Lincoln park will join," Mr. Kelly told his interviewer, "the south parks will agree to a three or four days' experimental installation. If south side motorists do not suffer during the experiment while the loop is being cleared more quickly and the north side blockade is relieved, I'll support a permanent installation of the progressive timing."

Otto Weege, general superintendent of Lincoln park, was pleased with the proposal.

"The progressive timing," he said, "will stop motorists from racing to see how far they can get before the lights turn red, as they do under the present simultaneous timing. Without racing, the average speed of travel will be increased.

Pedestrians and cross-traffic will not have to wait one and a half minutes to get across the boulevard."

Leslie Sorenson, city traffic expert, likewise welcomed the proposal, but mentioned that there might be some engineering difficulties in obtaining a temporary change in the stop and go timing without going to some expense. He added that the benefits of progressive timing increase as the motorists become familiar with its operation and that an experiment of three or four days might not be conclusive.

Suggest Manufacturers Help.

Robert Nau, secretary of the traffic committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club, who will coöperate in the experiment, suggested that the manufacturers of traffic signals might contribute material assistance in this demonstration, since it will attract national attention.

The cost of installing a modern system has been estimated at from $25,000 to $50,000. The city, the south parks, and Lincoln park would share in the cost. South parks control south of Randolph street, the city has jurisdiction from Randolph to the river, and Michigan avenue north of the bridge is in the Lincoln park system.

STATE ASKS BIDS ON $6,398,015 ROAD PROJECTS

Jobs Part of $34,000,000 Highway Program.

BY HAL FOUST.

The state highway department yesterday advertised to receive bids on Nov. 2 on seventy-one projects to cost $6,398,015. These will be the first contracts to be awarded since the prevailing wage act was declared unconstitutional by the state Supreme court. Most of the projects have been delayed from one to four months, due to this act which, it was charged, was an attempt to boost labor rates contrary to the trend of current economics.

These will be the first of a series of highway contracts totaling 34 million dollars, to be awarded this fall and winter. The unemployment relief which will be given by these jobs, however, will benefit principally the downstate sections. Chicago receives nothing in the initial awards and can hope for little from the total unless Gov. Emmerson decides to construct the west side elevated highway, which would give employment to between 10,000 and 30,000 men.

Route 53 [new road]—From Roosevelt road at Glen Ellyn to Ogden avenue near Lisle, 4.43 miles; grade separations with Roosevelt road and with Ogden avenue.

130TH STREET—South and southwest of Calumet City, 1.74 miles.

22d street—West of York road, 1.08 miles to route 54, new north and south highway, and bridge over Salt creek.

$3,770,459 in Metropolitan Area.

In the bids to be submitted on Nov. 2 there will be projects in the metropolitan area totaling $2,770,459. Approximately half of this amount will be spent on a span across the valley of the Des Plaines river, with its two canals and two railroads, to connect Mannheim road with Knane avenue, Archer avenue and 79th street, forming a new north and south through traffic route and part of a belt line around the city. Other metropolitan jobs are as follows:

Joliet road—Grade separation over B. & O. Chicago Terminal company tracks at McCook.

Ogden avenue—Gravel approaches to Indiana Harbor Belt line at La Grange.

Route 20—Bridge near intersection with route 172, in Lake county.

Washington boulevard—Pavement and widening in Bellwood, 1 mile.

Work has been done on some of these projects under contracts awarded under the provisions of the prevailing wage act. Reports from Springfield indicate that Gov. Emmerson will include in his call for a special session of the legislature the question of compensating the contractors who did work under the invalidated act.

County Resumes Road Work.

Cook county yesterday resumed road activities long delayed by the prevailing wage controversy. The road and bridge committee of the county board voted to reject bids received under the provisions of the wage act and to advertise for bids again. Twenty-eight projects are involved, none of them large.

The state highway department next week will make further counts of traffic in its survey of the efficiency of the public's pavements. The survey will be used in planning future road improvements.

AUDIT BUREAU'S OPENING SESSION DRAWS HUNDREDS

The eighteenth annual convention of the Audit Bureau of Circulations—comprising publishers, advertisers and advertising agencies of the United States and Canada—convened yesterday at the Stevens hotel. Several hundred members of the organization attended the opening session. The convention will close today.

P. L. Thomson of the Western Electric Company of New York, president of the bureau, said, in his annual report, that the A. B. C. had had a larger volume of business this year than in any previous year in its history. It made public 1,523 audits, as compared with 1,439 a year ago. Despite the business depression, Mr. Thomson pointed out, the organization showed only a 2.6 per cent reduction in membership, due partly, he said, to failures and consolidations.

Way to Get At a Cold Is Through the Bowels

As soon as you catch cold, the pores close; perspiration is checked. Gases and waste can't escape through the skin. That's why your doctor's first advice is a mild laxative like cascara. Medical authorities agree it actually strengthens bowel muscles. You get cascara in its most pleasant form in candy Cascarets.

Remember this when you catch cold; whenever breath is bad; tongue coated; or you're headachy, bilious, constipated.

Why resort to harsher things when Cascarets activate the bowels so quickly, so harmlessly and pleasantly—and cost only a dime?

STATE WILL ASK BIDS ON BRIDGES OVER WATERWAY

Bids for five bridges, to cost $1,150,000, across the Illinois waterway will be taken Nov. 24, according to an announcement made yesterday by Henry H. Kohn, state director of purchases and construction. Three of the bridges are at Joliet, where bascules are to be built at Jackson, Jefferson, and Cass street, at a total cost of $920,000. The other two are at Brandon road and at Marseilles. Bids for the foundations of the Joliet spans are to be taken in December.

"Five months' time has been lost in bridge construction by the controversy over the prevailing rate of wage act," said Director Kohn, "but now the Supreme court has declared the law invalid, we are ready to go ahead without wasting a minute. Our bridge program called for the building of all the state's bridges by April 30, 1933, the time the government has set for completion of the waterway.

"Due to the delay, two of the five bridges in Joliet, at Ruby and McDonough streets, may not be finished by then, but they are of the bascule type and can be built without interfering with navigation."

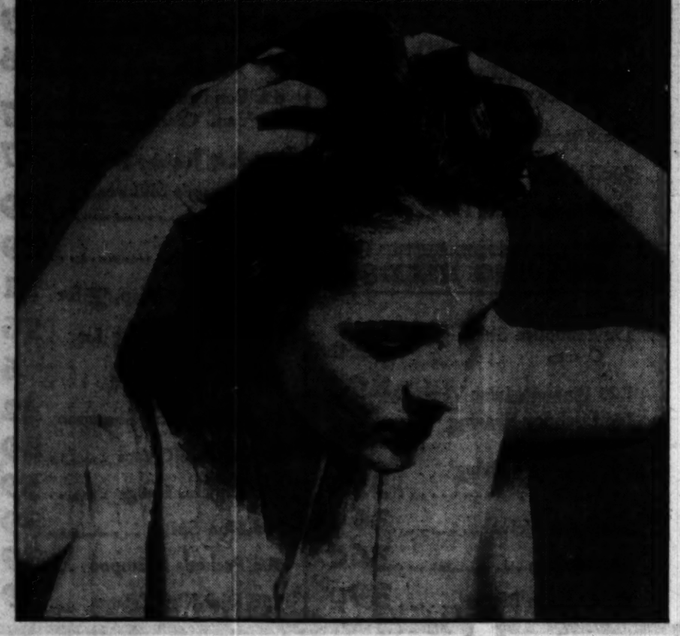
LISTERINE
cleans the scalp
"sets" a wave
checks
DANDRUFF



Use It Once A Week

WHENEVER you wash your hair—and most people do it once a week—douse full strength Listerine on the scalp either before or after the rinse. Then massage the scalp and hair vigorously for several minutes.

You will be simply delighted by the wonderful feeling of cleanness and exhilaration that follows this refreshing treatment.

Moreover, it is unquestionably one of the best treatments for loose dandruff—for preventing it, and for overcoming it once it has started. Many hundreds of women have told us that since making Listerine a part of the weekly shampoo, their scalp feels better, their hair looks more attractive, and they are never troubled with loose dandruff. Of course, if dandruff does get a start, it will be necessary to repeat the Listerine treatment systematically for several days, using a little olive oil in conjunction with it if the scalp and hair are excessively dry.

Listerine removes and dissolves the dandruff particles and heals and soothes the scalp. Also, if infection is present—and most dermatologists define dandruff as a germ infection—Listerine immediately combats it.

Incidentally after a shampoo when the hair is unruly there is nothing like Listerine to make it set nicely. The same applies to a finger wave.

Do you have to be told?

Before any social engagement rinse the mouth with Listerine. Thus you automatically end Halitosis (unpleasant breath) the one unforgivable social fault.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

In the second grade room at the Hendricks school, 313 West 43d street, a class was in progress.

"Children," directed the teacher, "you may read the rest of the page for us."

A little girl rose at her desk, sank gracefully for a moment, and then dropped to the floor as though she had been struck. She was unconscious when the teacher reached her. The other children crowded around in evident consternation. Other teachers hurried in from adjoining rooms, hastily excited. The milkman, who had left a day's order at the school door, stepped in to find out what had happened.

The Truth Comes Out.

"Hunger, I suppose," whispered one child to another. The milk man carried the child and carried her to the teachers room, where she was revived. Guardedly the teachers inquired whether she fainted like that often. Then the truth came out. She had had no food since early yesterday day. She was not afflicted with epilepsy, but malnutrition had sapped her strength to the breaking point.

"It seems like an extreme case," said L. H. Madden, the principal, "but as a matter of fact we have children here who are actually starving. Many of them are too proud to let us know they haven't had food, but we know definitely of several who cannot afford to buy even lunches. Of course, Marie has only had one daily, now.

Case of Little Louvella.

"But there was also Louvella, a little first grader, who burst out crying one morning. When her teacher asked to find out what was wrong, Louvella said she had a headache. I sent her into my office and asked her what she had for breakfast. She told me there was nothing in the house to eat. We are serving breakfasts to quite a few children like her, and also lunches at noon to those who need them."

Of the 600 pupils in the Hendricks school, a considerable percentage are from families in which the fathers have had no work for many months—some almost for two years. Yet the generally excellent appearance of the boys and girls, especially as to personal cleanliness and neatness, is remarkable. Special efforts are made by the teaching staff in this regard.

Effects of Hunger Noted.

Food and water cannot efface the signs of undernourishment, however. Only a 7 year old boy was noted in the class whose emaciated little face and long body recalled the description of Oliver Twist. He is one of a family of 11 children supported by charitable agencies. Others who do not show the effects of hunger so clearly are equally in need.

The Hendricks school is only one of many where the emergency is great. Lunches were served last year by teachers are impossible this year because the teachers are payless.

Aid for the Hungry School Children's Fund, opened by THE TRIBUNE to "feed the hungry" for the helpless innocents, who cannot bear to see the pitiful miserable, is functioning in many schools. The penny lunches are now available to thousands of children who would otherwise have nothing but water between the time of their scanty breakfast—if any—and the equally sketchy dinner.

LONE BANDIT ROBS MANAGER IN LOOP CAFE

Intimidating the manager, a lone bandit last night robbed Maurice's restaurant at 175 West Madison street of $900. The manager, C. H. Denikoff, told police that the man entered after all patrons had left, held his hand in his pocket and ordered him to hand over the money from the till. Denikoff did so, giving the bandit $150. The robber then made Denikoff open the café safe, from which he took $750. At no time did the thief display a revolver, the manager told police. However, he feared the man held one in his pocket, he said.

RAILROADS WILL MAKE COUNTER OFFER TO I. C. C.

Willing to Lend, but Not Give to Weaker Lines.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 22.—(AP)—America's big brother railroads today pronounced themselves willing to help their little brothers meet the vicissitudes of business.

Accepting in principle the plan of the interstate commerce commission to pool revenues resulting from freight rate increases to be granted by the commission, the Association of Railway Executives appointed a committee to confer with the commission to obtain a "more definite understanding and to suggest certain modifications."

The freight rate increases, not general in character, will be allowed by the commission only if the earnings resulting therefrom are utilized for weaker roads.

Plan Agreed Upon.

As explained by a railroad executive who attended the closed sessions, the rail chiefs agreed:

1. That the commission's pool plan should be adopted if certain obstacles can be surmounted.

2. That the increased earnings resulting from the rise in freight rates should be pooled, the pool to be administered by the railroads, not a government agency.

3. That, while weaker roads will be granted funds from the pool, the funds will be loans, not gifts.

4. That railroads accepting such loans will not pay dividends.

5. That the association cease consideration of the plan until their appointed committee has conferred with the commission and pronounced itself ready to report.

The important issue was described as the determination that the funds shall be loaned, not given, and that the railroads administer the funds, not the government.

Wages Get Little Notice.

While the executives were said not to be satisfied with the commission's plan to give them only a portion of the rate increases sought it was understood they felt there was no other way.

Wages were given little notice. One executive, addressing the body, said that until the commission's plan for relief had been fully explored and found wanting no wage cuts should be sought. Labor leaders, he said, would be correct in stating, if wage cuts were sought now, that the chiefs have not exhausted all other avenues of relief.

The rail chiefs proposed no official action, and the matter is considered closed for the remainder of the meeting.

J. P. Morgan Represented.

Next for consideration will be the competition of the waterways, pipe lines, and buses. The interstate commerce commission recommended that they be subject to regulation similar to that which the railroads now obey. This competition has long been attacked by the rail companies but a cohesive program has been lacking.

Two well known bankers were in Atlantic City today—Edward T. Stotesbury of J. P. Morgan & Co. and Joseph Widener, financier. Both are directors of the Reading railroad and ostensibly were here to attend the meeting of the board of that railroad.

While officials would not comment on their presence, one executive said they had conferred with members of the advisory council. Many believe that bankers, while not satisfied with the commission's plan, feel it is the best available and should be adopted with reservations.

Will Continue Conferences.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Representatives of the clerical forces of the Pennsylvania railroad system who have been here two days discussing departmental affairs with company representatives, will continue conferences at regional headquarters at Chicago, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. The Chicago and Philadelphia representatives left for home tonight.

Whether decisions were reached here was not made known. It was said any announcements will be made after subjects had been further discussed by the regional groups.

The matter of expenses, downward revision of which was said to be necessary, was the subject. Whether this reduction will be secured through direct wage cuts, reduction in time or curtailment of staffs was not made known.

United Against Pay Cuts.

Waterloo, Ia., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Railroad employés are "standing united against any reduction in railway wage scales," D. B. Robertson, Cleveland, international president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, told the Iowa meeting of the brotherhood and auxiliary today.

"There are 600,000 fewer men employed on railroads at the present time than there are under normal conditions," Robertson declared. "The men who are working part time need every cent they can make under the present wage scale and those working full time have the same responsibility, are handling the same loads per train, and are making the same revenue for the employers as formerly."

Outlines Coördination Plan

Boston, Mass., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Plans of the country's railroads, particularly the Pennsylvania railroad, to coördinate all agencies of transportation, but especially the motor truck and bus, were outlined today by John F. Deasy, vice president of the Pennsylvania, in an address before the annual meeting of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

"If, and where, highway transportation is more efficient and economical than rail transportation, no one has any right to stand in the way, and rail service should give way to highway service," Deasy said. "But, if the two can be coördinated to produce a better or cheaper service to the public, then most unquestionably that should be our aim."

Couzens Backs Decision

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee, today gave his approval of the railroad freight rate case as decided by the interstate commerce commission.

"I am not opposed to the consolidation of railroads when it is done strictly in the public interest," Senator Couzens declared.

Senator Couzens said he saw no objection to the pooling plan.

Now Chase & Sanborn's Coffee comes to you doubly good . . . Rushed to your grocer fresh from the roasters by swift, "fresh food" delivery service, every can marked with an expiration date. You can't buy a stale can of this dated coffee, for any unsold when its date has expired is immediately replaced with fresh.

Chase & Sanborn have made this tremendous change in the method of delivering coffee, because scientists have discovered that coffee is a perishable food, like milk and butter.

THEY FOUND that all coffee contains a delicate oil, which, when fresh, carries the marvelous flavor and aroma you love. But it is also this delicate oil which makes coffee a perishable "fresh food." For in a comparatively short time after roasting it begins to turn rancid, just as butter does. Naturally this rancid oil affects the flavor and aroma of the coffee . . . and scientists say it frequently causes indigestion, headaches, sleeplessness.

Buy a can of Chase & Sanborn's today . . . the one coffee that's guaranteed against staleness . . . reaches you always perfectly fresh, at the peak of its marvelous flavor.

So that you may get it always fresh, Chase & Sanborn's Coffee is rushed to your grocer by swift "fresh food" delivery service, every can marked with an expiration date.

Broome Stages' Presents Groups of British Actors

Generations Strut from Cradle to Tomb.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

[Broome Stages," by Clemence Dane (Winifred Ashton). Published yesterday by Doran]. Published yesterday.

Last summer when I was in London Clemence Dane's "Broome Stages" had just been published. It was confounding the critics and bookmen for superlatives from all sides. Frank Swinnerton insisted that I take, as an aid and a comfort for the voyage home, the copy which was sent him. He said the book was sure to be the big one of the fall in London. Everyone else said so, too. It was proclaimed another "The Good Companions." It, like that book, was a vast volume of one hundred-odd pages.

GEORGE DANE.

Two weeks have not depreciated the latter's prophecy. They have indeed. "Broome Stages" is unquestionably the rage in England. Surely it began a career of equal quality in the other half of the English speaking world that makes, or breaks, the reputations as well as the fortunes of English writers. "Broome Stages" will achieve in America a public vaster than that in England and a public just as enthusiastic, you may be sure. For "Broome Stages" is the kind of long book that gives its readers delight in hundreds of pages without their losing emotions of the turning of the last page, and ends with the reader still wanting more.

It is the story of generation after generation of Broomes, beginning with the first Richard Broome, who was born in 1710, spent his childhood among brooms and literally fell into the business of being an actor through one day in a roof and ending with the third Broome whose audiences were counted by the millions. "Broome Stages" tells the story of one family drawn from the days of strolling players of Shakespeare, when the Manager wandered over the face of England in search of their audiences and, in the days when the Broomes sit in their impregnable boxes of the movies and the theaters the world over come to them.

It is an audience always to watch and even in their most private moments they were unable to forget that they were public characters] the most intimate life took on a certain quality. They loved dramatically. They hated dramatically. They married spectacularly. They died in loneliness. The old Robert Broome shot himself while in the back room of his bar at the performance which he had made his debut in his own most famous role, Shylock, using pistols that were destined, should that son ever play a bad Shylock, to keep art true. Broome tradition understood such gestures. It was only one of generations of gestures bred from the very existence of the Broome being. They were a spectacular breed. Their story makes a spectacular tale, rich with an innate melodrama.

There were no boring Broomes. Clemence Dane has done a beautiful and a thrilling job of the vast parade of the Broome family. Seven generations of excitement and awards, for never did the Broomes fail in the drama of life. Seven generations of the English stage, she writes as well. And seven generations of English life itself.

THE STAGE

WILLIAM FAVERSHAM, at the conclusion of his engagement with the Chicago Civic Shakespeare company, will appear here in the title rôle of "Colonel Newcome," the late Michael Morton's dramatization of Thackeray's novel. The production will be sponsored by two Chicago citizens, Evan Evans and Felix Mendelsohn, who hope that this will be the first step in the foundation of a permanent dramatic company in Chicago. The organization will adopt a subscription plan for its ticket sale, following the example of the Theater Guild and the Dramatic league.

Negotiations have progressed to the point of securing one of the first class playhouses in the "loop." Henry Ainley, eminent on the London stage, will be associated with Mr. Faversham, in the rôle of Clive Newcome.

—o—

"The Venetian" will end its stay at the Harris theater tomorrow night, and thus will omit the fourth week of its allotted time on the Dramatic league's Chicago schedule. The league announces that subscribers to performances in the fourth week may secure reservations at the final performances, or may use their franchise for a reservation at Ethel Barrymore's staging of "The School for Scandal," now at the Grand Opera house.

"The Venetian" will be transferred to New York for an engagement at the Booth theater, beginning Nov. 2. "Mrs. Moonlight" will be the next play on the Dramatic league's schedule for the Harris theater, opening Nov. 2.

—o—

Christmas week will bring "Three's a Crowd," a musical show of great popularity in New York, into the Erlanger theater. This entertainment contains the three stars of the "First Little Show"—Clifton Webb, Fred Allen, and Libby Holman. Others in the company are Tamara Geva, the California Collegians, Helen Ault, Amy Revere, Joan Clement, Harriet Hammill, Portland Hoffa, Fred MacMurray, Percy Launders, and Lou Wood.

—o—

In spite of its popularity the "Third Little Show"—Beatrice Lillie, Ernest Truex, little show girls and all—will desert the Great Northern theater at the end of next week, to continue its tour. Its successor has not yet been announced. This removal of one of the town's reigning successes illustrates a new policy of the theatrical impresarios this season. They are trying to keep the shows moving around the map instead of digging in for Chicago runs.

—o—

Whitford Kane of the Chicago Civic Shakespeare company has received an invitation to serve as judge in the dramatic art section of the Aonach Tailteann games in Dublin next June.

Church Group Attacks 'Obey' Among Married

Unitarians Also Oppose U. S. Pledge to Fight.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 22.—(AP)—The wife or husband who demands literal observance of the marriage ceremony word "obey" was termed out of date in a resolution adopted today by the fourth biennial conference of the American Unitarian association.

The resolution said:

"No member of the family is the property of any other member of the family. Under modern conditions, the family must be established upon a purely democratic basis.

"It is the conviction of this group that the marriage ceremony should be invested with seriousness and importance. We deplore all sensationalism and casualness in connection with the ceremony."

—o—

Resolutions also were adopted advocating:

Cancellation of interallied war debts on condition that armaments are limited and drastically reduced.

That the United States join the world court and formulate a policy for the preservation of peace in case of a threatened violation of the Kellogg pact.

That the U. S. government formulate a policy for disarmament, including abolition of the private manufacture of munitions.

That the U. S. government set a definite date to give self-government to the Philippines.

—o—

A resolution presented by Frank D. Witherbee, chairman of the resolutions committee was adopted after some discussion, putting the conference on record as protesting against the decision of the Supreme court by which the Rev. Douglas C. McIntosh, Yale divinity school professor, was refused citizenship because he refused to promise to bear arms.

The body conference approved a pledge of its members to exert "all possible efforts to have congress to find some relief, if necessary, by constitutional amendment, from the intolerable results of the Supreme court decision as it affects both the native born citizen and applicant for citizenship who have or feel they may have religious scruples against bearing arms in war."

A commission to study the proposal that church properties be no longer exempt from taxation was approved.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

ELIMINATION PLAY.

For several days we have been giving things away. We have discovered that it pays—when done at the proper time and place.

Yesterday's problem particularly emphasized the necessity of timing these gifts. It was not a coup but an elimination play. It might more aptly be called the "when not to finesse play." This was the hand:

NORTH.
♠—9, 5
♥—K, 8, 6, 5
♦—8, 6, 3, 2

WEST
♠—K, J, 10, 2
♥—9, 4
♦—A, K, Q, 9
♣—Q, J, 10

EAST
♠—8, 7, 6, 4, 3
♥—7
♦—7, 5, 4
♣—8, 4, 3, 2

SOUTH (Dealer).
♠—A, Q
♥—A, Q, J, 10, 3, 2
♦—J, 10
♣—A, 9, 8

South opened the bidding with two hearts (game invitation). West doubled. North, with two supporting tricks, bid three hearts. East passed. South bid the fourth heart, and all passed.

West took in the ♦ K and ♦ Q, then led the A, which was trumped by South with the ♥ 10.

South had lost two tricks and could only afford to lose one more. There was one obvious loser in clubs and if the ♠ Q were lost game would also be lost. If West could be forced to lead a spade to South's A-Q everything would be lovely. West evidently could be put in the lead with the club trick, but West would not lead a spade if he could help it. However, if South could so fix his hand and dummy so that the lead of any suit but spades could be trumped in the dummy, allowing South to discard the ♠ Q, the game would be in.

South led out the ♥ A and ♥ Q, clearing the trump suit. He then led a small club to dummy's king, leading back dummy's last diamond, which South trumped. South then led the ♣ A from his own hand, followed by a small club, which West took. At this point the dummy has no diamonds and no clubs. If West leads a spade he leads up to South's A-Q. If West leads either a diamond or a club (he has no more clubs, but South does not know this), South can trump such lead in the dummy and discard his ♠ Q upon it.

If South had been careless enough to let West take his club trick before clearing the diamonds from the dummy or the clubs from both his own hand and the dummy, West could have put South back into the lead and the ♠ Q and game would have been lost.

In this particular hand, because of West's double, South was able to place him pretty definitely with the ♠ K.

But even if South had not been able to place the K in West's hand, he nevertheless would have played the hand in precisely the same way, for if the location of the ♠ K had not been determined a finesse would have had only a 50-50 chance of success, while South's play was bound to be successful provided that the losing club was taken by West. If, on the other hand, East had taken the club, South could still try the finesse and would have lost nothing by his attempted elimination play.

The hand given below is not quite the same as the hand we have just discussed:

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer. To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card, cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Omaha Dancer to Wed Son of British Duke

Adele Astaire Says So in New York.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The Evening Standard tonight said Adele Astaire, American actress, is engaged to be married to Lord Charles Cavendish, younger son of the duke of Devonshire.

Dancer, in New York, Confirms the Story.

New York, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Broadway was much interested today in a report that Adele Astaire was to marry an English lord.

The wedding will be next June, said Miss Astaire, daughter of an Omaha manufacturer, who hobnobs with the prince of Wales and Bernard Shaw.

She said Lord Charles was in Ireland and will arrive in this country soon to plan for their wedding.

Lord Cavendish, who was born in 1905, worked here in the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. until a year ago.

—o—

The Astaires came from Omaha to make a hit as a dancing team on two continents. Miss Astaire has been reported engaged before but thus far has never married. In 1928 there were predictions she would marry William Gaunt Jr., an Englishman. Early this year she denied a rumor she was engaged to Cornelius V. Whitney.

In the summer of 1928 she and William B. Leeds were burned when a backfire ignited gasoline seepage in his speedboat, but she quickly recovered at a hospital. She was 31 years old last month.

She and her brother began their stage career as child dancers in Omaha and Chicago. They reached New York in 1916 in a musical called "Over the Top." That failed. They immediately went to London. There they succeeded. Ever since they have been British stage favorites.

Their succeeding triumphs in "Funny Face" and "The Band Wagon" made them favored habitues of society circles in New York and London.

French Fashion Expert Says Women's Dress Is International Now

New York, Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Clothes should be designed for "the chic woman, who is international," and not for the woman of America, France, Spain or any other country, Lucien Lelong, French couturier, told an audience of more than 300 members of the Fashion Group and their guests at a luncheon at Sherry's today.

He was quizzed by the members in an informal discussion on fashions. They sought to obtain his opinion on almost everything relating to styles, from make-up and perfumes to jewel ornamentation and dress fabrics. He admitted it is a compliment to any designer to have his clothes widely copied, through many price ranges, but that it's a business disaster.

"When I see some of my models in shop windows offered for a few dollars," he said, "I feel very bad; but what can I do?"

JOSE ITURBI, SOLOIST WITH THE CHICAGO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mr. Stock's second program with the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Orchestra hall last night introduced the first soloist of the season, also the first orchestral novelty. The soloist was Jose Iturbi of Spain, pianist; the novelty was a symphony accredited to the key of A major by Pierre-Octave Ferroud of France.

There was something of a contrast between symphony and piano numbers. Late Ferroud was set against early Debussy, the Fantaisie for piano and orchestra, also antique Liszt, the concerto in E flat. After looking them all over, one is somewhat inclined to the conclusion that the best part of the program was found in two other numbers, magnificent performances of Georg Schumann's "Liebesfruehling" Overture and Richard Strauss' "Don Juan." After all, these are the ones that remain in the memory.

Mr. Iturbi has played several times in Chicago, as soloist with the orchestra and in independent recitals. At all times he has excelled in the loveliness of the piano, particularly when that loveliness was in gentle mood. Wherever Debussy was graceful in his Fantaisie—it dates back to the '80s—there Mr. Iturbi cascaded charm in all directions. Where he did not was where Debussy took a different line. And for that same reason the Liszt piece had its spots in last night's performance that gave an impression less of the resistless course of an athlete down the field than of the impulse of a person under pronounced nervous strain and in something of a hurry. Translated into more musical terms, it meant that Mr. Iturbi was more under the influence of sustained melody and fine, curving arabesques than in the lift of rhythm.

The Ferroud symphony had its points of entertainment. I believe that it would have had more public acclaim if the composer had been able to devise basic themes of more importance. Modernized harmonization was plentiful and rather pleasant in its acidity. But the themes were shrubs when full grown, stately trees would have been more to the purpose.

Relief Fund Grows Fast; Clubs Helping

Total Nearly $3,500,000; Kiwanis Boosting.

Contributions totaling $325,000 were reported yesterday by the campaign managers of the joint emergency relief fund. The total of the fund is now $3,483,643. The total sought is $3,800,000.

A quarter of a million dollars was added to the fund by the International Harvester company and its employés. The corporation donated $125,000 and the employés pledged an additional $125,000. A number of other corporations made contributions as follows:

American Steel Foundries	$ 7,500
Continental Casualty Company	10,000
Harris Trust and Savings Bank	17,500
F. A. Poor & Co.	5,000
Quaker Oats Company	20,000
Signode Steel Strapping Company	5,000
Standard Gas and Electric Company	20,000

—o—

Kiwanis members from 33 Kiwanis clubs in Cook county attended a rally yesterday at the Hotel Sherman and pledged their efforts in helping to raise the total sought. Speakers included Mayor Cermak, Edward L. Ryerson, president of the relief committee; Samuel Insull Jr., chairman of the committee; and Charles S. Dewey.

"Too much stress has been given to the problem of dealing with homeless men," Mr. Ryerson declared. "Of the $3,800,000 to be raised, $7,300,000 has been tentatively agreed upon as the amount to be set aside for dealing with families. The remainder will go to health agencies and the homeless men and women."

Mr. Insull promised that the fund will be "impartially and intelligently administered."

"We are raising this fund not only to help 50,000 families, but to show the outside world that Chicago can take care of itself in emergencies," he said. "If this campaign is a success, it will demonstrate that times are not really so bad as we might think."

Each of about 45,000 families expected to need relief monthly will receive about $30 a month, he said. He admitted that "those who need relief would rather work for it, but because there are no jobs to be had, it would cost far more to create artificial jobs than they are worth."

The story of the campaign is being carried by an army of speakers throughout the city, Hal M. Lytle, chairman of the speakers' division, announced yesterday. He said that speakers have already been furnished to 250 meetings and many more engagements have been made for the future. He also announced the creation of a speaking group which will spread the message of the relief campaign to the foreign language groups in the city.

CEREALS SECOND ONLY TO MILK IN CHILDREN'S DIET

Why It Is Important; Its Preparation.

BY MARY MEADE.

Perhaps you already know the importance of cereals in the diet of the child, whether of preschool age, elementary school age or adolescence. Or perhaps you have noticed in children's menus from time to time the ever-present cereal and wondered at its preeminence. The fact is—this particular item of diet is so important that it cannot be overemphasized. It ranks, probably second to milk.

Cereal jelly made by cooking a whole grained cereal thoroughly [from 4 to 6 hours] and straining through a fine sieve is the very first food recommended to supplement the milk diet of infants. As the child grows older and develops a stronger digestive system the cereal may be varied ever so slightly and the quantity increased. But it should be present always. The warm cooked ones make staple breakfast dishes. Ready-to-eat varieties can be reserved for suppers or for very warm weather. For the child of school age food made from cereal grain should contribute approximately 25 per cent of the total daily calories.

Here are the fual requirements of children according to body weights:

1- 2 years	45-40 calories per pound per day
3- 5 years	40-35 calories per pound per day
6- 9 years	35-30 calories per pound per day
10-13 years	30-25 calories per pound per day
14-17 years	25-20 calories per pound per day
18-20 years	20-17 calories per pound per day

This requirement may vary in some cases depending on the bodily activity.

Food in general serves three body needs:

1. The need for fuel and energy.
2. The need for building and growth of body.
3. The need for regulation of body functions.

These needs must necessarily be met. If they are not, the diet is not adequate and the body is not properly nourished. Cereal grains or foods made from these grains supply all of these requirements in some degree. They contribute primarily, sources of energy to the diet. Of secondary importance is the protein content. This constituent is not present in sufficient quantity or quality to be relied upon as the sole source, but it can be much improved and made highly efficient with the addition of relatively small amounts of milk.

Ash Constituents.

The ash constituents or the minerals present in any food serve as the regulators of the body functions. Cereals have been found to be important conveyors of iron and to contain a high phosphorus content. Aside from these two, the ash constituents of cereals are affected greatly by the milling processes. The outer coat and the germ of the grain contain most of the mineral matter, and, except in the case of whole grain cereals, most of this portion is destroyed or wasted. Oatmeal retains the highest mineral content and for this and other reasons is the preferred cereal for infant and child feeding.

Vitamins, too, hold a strong position as regulators. Grains cannot be relied upon for vitamin A, but they do, however, contain liberal amounts of vitamin B, the embryo and bran of the grain being the most abundantly supplied parts.

With all this in mind, then, cereals should appear in the child's menu at least once a day, together with the all-important milk, fruit juice, egg yolk, dry toast, green vegetable pulp, etc. Whole grained cereals are preferred. Although it is usually considered a breakfast dish, it can be served at other meals as well.

The evening meal, which should be light since bedtime is not far off, is a good time to see that the child eats his "oats." The only advice we have to offer in the preparation of cereals is to be sure that they are thoroughly cooked. Long, slow cooking is important to soften the cellulose and to completely develop the flavor of the grain. With either flaked or cooked cereals milk or cream may be used freely, but sugar should never be used. The presence of sugar is apt to satisfy the appetite too quickly and cause the child to tire of his plain, simple foods.

And the simpleness of the small child's food is important. He should never be pitied because of his simple diet. If he is not allowed to taste heavier, more highly seasoned foods prepared for adults he will never miss them or create a desire for them. The simple diet adequately supports the child's rapid growth. Nothing more can be expected.

If a change seems advisable in the diet of the child make it a very slight one. A little difference in appearance, flavor or texture means more than we realize. Or even substitute one cereal for another when they are nutritionally interchangeable.

CRANBERRIES AT LOWEST PRICE IN FIFTEEN YEARS

Suggestions for Some New Uses of Product.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

That queen of berries that usually rules some portion of the festive board of Americans beginning about this time of the year, the cranberry, is available to Chicagoans at the lowest price in 15 years. This announcement was made yesterday by A. U. Chaney, for 25 years general manager of the American cranberry exchange, which has its headquarters on the South Water market.

Ten cents a pound seems to be the prevailing retail price, although the cranberry season is just starting. In addition to this good news, it seems the weather this fall has been practically ideal for harvesting a crop of good quality and one that will keep well in stores or in storage until the 1931 cranberry has been consumed, whether that be in January or not until April.

18 Cents Year Ago.

A production of 640,000 barrels is the estimate of the United States crop reporters, as compared with 56,000 barrels packaged in 1930. One year ago the fruit was selling in Chicago stores at retail prices of 18 to 20 cents a pound or quart.

States in which the cranberry is a sizable cash crop are Massachusetts, where estimates place the total this year at 445,000 barrels; New Jersey, 138,000; Wisconsin, 43,000, and Washington and Oregon, which together will have about 14,360 barrels. Members of the growers' exchange, however, have revised these figures to indicate Wisconsin probably will have about 50,000 barrels and Oregon and Washington about 10,000 to 12,000 instead of the government's estimate.

Cranberry juice cocktails are something new and yet old in the line of food and drink that housewives are being urged to try this year if their domiciles are not already invested in knowledge of this tart and refreshing drink.

Where They Grow.

Botanists report that the fruit is produced on certain plants of the genus Vaccinium, found in marshy land in northern and central Europe and northern North America.

"Stems are wiry, creeping and of varying length; the leaves are ever green, dark and shining above and glaucous below and not more than half an inch in length," according to one description. "Flowers appear in May and June, although the berries do not ripen until late August or September."

Three principal shapes are recognized. One is the "cherry" or round, another the "bugle" or oval, and the third is the "pear" or bell-shaped. Air and moisture are the principal requirements for thrifty plants. Peat or vegetable mold is the favorite soil for American cranberry bogs. On the top of the soil the grower spreads a layer of two to four inches of sand to keep the vines short and close.

Flooding is one of the scientific developments utilized to protect the vines in the winter and from early fall or late spring frosts or against fire or insect damage.

Harvesting of cranberries is a hand labor job facilitated by the use of rakes or combs which pull the fruit from the plants. Fifty barrels to an acre is considered a good yield, although improved methods of cultivation and plant feeding have permitted a harvest of three to four times that much in some instances.

Food Shoppers Offered Bargains in Lettuce

Surprisingly cheap lettuce for this time of the year should be available to shoppers on the basis of wholesale prices, it was indicated this week by dealers on the South Water market. Boxes containing an average of four dozen heads are priced wholesale at around $3 or between six and seven cents a head. Depending on the size, it is estimated lettuce should be retailing at around 10 to 12 cents a head.

One of the best salesmen I know put me wise to this:
We were talking about how hard a man has to dig to get business these days, and what a nervous strain it is. And he went on to say: "If it hadn't been for an advertisement, I don't believe I could have accomplished half what I have.
"I was nervous, didn't sleep very well, and things were steadily getting worse.
"One day I saw an advertisement which sold me on giving up caffeine—but which, at the same time, urged me not to make the mistake of denying myself a warming, relaxing drink at night. It was an ad for Kellogg's Kaffee Hag Coffee. And it went on to say that it was pure coffee, free of caffeine effect, with a friendly warmth and delicious flavor that would help me relax, aid digestion and induce restful sleep. I began drinking it. And as a result, I've never felt better in my life."
Kellogg's Kaffee Hag Coffee is nothing but the purest, finest coffee—97% caffeine-free—and with the indigestible wax removed. You can't tell it from the best coffee you ever tasted. The new Kaffee Hag Coffee blend was recently voted by a group of experts to be unsurpassed.

TRIBUNE TO OPEN COOKERY SCHOOL FOR HOUSEWIVES

Expert Instruction Offered in Four Districts.

Are you a good, bad, or indifferent cook, you should look forward to the opening of the first CHICAGO TRIBUNE School of Cookery on Tuesday, Nov. 3. The kind of cook you are, whether you despair of ever making good pie crust, or whether you brag of luscious cakes—makes not the least bit of difference; for Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, the conductor of the school [under the supervision of Mary Meade], has a whole bag of tricks up her sleeve which can't fail to interest you.

MRS. IDA M. CHITWOOD.

Mrs. Chitwood, known from coast to coast as a cooking expert and able lecturer, will lecture and demonstrate four times a week throughout the month of November. With a record of 240 successful cooking schools to her credit, Mrs. Chitwood, a graduate of the George Peabody school of Nashville and the Boston School of Cookery, has instructed thousands of women in the fine points of cooking.

First Class at Trianon.

The first class will be held in the Trianon ballroom, 6201 Cottage Grove avenue, at 1:45 on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday afternoons, Nov. 3, 4, 5, and 6.

The second session will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of the following week at 1:45 p. m. at the Aragon ballroom, 1100 Lawrence avenue. The dates are Nov. 10, 11, 12, and 13.

The third will begin on Tuesday, Nov. 17, at 1:45 o'clock in Guyon's Paradise ballroom, 4000 Washington boulevard. The three succeeding sessions for the west side will be held at the same place and at the same hour on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, Nov. 18, 19, and 20.

And the final meeting will take place at the Coliseum, 1513 South Wabash avenue, on Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 23 and 24. There will be both afternoon and evening sessions. The afternoon sessions will start promptly at 1:45 and the evening sessions at 7:45 o'clock.

Convenient for Women.

If you approach a soufflé in fear and trembling, offer leathery biscuits and the word "leathery" is a polite way to put it—to your husband, weep perplexed tears over a crestfallen devil's food, and think unmentionable things when delicious looking meats are carved at your table—if you are a victim of any cooking mishaps—let Mrs. Chitwood and Mary Meade come to your rescue in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE School of Cookery.

To make it convenient for Chicago women to attend as many sessions as possible of the cooking school, THE TRIBUNE has divided the school into four sections—one for each part of the city.

In addition to the lectures tuneful entertainment will be provided for the guests of THE TRIBUNE at the 16 sessions of the school of cookery.

Just to take the opening day as a sample of what the women will enjoy are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bennett, an accomplished musical couple who will direct the crowd in old fashioned community singing. There will be "K-K-Katy," "Old Black Joe," "Old MacDonald Had a Farm," and many others.

The entertainment will not only be good for the ears but also the eyes. Pretty dancers from the leading terpsichorean studios of Chicago have promised to be present.

Juvenile Solo Dances.

After the Bennetts have everybody in good humor, J. Arthur Edmunds, director of the Chicago Musical college, will sing and then you'll hear a duet by Miss Ruth Streiter and Betty Phillips, radio stars.

And to top off the first show the Ethel and Gertrude Morgan School of Dancing will offer a group of solo dances by "juvenile wonders."

Besides the interesting lectures and demonstrations of fine cookery the women who attend the sessions will be offered valuable prizes. The distribution of the prizes is to be conducted on a daily and weekly schedule. Boxes of food, individual samples of food products, general household equipment, and kitchen equipment of all kinds will make up the list. They are all to be given away free to the women who attend the sessions of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE School of Cookery.

ENTERTAIN AT TRIBUNE COOKERY SCHOOL

The Czardas, a group of dancers who will perform at the Thursday afternoon, Nov. 5, session of The Tribune School of Cooking, at the Trianon ballroom. They are Marguerite Bagge, Elena Batashova, Esther Mary Bossert, Claire Stanwyck, Mary Ann Stone, and Betty Wenzel.

Pumpkin Pies! Here They Are by the Trainload

BY PAUL POTTER.

Chicagoland may rest assured that its pumpkin pie appetite may be satiated completely and at frequent intervals in the approaching colder days.

Hundreds of tons of pumpkins have been fetched in by farmers of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, and Ohio the last few weeks. And this week has seen the completion of the cooking and hermetic sealing of millions of shiny tins full of that highly flavored and meaty delicacy which makes pumpkin pie a winter favorite.

A Cannery Inspection.

Scientific canneries have speeded up the task of preparing pumpkins for the table. Follow, with me, the guids who takes us to the rear of the plant, where great piles of pumpkins are being sorted, and the stems removed. With pitchforks they are tossed into a truck and thence into a warm bath where the hulls are cleansed.

Then the pumpkins drop into a flurry of knives, to be chopped up and ridded of seeds and soft interiors. Through a shower bath, with jets of water at 100 pounds pressure, the slices are rinsed, falling out into great meshed kettles.

"We don't take the skin off the pumpkins," explains the guide. "We take the pumpkin out of the skins."

And the laborious task grandmother had of peeling is eliminated by a "wilting" process, where the kettles are placed in pressure cookers for 14 minutes at 250 degrees of steam heat at 15 pounds pressure. This wilts the sliced portions to half their former size, and by forcing them through sieves, the skins and fibrous pulp are speedily removed.

Two Types of Pack.

Water is pressed out of this pulp for one of the two types of "pack" in canneries, until but 9 or 10 per cent water content remains—just enough to retain the flavor and color. This sort of pulp becomes the dry pack, while the pumpkin that has not had the excess water squeezed out becomes the wet pack. The dry pack pumpkin is more expensive, comes in smaller cans, but will make the same amount of pie as the wet pack.

A second squeezing through a fine screened "pulper" makes sure that only the juicy pulp remains. This step compares with the use of a colander in the home kitchen way of doing up pumpkin. From the pulper, the appetizing golden brown product is piped while hot into an automatic can filler or stuffer, as it is called.

And we marvel at the precision of filling a long, constantly flowing line of heated tins to an exact measurement, without spilling a drop. We try to, but cannot, follow the clicking of the lids as they come down and are sealed airtight without a bit of air space, dropping off into another shower bath in merry clinking fashion.

Cooked By Steam Pressure.

Then comes the cooking. In great steel retorts, the kettles filled with sealed cans of pumpkin are held under steam pressure at 242 degrees heat for 70 minutes. This must be done to sterilize completely, and even a half degree short of it might imperil the keeping qualities.

No shortcuts or shortcomings in this devious path can be countenanced, and the slightest little error becomes the immediate concern of chemists, cooks or the plant superintendent. This is also why only cans that have a golden color inside, the enameled tins, are used, and why the enamel is baked on to the tin at 400 degrees temperature.

A final cold bath for the hot cans brings them to below 100 degrees temperature, when they may be stored. As orders come in, the cans are again inspected and labels added for shipment to the far corners of the nation. Such a plant has a water bill of $400 a month, in addition to water used from its own three wells, during the summer.

Pumpkin-Honey Pie Feast for Wisconsin Farmers

Madison, Wis., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Pity the poor farmer who will fall back on the products of his land more than ever this year to supply his family table. The marketing department of the department of agriculture in a circular reports that pumpkin pie baked with honey is a product available without cost to most farms that is not too hard to take. "Cakes, cookies, candies, puddings and muffins all are improved by a dash of honey," James Gwin, marketing specialist, reports.

CITRUS FRUITS PLENTIFUL AND CHEAP THIS YEAR

Citrus fruits promise to be plentiful and cheap this winter, H. M. Pitt, citrus fruit market expert in Chicago, said yesterday that this was the indication from reports from California and other states.

Florida and Texas now are shipping from the new grapefruit crop. California is "winding up" on the Valencia orange shipments. Lemons are plentiful and priced at about half what they were in retail stores during the summer.

Valencias Here Till Nov. 15.

"The present supply of Valencia oranges will last until about Nov. 15, but by that time consumers will find some of the new navel oranges on the market, with plentiful supplies at fairly low prices by Thanksgiving time," said Mr. Pitt. "Later there will be heavy Florida shipments."

One thing which he guarantees will please shoppers is the fact that the new crop of oranges will be of such variable sizes that no one size will be scarce.

In other years when there was a shortage of small sized fruit, the price was out of proportion to that for other sizes in which the supply took care of the demand.

Dealers report the grapefruit now being sold in Chicago is of better than average quality for the beginning of the season.

Low Prices Likely.

Last year orange grove owners and citrus producers and shippers said the crop was so large, and consequent prices so low that the returns paid for little more than boxing and freight. The crop this year is said to be equally as large, which leads to a prediction on the market that this winter will see prices no higher than they were a year ago.

OMIT HOBGOBLIN FROM CHILDREN'S HALLOWEEN FUN

Dietitian Tells Modern Ideas for Parties.

Hobgoblins and witches, pumpkins and cornstalks may have a place along with doughnuts, apple cider or an elaborate meal for adult Halloween parties in the next few days, but they are out of the picture if you want to be both fashionable and correct in staging the party for little tots.

White Miss Beatrice Billings, dietitian for the National College of Education in Evanston, didn't express herself in these words, she did set down some valuable and modern ideas on how to plan for a children's Halloween party.

From both the theoretical and practical studied of child rearing, she and a group of skilled child education instructors in what was formerly called the National Kindergarten college would help you to save your time and the fuss of such a party, yet give the youngsters a gleeful and not too emotional celebration.

Party Should Be Small.

"The party should be small in numbers, for those of pre-school or kindergarten age," Miss Billings finds. "Such a group is more congenial and does not overstimulate the youthful emotions.

"Let them have a hand in the preparations, too. In our nursery classes here, we always let the party consist of table decorations, and outside of some foods with a color scheme, the menu is as balanced and nourishing as at any other time.

"We discourage the use of cakes with heavy frostings, or too rich ice creams, when a sponge cake that uses lots of eggs will be cherished just as much by the children without loading their stomachs with sweets in excess.

"The children will be thrilled at helping to plan and create the table decorations, the napkins and other colored paper novelties. They can help to hollow out and cut features in the pumpkin for a centerpiece, and do other things that make them just as happy as if the mother had worked so hard to get things in perfect shape for them."

Personal Invitation Best.

One of the treats for the tots might also be to take the invitations personally, with the mother, to those who are to attend. This little act of knocking at the doorbell, while the mother stands back, and personally inviting the guests, becomes a pleasant memory for the child.

"Avoid an extra meal in planning such a party," counsels Miss Billings. "The party can be held at noon or evening, as the time for the regular meal, and save upsetting the routine of the children and their homes."

HEALTH LABELS ON MANY FOODS CALLED VIOLATION OF LAW

"Breakfast foods, bread, and other bakery products, and alimentary pastes are not medicines," states Dr. P. B. Dunbar, assistant chief, federal food and drug administration, "and such products, bearing on their labels an injudicious use of the word 'health' will be subject to action under the national pure food law."

Several domestic and imported food products bearing label representations and containing statements in the accompanying literature as to their value in maintaining, promoting, or restoring health or in acting directly as therapeutic agents in the treatment of disease have recently appeared upon the market. These forms of labeling, according to Dr. Dunbar, have been noted particularly on cereal products, such as breakfast foods, bread, and other bakery commodities, and alimentary pastes.

In many instances the statements or claims appearing upon the labels are false or misleading to an extent constituting misbranding under the federal food and drugs act. In such cases the administration has proceeded against the commodities shipped within the jurisdiction of the act.

Eat WHOLE GRAIN foods —avoid devitalized foods!

The magnifying glass tells the story! See how the compact wheat kernel has been "popped" into a plump, crunchy tid-bit with the full food value and the glorious flavor of the whole grain.

You will also like HOT Wheat POPS

Here's a simple recipe for a marvelous HOT cereal: To one cup of Wheat POPS add one cup of water already boiling and a pinch of salt. Boil gently 10 minutes, keeping lid on pan. Drain off water and serve with sugar and cream or milk.

BE watchful of your breakfast foods! You may be eating a "filler" that satisfies the appetite but leaves the body starved for genuine, balanced nourishment. Most breakfast foods are devitalized—lacking precious elements stored by Mother Nature in the WHOLE GRAIN.

Science long ago rejected devitalized foods, but for years food chemists were not able to "pop" WHOLE GRAINS into light, crunchy breakfast cereals. Now—for the first time—WHOLE GRAINS are being "popped" into body-building breakfast foods. Just taste WHEAT POPS or RICE POPS! Both have the supreme flavor—the full food value of the WHOLE kernel—iron, lime, proteins, carbohydrates, plus Nature's laxative—bran—for regular, healthful elimination.

POPS are packed with energizing, invigorating foods that stand by you on chill days in fall and winter. Wrapped fresh in the Stays-Crisp Package, POPS stays crisp even while floating in milk or cream. Serve POPS to the whole family for deliciousness—for nourishment—for rugged health! EGGS ARE PUT TO MANY USES IN COOKING WORLD

They Are the Essence of Angel Food Cake.

BY MARY MEADE.

Conversationally the egg is an important article. Count the proverbs you know which contain the word egg. "You can substitute a turnip for an egg only once," says the Chinaman. "You can't make an omelet without breaking the eggs," says the Frenchman. "Don't put all your eggs in one basket," say we Americans. "From the eggs to the apples," said the Romans in describing their grand dinners. Even our slang uses the word, "He is a good egg."

Gastronomically, it is even more important. "The chef is the slave of the egg," said a French cook. When we enumerate all the uses to which we put eggs in cookery, we agree with him. Think of all the good things we would miss if we had to cook without eggs. So many functions do eggs perform in cookery that they have aptly been called the cement that holds the castles of cookery together.

Should Be Cooked Slowly.

When we think of eggs in cookery we frequently think first of their leavening power, as in angel food cake. Because of its structure and composition the white of egg is particularly well adapted for use as a leavening. It is thick and viscous and has the power to enclose air in tiny bubbles forming a foam which will hold its shape for a comparatively long time. When this foam is heated the air expands, the walls of the tiny air bubbles stretch and then "set," and the finished product is light.

In this connection the cooking temperature is important. It should always be low, for heat "sets" or coagulates the egg and we want to be sure that the tiny air bubbles have expanded to the limit before the egg is cooked. If the temperature is too high the egg is cooked and then the air expands and ruptures the thin cell walls and the cake or meringue or souffle falls.

We used to think that egg white, like cream, whipped better if it were very thick and very cold. A recent investigation at Washington State College of Agriculture showed that egg white whipped best when it was moderately thin and when it was at room temperature. In other words, if you plan to make an angel food cake, take the eggs out of the refrigerator an hour or two before you start.

Don't Beat Too Long.

Most recipes say, "beat the egg whites until stiff." They have reached this stage when they will hold their shape when the beater is drawn through the mass, but still retain their shiny appearance and flow slowly when the bowl is tipped.

If egg whites are beaten too long tiny flakes appear and the quantity or volume decreases. These tiny flakes are really cooked egg white, for long beating has the same effect as cooking. Incidentally, the size of the wire or the thickness of the blade of your beater makes a difference in the fineness of the foam, and, consequently, of the finished product. A coarse wire or a thick blade will make larger bubbles and, therefore, a more open texture than one with a fine wire or a thin blade. Either rotary beaters or wire whips give excellent results, though women who use one disapprove entirely of the other.

Have you ever compared an angel food cake which was made without cream of tartar with one which contained it? The cake containing the cream of tartar is whiter and more tender than the one without. Any acid, even such a mild one as cream of tartar, makes egg white tender, and it seems also to act as a bleach. If too much acid is added the egg becomes so tender its own weight pulls it down. Tomato juice added to an omelet makes it tender. If you would have a delicately tender poached egg poach it in tomato juice or add a few drops of vinegar to the poaching water. The latter method does not affect the flavor of the egg.

A Word in General.

Just a word about egg cookery in general. Always cook eggs and egg dishes at low temperatures if you would have a product that is not tough. This is true for poached eggs and so-called "boiled" eggs, as well as for fluffy omelets and dainty meringues. Eggs are protein, and high temperatures toughen all proteins, from eggs to steaks.

And right here I want to make a distinction between hard cooked eggs and hard boiled eggs. Hard cooking is the more desirable method. It consists of cooking the egg at simmering temperature for 35 to 45 minutes and then plunging into cold water. Hard-boiling is cooking the egg at boiling temperature for a shorter time. The latter method results in a tough white that eludes the teeth when chewed with a dark ring around the yolk. This ring is entirely harmless, but it is unattractive. It is due to the combination of the sulfur in the white with the iron in the yolk. The higher the cooking temperature and the longer the time of cooking the more of this dark ring forms. Plunging the egg into cold water as soon as it is cooked helps to prevent its formation.

Contain Vitamin D.

So far we have not even mentioned the yolk of the egg. In cookery, it is important as an emulsifying agent. That is, it has the power to form thin films around tiny drops of oil to prevent them from running together. That is the purpose that egg yolk serves in mayonnaise, Hollandaise sauce, butter cakes, cream puffs, and such dishes. Egg yolk may also be used as a leavening, as in sponge cake.

Nutritionally the egg is much more important than it is conversationally, and at least as important as it is gastronomically, if not more so. Although the white is valuable in the diet for the protein it provides, nutritionally the yolk plays the greater part. It is the portion of the egg that is rich in vitamins and minerals, not to mention the protein and lecithin, the latter a fatlike substance. This is why baby specialists recommend eggs for children, even for very young ones. Older children are expected to have an egg each day just as they have their quart of milk.

Egg yolk, say the investigators, ranks next to cod liver oil as a source of vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin. Dr. Mary Swartz Rose of Columbia university says, "The amount of vitamin D in egg yolk has been found sufficient to safeguard infants during the late winter months against rickets when one yolk a day was fed."

Vitamin A is also present in considerable amounts and since the first indication of a shortage of this vitamin in the diet is a marked decrease in one's resistance to infections such as colds, nutritionists recommend an egg a day, especially in the fall and winter months. Some poultry specialists believe that orange colored yolks are richer in vitamin A than pale, or lemon colored yolks. There is, however, still some argument about this. We do know that chicks hatched from eggs with orange yolks are stronger than those from eggs with very pale yolks.

Rich in Iron.

Of the minerals in eggs iron is present in such an unusually usable form that doctors often recommend egg yolk as a source of iron for babies. Eggs and milk complement each other perfectly. Eggs are rich in iron but poor in calcium, while milk is poor in iron but rich in calcium. Perhaps that is one reason milk and eggs are so frequently associated. The calcium of egg is in the shell, which we discard. Both eggs and milk are rich in phosphorus, another bone and tooth building mineral.

Frequently one hears discussions as to the comparative desirability and nutritive value of brown and white shelled eggs. Color or shell, scientists tell us, is entirely a matter of the breed of bird. On the other hand, the color of the yolk, the texture and color of the white and the flavor of the egg are largely due to feeding. Orange colored yolks result when hens are fed green feeds, such as green grass or alfalfa. Pale colored yolks are the result of all grain feed.

And what of storage eggs? Eggs go into storage in the cool spring months when more are produced than we can eat. They are put in new cases into large, clean, cool rooms, where temperature, humidity, and ventilation are carefuly controlled. In fall and winter, when egg prices would go sky high because of decreased production, these eggs are taken out of storage and put on the market at prices which every one can afford to pay.

Unfortunately, early storage methods did not always give the satisfactory results modern methods give, and so there remains in the minds of many housewives a prejudice against stored eggs. As a matter of fact, they are just as nutritious and serve every cookery purpose just as satisfactorily as strictly fresh eggs. Even the vitamin content does not decrease during storage, so that all of us can still have our eggs.

HOW ABOUT ICE BOX CAKE FOR THAT DESSERT?

It Is Different and Easy to Prepare.

The problem of what to serve as a dessert to top off an otherwise perfect luncheon is one which often confronts the average hostess. Of course, there are always the old standbys such as ice cream, cake, pie or plain pudding which can always be called upon to put the finishing touch to a meal. But most women are on the lookout for the dessert that is just a little different from the ordinary run to serve when entertaining.

How about ice box cake or pudding? They are fancy, yet tasty and substantial, and desserts which work in well with almost any menu. In case you expect to be rushed for time the morning preceding your luncheon, the average ice box cake or pudding can be prepared the night before and left in the refrigerator over night and until the time to serve without suffering any damage. The result will be a dessert that will be worth the time and effort used in the making.

How to Prepare Ice Box Cake.

Either of the two can also be substituted for the traditional ice cream and cake which usually comes in for a big play as a refreshment at informal parties. Preparing it means more work, of course, but it will doubtlessly score a big success with the guests.

For the chocolate ice box cake take four chocolate wafers [2 to 3 inches in diameter] for each individual to be served. Pile the wafers one on top of another with a thick layer of whipped cream between each, ending with a wafer on top. Chill in the refrigerator at least three hours. Serve topped with whipped cream and a maraschino cherry. One-half pint of cream will serve six.

3 cakes sweet chocolate [1⅓ oz.]
¼ cup boiling water
6 tablespoons sugar
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
3 dozen lady fingers
whipped cream

Break the chocolate into small squares and put into the top of a double boiler. Add the water and sugar and place in the lower part of the double boiler. Heat until a smooth chocolate paste is formed, stirring occasionally. Remove from fire and slowly add well beaten egg yolks. Beat vigorously until smooth. Replace over boiling water and cook 2 minutes longer. Add vanilla, stiffly beaten egg whites and salt.

Here Is Another Kind.

THREE MEALS A DAY

From the Tribune Cook Book

The lovely Roman goddess of grains and harvest, Ceres, gave her name to the many grain products we have come to know as cereals. We laymen find it hard to believe that all the cereals with which we are familiar today, and perhaps many more with which we are not, have been born of no more than seven or eight grains.

Cereals are important grain for children. They provide diet roughage, energy from their starch content, and are excellent protective foods. Viewed in the light of their food value, they are not expensive, whether the housewife considers the raw or cooked cereals for her table.

There is little or no danger of overcooking cereals, but many women undercook them. Some grains require a longer period of time than others, and corn meal is an excellent example. Whole grains, generally, need three hours' time, while the more finely ground and chopped varieties, need an hour to an hour and a half. Granular cereals, such as oatmeal, should be put directly into cold water and cooked in a double boiler for three or more hours without stirring. Cereals put in a fireless cooker and left in it overnight should be mixed with the regular amount of water and boiled for five minutes first, and then placed in the cooker.

The above statements about cooking do not, of course, apply to the many manufactured products which reach the home ready for immediate consumption.

FISH MOUSSE.

1½ cups of cooked flaked fish [halibut preferred]
1½ green peppers [finely diced]
4 small cooked carrots [finely diced]
1 teaspoon of salt
⅛ teaspoon of pepper
1½ teaspoons of spicy sauce
¾ teaspoon of celery seed
⅛ teaspoon of paprika
4 small cooked beets [finely diced]
1¼ cups of hot water
1½ tablespoons of granulated gelatine
¼ cup of cold water
Mayonnaise, parsley

Dissolve the gelatine in the cold water. Add the hot water to it and stir until the gelatine is thoroughly dissolved. Combine the other ingredients; mix well with the gelatine and pour into a cold wet mold. When it has set turn out of the mold, cut in slices and serve with a dash of mayonnaise and a sprig of parsley on each slice.

ACORN SQUASH WITH PORK LINKS.

Use one-half squash for each portion. Wash and seed as many ar you need. Cut in halves, and place two pork link sausages in each half squash. Sprinkle with a pinch of salt, and place in a oven to bake until tender. The oven temperature should be approximately 325 degrees Fahrenheit.

COCOANUT MACAROONS.

2 egg whites
1 cup of granulated sugar
1 tablespoon of flour
1 cup of cocoanut
¼ teaspoon of vanilla

Sift together the flour, sugar, and the cocoanut. Beat the egg whites until stiff and dry. Gently fold the dry ingredients into them. Add the vanilla. Drop from a teaspoon on a greased cooky sheet. Bake ten or fifteen minutes in a slow oven [325 degrees Fahrenheit].

Yield: Sixteen macaroons.

SNOWY·WHITE and DISINFECTED

INVESTIGATIONS show that about half the women who do laundering at home still cling to the old idea that to bleach and disinfect white cottons and linens it is necessary to boil them. But women who use Clorox have learned that the heavy, steamy boiler is no longer needed in their laundry routine, for Clorox gives a disinfected cleanliness that spells true protection.

For whether they use machine or tubs, whether they dry their clothes indoors or out, by using Clorox in the soaking suds or first rinse their white cottons and linens come out of the wash snowy white and disinfected, without boiling. A priceless boon in washing household linens, personal garments and baby things!

It is this remarkable double-action—cleansing plus disinfecting—which makes Clorox unique and indispensable among household aids.

Since Clorox is also a stain remover, naturally ordinary spots and stains disappear when it is used in the regular laundering process. Stubborn stains—ink, medicine, fruit, beverage, even scorched spots and mildew—vanish when treated with a stronger solution.

But that is not all. Clorox shortens housework. Every time it is used—in laundry, kitchen or bathroom—it does a job more quickly, more easily and more efficiently.

Try Clorox for any of its uses. You will soon be using it all over the house. The many uses are fully described on the label.

TRY HALLOWEEN PARTY ACCORDING TO THESE RULES

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

How unexpected are the order of the day when it comes to Halloween! What ghosts and goblins and witches will creep out of dark corners and send shivers! Tummies serenading the moon, who knows what his fate may be?

The best protection or at least the most fun is a Halloween party when you may turn Sherlock Holmes with all of your friends and solve the latest murder, conduct a weird and spooky seance, or enjoy an old fashioned party with apple ducking and a ghost parade as the highlights of the evening. There are few holidays the year 'round that present as interesting possibilities for entertaining, especially as far as decorations are concerned.

With a fold or two of crêpe paper, an assortment of spooky articles, and a flare for the fantastic, you can scissor and paste everything from an invitation to the booby prize. And this is the week that you must make all of your plans and do all of the preliminary work, if "work" it can be called.

Saving on Parlor Furniture.

If an attic or a cellar, a hay mow or a garage is available, by all means use it. It not only effects a saving on the parlor furniture but also provides much of that necessary atmosphere. The decorations might be "cat-a-wal," as a well known manufacturer of party materials suggests, giving guests the impression that they have stepped into an old back yard surrounded by a wall on which are perched black cats, humped cats, cats strumming banjos, and cats pouring forth their yearnings in song.

The wall background is obtainable in crêpe paper rolls at most any novelty or department store. You don't have to be a student of cat anatomy to fashion the felines yourself, for the funnier they look the better. As for the lighting effect, make it soft and slightly blue, to simulate moonlight, by covering the chandeliers and lamps with a soft blue paper.

This provides one of the most effective backgrounds, I know, but you can add to the general mystery of the occasion by having strange apparitions peer forth from all sorts of odd places to startle your guests. Ghosts, fashioned of crêpe paper and cardboard, may be encountered partly hidden under a chair or a davenport while the floor lamps may take on the forms of witches or goblins.

Decorate Laundry Tubs, Too.

If the party is in the cellar make use of the family work bench, the laundry tubs, the washing machine, and the electric ironer by decorating them with autumn leaves or using each piece as the basis for some grotesque animal. It's simple too with a little imagination to transform the posts into odd bogies or ghosts.

When it comes to the table there are innumerable decorative schemes. My advice to most any hostess would be a visit to the nearest shop gay with Halloween suggestions where she may select what she wants or, perhaps receive advice on making the center piece, the place cards, and the favors. The other day I noticed an effective decoration for the center of the table—a phantom ship manned by a crew of cats and crows with pumpkins filled with salted nuts for its crew. Another was made by covering a flower holder with orange crêpe paper frills and then placing in the center a spray of natural branches, the roosting place of a wise old owl.

There is no end to the number of ideas for favors, and, especially with children, candy becomes doubly interesting when decked out as a jack o' lantern or a black cat. Packaged candies easily adapt themselves to this purpose. Again you might select bright colored handkerchiefs, wrap them as bonbons, and decorate the packages. For a group of housewives whisk brooms dressed up as witches are attractive as well as practical favors.

Skeleton Hand on Threshold.

Of course Halloween appeals to the younger generation most of all, so a children's party should be the primary interest of every household. Invitations might appear in a mysterious way some dark night this week. A dull thud on the front door will bring the occupants a-flying to the porch to find a skeleton hand on the threshhold bearing the invitation on the reverse side. At the party itself provide costumes for your young guests if possible for wherever was there a child who didn't enjoy "dressing up"?

When it comes to the entertainment there's nothing like ducking for apples, making the witch's cat, and pumpkin exchange as well as many another traditional Halloween stunt. A new game I heard about recently is called "life's journey." Stretch seven strings representing three score years and ten across the room at equal distances apart. At a signal the contestants each with a peanut in the shell balanced on the blade of a table knife, race over the strings to a goal. Success in reaching it without spilling the peanut foretells an age of 70 years.

For the grownups a bridge party probably holds the most interest, but it doesn't have to be an ordinary every day party for an interesting stunt can be planned for each table. Let the guests at one table do their bidding blindly before the cards are dealt and at another they might do their bidding in pantomime. At the third table the guests might be required to wear gloves dyed red, large clumsy, cotton gloves that will make playing as difficult as possible. All of the tallies and prizes may be dressed up in Halloween attire to add further interest.

For a more sophisticated group of Halloween guests stage a seance announcing to the visitors that you have engaged a professional medium. Of course, this will be a fake, but it is a good way to start the felling of the ghost story about the old Drew house or any other you may choose. See if you and your guests don't get a thrill you won't soon forget!

SAVE APPLE JUICE FOR JELLY.

Extracted apple juice poured boiling hot into clean jars and sealed will be ready to be made into jelly whenever it is needed.

Show to Help Art Display in Public Schools

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

This afternoon a private view for the benefit of the Chicago Public School Art society, of which Mrs. Walter S. Brewster is president, will be held in the Chester Johnson galleries, Fine Arts building, with a delightful tea to whet the appetite for the more intangible pleasure derived from the pictures on the walls. These pictures — paintings, drawings and water colors—are of the greatest interest. They are modern and mostly gathered by the French school, but they are relative to all contemporary art in that each is an excellent specimen of the unique artist who created it.

For example, among the larger canvases, consider the brilliant painting by Cezanne of "Portraits of Emile Zola and Paul Alexis in Zola's Home at Medan." This is a curious document of historic and literary flavor. It is kindly, homely, human. Cezanne is not the eccentric but the sincere painter in this.

There is a beautiful night scene by Picasso, "Une Rue la Nuit—Barcelona," which possesses depth and mellow harmony and holds the attention well. For additional interest a self-portrait of the artist painted in his "blue" period is not to be missed. Than consider where the exhibit runs over to England for a moment and brings back three drawings by Joseph Epstein, the sculptor, who has caused the British public to writhe more than any other man of his generation. The drawings are distinctly sculptural in effect, strong, tinged with distortion [remark the arms], and subtly inhuman.

Back into the field of beauty in painting we are drawn by the softly melancholy and romantic "Cavalier en vue d'un Village," by Corot, the vivid, dancing colors in "Algerienne et son enfant," by Renoir, the exquisite perfection of the scattered blossoms in the two "Flower Studies," by Redon, and the tenderly old fashioned "Femme assise jouant avec un chien," by Mary Cassatt.

The exhibition will continue for two weeks and is well worth a visit, but make the visit today, if you can, for the benefit of the Chicago Public School Art society.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover has a new secretary in Miss Doris Goss of New York, who was secretary to the late Mrs. Whitelaw Reid for many years. Mrs. Hoover met Miss Goss when she and the President visited Mrs. Reid in London. Miss Goss is totally inexperienced in Washington society, but well versed in British and New York society. Mrs. Hoover has two other secretaries, Mrs. Butler and Miss Hall.

Mlle. Reine Claudel, daughter of the French ambassador, gave a dinner tonight and a small dance afterward in honor of Mlle. Laval, with whom Mlle. Claudel returned to this country this week. The dinner guests included in addition to Mlle. Laval, Mlle. Jacqueline Guimier, who came over with Mlle. Laval; Mlle. May, daughter of the Belgian ambassador; Countess de Buisseret, daughter of a former Belgian minister, the late Count de Buisseret.

Gen. Pershing was host at luncheon today to Marshal Petain and the French delegation to the Yorktown celebration at the Army and Navy club.

Ownership Should Not Be Stressed to a Great Extent

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

I once overheard a woman say with great pride, "I have taught Janice to keep her hands off of everything that is not her own."

And I mentally stopped to make a list of the things there are about the average house that are not a child's. And I discovered that almost everything is not a child's. So I couldn't help feeling sorry for all the children like Janice, who learn that hard lesson so young, when their sense of touch is thirsty to satisfy itself with all the fascinating things in sight.

"Don't touch that—that's Daddy's." "You mustn't touch that, that's mother's." "That's not yours, Janice—leave it alone," limits their range so—and establishes too early and unnecessarily a strong property sense. "What's mine is mine and what's yours is yours," doesn't have to be actually enforced so young.

In the first place, children know the ownership of practically everything without being told. And the fact that somebody else owns a thing should not imply that no one else may touch it.

Of course, there may be special reasons why they shouldn't—such as, it's easily broken, or it is easily put out of order or soiled, or even that "daddy doesn't like to have that particular thing touched." But merely the fact that it is not a child's own is not sufficient reason for him not to touch it. It may be well for him not to, but the ownership in home equipment is not adequate reason.

One of the most important things that mothers of young children have to deal with is not how to keep children's hands off things, but how to wisely give a child the latitude he needs to develop his sense of touch.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

JUNIOR GIRL'S DRESS.

Today's dress is just the thing for school wear. The box plaits at the front of the skirt give a graceful fullness at the bottom, and the neckline is girlish and pretty—finished with a bow tie. Tweed in a light weight in a rich brown tone, with bright red crêpe de chine for the bow tie, matching exactly in shade the plain red woolen used for the bindings, will be chic.

The pattern, 3393, comes in sizes 10, 12, 14, and 16 years. Size 10 requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch material with 3 yards of binding.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

Personal Untidiness Unforgivable Trait in the Modern Girl

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Talking with a twenty-two year old the other day, one gathered that in the male eye "sloppiness" is the unforgivable trait in girls.

"But," I ventured surprisedly," girls in your group aren't much bent that way surely?"

"They aren't?" he responded. "You haven't seen them blowing around in sloppy pajama costumes? You haven't seen them slopping around in shoes that don't fit or are never shined? Or, with crooked stockings? Dresses that look as if they need to go to the cleaners? They seem to think if they daub their cheeks and lips with paint and slap the powder on, they're all to the good. If we fellows appeared at a girl's door looking like some of the girls do, we'd be sent round to the trade entrance."

Imagine that commentary on our young women. And me thinking they wouldn't put their heads out the door without having the spots and the creases all out of their clothes!

I forgot to mention the comment and the registered disgust over the powder puffs that were pulled out publicly in a state bordering on the indecently filthy, as the boy put it.

The "lousy" pajama suits [the boy's descriptive, not mine—although bearing my personal endorsement under some pajama circumstances] apparently do not register happily with the young men. Nor have I heard any of the older ones waxing poetic over them. But there's no use arguing over a thing that is classified as fashion.

But sloppiness of person, of dress, of stockings is something to register wholeheartedly against a girl's appearance. And the boy ended, "It's so easy for a girl to be a knockout nowadays. She can be homely as a mud fence and still have that style or personality or whatever you call it about her so that fellows like to take her around."

Luncheon Adds to Success of Plan for Benefit

BY THALIA

From several accounts, the cafeteria luncheon the Olivet Institute Benefit committee gave at the Blackstone yesterday was as clever, bright, and effective a pep meeting [we used to call them that] as one can well imagine. The novelty of serving tray luncheons served on side-show chairs; the brevity and point of the one-minute talks by the committee members about the settlement and the benefit tableaux vivants at Orchestra hall to be given for Olivet on Nov. 17, and the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Fowler McCormick, who have been so socially retiring since they've been in residence here—all these contributed to the animated spirit of the occasion.

In rapid succession, while everybody ate cornbeef hash and apple fritters, the inspiring little speeches were delivered by Harold F. McCormick, chairman of the board of trustees; Mrs. Waller Borden, who told how all the boxes have been sold; Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, general chairman; Mrs. Edison Dick, Ravinia Forest ticket chairman; Mrs. Raymond McKeever, who is chairman of the program committee; Miss Mabel Donnelley, assisting Mrs. McCormick, and Albert S. Gardner, also of the program committee; Mrs. Howard Linn, chairman of the entire affair; Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., who claimed she was the carpenter for the benefit and had been bear crawling around the Orchestra hall stage with a yardstick and talk about the mechanical details in arranging the setting for the affair; Mrs. Shreve Badger, who designed the frame in which the boxes will be set; Mrs. Walter Strotz, who styled herself "the girl with the gimlet eye, a phrenologist," who has to find the women who will look most like the photographs in Helena Rubinstein's "Book of Beauty," that are to be reproduced, and Evan Evans, secretary of the board of directors.

The boxes have all been sold, Cecil Beaton is coming from London for the show, and Ruth St. Denis is to dance. Mrs. Fowler McCormick, who will be first to feel the ordeal of the first battery of press photographers to take a picture to take her picture in public, wore a turquoise blue boucle suit with white angora flower trimming, and a small brown woven hat with a wreath of blue daisies around the back.

Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter are now formally announcing the engagement of their daughter, Genevieve, to Patrick Champain Hill, eldest son of Col. and Mrs. David Hill of London and County Antrim, Ireland, although the news of the betrothal drifted west a couple of weeks ago.

Miss "Ginny" has always been a much written about young lady ever since her debut at a musical and dance at Orchestra hall in 1922. She's done numerous interesting things since then, such as taking a nurse's training course in New York one winter, being associated with the Museum of Modern Art, also in New York City, and going to London with exhibits for the Persian art exhibition. She's to be married in Chicago shortly before Christmas probably, although the date hasn't been fixed.

Mr. Hill was educated at Cheltenham and as a cadet at the Royal Naval colleges, Osborne and Dartmouth, England. He has been in the United States for the last 7 years, and is now engaged in the oil business at Fort Worth, Tex. He is 29 years old.

Mr. Carpenter is back from the family summer place in Vermont, but Mrs. Carpenter and "Ginny" are to remain in the east until the first of November.

PROMOTES CHARITY LUNCHEON

MRS. HOWARD LINN.

Mrs. Arthur Cable is giving a luncheon at the Casino today for Mrs. Clyde Douglas of Castle Hot Springs, who is Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank's house guest, and this evening Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Perry are giving a debutante dinner dance at the Perry residence for Miss Betty Brown, Miss Patty McCormick, and their daughter, Miss Polly Perry.

Now that London's "little season" is officially begun and the court has returned to Buckingham palace, Mrs. Charles G. Dawes has resumed her Thursday afternoon at homes. Our London correspondent says that they are delightful occasions, quite informal. Mrs. Dawes meets the guests herself, and one of the embassy wives presides at the tea table. The American ambassadorial residence, 14 Princess Gate, is one of the finest diplomatic houses in London.

It faces on Hyde park, and backs onto a large garden which the Dawses share with their distinguished neighbors. It has 52 rooms, has an impressive marble staircase, and the scarlet and gold cornices in the interior are estimated at $400,000. Virginia Dawes has departed for her last year at school, and has gone to Paris this time instead of Broadstairs. When she arrived in Paris recently she saw her friends and erstwhile Evanston neighbors, Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth and her daughter, Miss Frances.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Stuart Logan, and Mrs. Raymond Dudley will pour at the Drama league tea following the lecture by Will Durant on "Literature and Drama in America" next Tuesday afternoon at the Drake hotel.

The box circle at Orchestra hall was not so well filled last night, for the second Thursday night concert of the season, as it will be a few weeks hence when some more of our fashionable citizenry return from prolonged summer wanderings. Some of the cherished boxes and a few rows of main floor seats were vacant, awaiting the return of their owners.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde and their daughter, Miss Sarah Hinde, had as their box guests Miss Helen Wadsworth and Miss Peggy Hambleton. Mrs. Waller Borden, in a black net dress with a peplum jacket, was with the Chauncey McCormicks, the latter wearing a flowered chiffon gown with a black lace yoke. Among others were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, Mrs. Ethel Richardson Dunham, Mrs. Fairbank Carpenter and Mrs. Augustus Peabody.

The Marriage Racket

By VINA DELMAR

SYNOPSIS.

Irma Corbin, while playing a week's vaudeville engagement in Thrace, an upstate New York town, is showered with invitations by Bill Fitzroy, friend of her pianist, and Wallace Graham, a widower friend of Bill's. Before the week is up Wallace asks Irma to be his wife. Bill's proposal to her is of a different nature. Irma quarrels with her dancing partner and quits the act. She marries Wallace and settles down to a dull existence with him. Wallace has a young daughter, Mildred, who has grown up under the supervision of her Aunt Tessie. A baby son arrives to compensate Irma for any flaws in the marriage system. The baby becomes the center of her universe. Wallace's life-long ambition is a European voyage. A paid up endowment policy makes the trip possible. Irma reluctantly leaves the baby. She is upset by a letter received in Paris from Aunt Tessie. They meet Russell Byrnes, a wealthy bachelor from New York, through friends from the boat. He has a cabin on a boat sailing in two days, which Irma persuades him to sell to Wallace. Back in Thrace they find the baby well, but Mildred planning a eugenic marriage with Scott Avery. Wallace refuses his consent to the marriage. He takes Mildred out of school and appoints Irma to guard her. Jane Malcolm, a school-mate, calls on Mildred. The two girls slip out of the house and fly away in Jane's car.

INSTALLMENT XXIX.

THE BREAKING OF ANOTHER TIE.

Irma was left alone on the wire. She replaced the receiver slowly, hoping that Wallace's agitation would not lead him to driving crazily through Princess street. Poor Wallace, this was tough on him.

She went to the medicine chest and took two aspirin tablets. Her head ached brutally and there was probably a large evening ahead. Wallace would want plenty of sympathy and perhaps oft reiterated descriptions of how the bird had flown.

She was totally unprepared for the attitude toward her which he revealed the moment he entered. Later she thought it had been stupid not to anticipate his accusations and fury. Somehow she had not expected them.

"So you shipped her off?" he demanded, flinging his hat and coat on the window seat.

"I shipped her off? Of course I didn't."

"O, you did. What's the use of lying about it? I hope you're satisfied with your work."

"I had nothing to do with it. Jane Malcolm engineered the affair. She and Mildred were as cunning about it as the devil. I was shocked when I realized that they'd beaten it. If you'll sit down I'll tell you all about it."

He sat down and stared at her coldly. "Well, tell me," he ordered.

She went ahead and told him everything. The bureau drawers, the arrival of the roadster, Jane's story about the telephone, the girls going downstairs ostensibly to fix some coffee.

"And do you mean to say you suspected nothing?"

"That's exactly what I mean to tell you."

"Well, I don't believe it."

"Okay. Don't believe it."

She left him sitting in the living room and walked upstairs. She was no longer sorry for him. Let him cry or get drunk or do what he chose to ease his pain. She took two more aspirins and laid down.

It was six o'clock when she descended the stairs again. Wallace was still sitting in the chair where she had left him. He looked ill. A wave of pity for him washed away her anger.

Wallace was still sitting in the chair.

"Dinner's ready," she said gently. "Come on, Wallace."

"I don't feel like eating," he said.

"Don't be foolish. It won't help anything to have you get sick."

"I'm sick now."

"You'll feel better if you eat."

He followed her to the dining room and mechanically began the business of eating. It seemed strange for just the two of them to be at the table. A curious melancholia gripped Irma and suddenly made food distasteful to her. She had not realized before that Mildred, with her high school gossip, her light laughter and fine young beauty, had definitely passed from their lives. Perhaps never, even as a visitor, would she sit again in that empty chair. A sudden misty receding of the room made Irma conscious that she was crying. Perhaps not so much for Mildred as for the breaking of another tie. She felt Wallace's eyes upon her and she bit her lip angrily. He would think her conscience troubled her for having sped Mildred on her way.

They were half way through the unsatisfactory meal when the phone rang. Wallace seemed very pathetic in his sudden, wild leap to answer. Irma felt certain that it was Mildred. She was disappointed when Wallace's cordial though anxious tone proclaimed a stranger.

Irma heard him say, "O, yes, Mrs. Malcolm."

She listened eagerly to the one sided conversation. Wallace's swift questions, exclamations and acceptance of an apology told her as much as though she had listened on an extension. Mildred was married. Nobody knew where she was. Jane was home assuring her people that she had left Scott and Mildred in Whippiestown, but that they intended to go somewhere else. Jane was a naughty girl, of whom her mother was very much ashamed.

Wallace did not return to the table. He sat down in the living room. Irma left her dinner without regret and joined him.

"She's married," he said dully.

"So I gathered from your conversation."

"I'll have it annulled."

"O, no, Wallace."

"Certainly I will. Why not?"

"Because they've been married several hours, dear, and an annullment would be inadvisable."

He shook his head impatiently as though to toss from his mind the burdens which she placed upon it.

"Why do you take it so hard, Wallace? Ten to one the marriage will pan out okay."

"O, don't soft soap me, Irma. I'm in no mood for sympathy from you."

"What's the matter with me?"

"Plenty. You married that kid off to the first man who came along. She's been an eyesore to you ever since you and I got married. You never could stand her and you're glad to be rid of her."

"I married her off? Why, you damn fool, you married her off. You laid the foundations for an early marriage when her mother died. Did you ever give her masculine companionship? Did you talk to her, take her anywhere? You handed her over to an old woman and considered your work done. Then you raised hell about Scott, which made him doubly desirable. Don't talk to me about marrying her off."

"You don't deny that she was an eyesore to you, do you?"

"Certainly not. I don't deny ridiculous statements."

"Bunk. You can't say you liked her because you didn't. You don't care what the hell sort of person Scott Avery is so long as Mildred's out of your way. You never gave that kid a break once. You never remembered for a minute that she had as much right in this house as the baby."

"And you never remembered that the baby was your child, too."

"I didn't, eh? That's why I eat lousy cooking so he can have a decent nursemaid. Every damn thing I've done since he was born has hinged on him."

"Because I made you do it. You wouldn't do anything for him if I didn't insist upon it. If this is going to be a real set-to I'll tell you something—you've never taken an interest in my baby."

"I've given him decent breaks, haven't I? I can't help it if I only love him with a normal amount of love and can't get neurasthenic over it."

"O, that's what you think of my love for him?"

"I'm not going to argue over your love for the baby. I heard quite enough about it in Europe."

Irma dropped her eyelids. Never in private had they mentioned Europe since their return. She knew what it had meant to Wallace to have the dreamed about trip ruined—and for nothing, at that. In her thoughts she had always spiritlessly transferred the blame to Aunt Tessie, maintaining that had Aunt Tessie mentioned the X-rays Wallace might have completed his vacation in peace. But in a never faced chamber of her mind there was locked the damning evidence that she, and she alone, was responsible. It had been the knowledge of her impatience to return to the baby that had kept the subject a closed one between them.

"I love the baby," Wallace pursued, "but Mildred had her rights, too. You couldn't understand that I had two children."

"Not when you never looked at the baby," she said icily.

"You're running to clever remarks now for refuge aren't you? You can't speak logically because it would give you away. I remember things that you forget. I remember that Mildred couldn't have a Halloween party here because the baby's nose was running. I remember that you had forty fits when she learned to drive the car. I remember that you've been whooping this marriage business up since you first heard about it. If you didn't actually arrange her getting away you took pretty good care to stay where you wouldn't interfere with her doing it."

"You're a liar."

"Am I? Well, I'm a damn fool, too."

"I suppose you mean for marrying me."

"I meant for trusting you. My God, I was dumb. I knew you didn't like her. I should have known better."

"I told you I didn't want the responsibility."

"You don't want any responsibility. All you want is to have things your way. You've hurt me plenty, Irma, and you've probably ruined Mildred's life."

"Well, I haven't done so well for my own life, either, so it's a draw."

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Unexpected Return.

"A few years ago I was employed as a secretary. When alone in the office I have a habit of winding my lower extremities around the legs of my swivel chair. One day I was caught in a perilous position which proved a most embarrassing moment for me. My boss was in New York on business, where he intended remaining for some time, but changed his mind, returning unexpectedly one morning. As the door opened, I turned quickly to see who was coming. Imagine my surprise to find it was my boss, accompanied by the foreign representative of the firm. I tried to unlock my feet and, in doing so, I rolled over on the floor with the chair before these two dignified men. They both came running to my assistance, but I was so embarrassed at my predicament I burst into tears. I vowed then and there that I would never twist my feet around another chair.

There Are Times When Old Lady Grundy Can Be Given a Back Seat

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She was lunching in a restaurant she had frequented for months. He came in. He sat at a nearby table, facing the girl. Their eyes met—and she knew instantly that it was all over with the other boys that had dotted her 23 year old career.

She knew the waitress. The waitress chatted in a friendly manner. The young man observed this. He had lunched here before and felt on speaking terms with the same waitress. He asked her if she could arrange an introduction to the girl for him. He, it seems, was just as sure of a love at first sight attack as the girl. But she, convention bound, wonders if old lady Grundy would approve of the manner of meeting.

To which, say I: "Drat the old lady! And meet the young man!"

Why can't a waitress be just as efficient an emissary of good will and bright future promise as one's most exalted neighbor, relative, or friend? Say I further: "Catch these romantic meetings on the wing. Don't delay for the too conventional salting of the tail of the merry little bluebird!"

Many good romances have been lost to posterity because of just such delay. Not that we believe in a young woman going out wildly shooting down anything and everything that looks like romance, but here the stage is all set for the play to go on, with the waitress permitted a role for which she is just as well fitted as any other friend in need.

In reading through the disclosures made in a contest, "How I Met My Beau," I'm not so persuaded as I was before than conventional meetings have to be strictly observed, in every case. Circumstances, as the old copybook admits, alter cases. Anyway, I am convinced that seeing an opportunity and making the best of it is the way to achieve romantic success as well as other forms of it.

There is abundant evidence before my eyes in these many hundreds of beau meeting and marrying confessions in the contest referred to that impress me with the fact that a long and happy marriage may have its beginning in an odd meeting, a humorous one, even an unconventional one.

FIELD MUSEUM LECTURES

"Pioneering in the Canadian Peace River Country" will be the subject of a free illustrated lecture tomorrow afternoon at the Field Museum of Natural History by Prof. Charles C. Colby.

A free program of moving pictures for children will be given tomorrow morning by the James Nelson and Anna Louise Raymond foundation in the James Simpson theater of the museum.

Guide lecture tours will be given next week, starting Monday with "Indians of Plains and Deserts" and "Peat, Coal, and Oil," and ending Friday.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

His Lips Are Sealed.

"Dear Miss Blake: I go with a fellow and I think he loves me, but still he claims he can never say he loves me. What do you think of that?

"UNDECIDED."

It seems strange that he can't tell you of his love, Undecided. Usually one is anxious to tell it over and over again. That's the way it works when in love.

Paris Divides One Piece Dress Into Two Colors

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The predicted demise of the two color outfit was a false alarm. Two colors are just as fashionable as ever, when combined into one garment, and the newest two color fashion is the one piece dress. Paris particularly fancies the dress that unites russet brown and rusty red, with a yoke or blouse of the latter and the rest of the dress in the former color.

The Goupy frock shown today is in these pet shades of fashion. It has a blouse of rusty red, brocaded jersey, and a brown skirt of the same material. Jersey, brocaded in tiny patterns like lozenges or chevrons, is a new material that is excellent for the making of practical daytime dresses.

The blouse of this dress is red just to the belt line, and it buttons under brown buttons down the left side-front. The brown jersey collar is triple and has scalloped edges, and the triple caps that give bulk to the shoulders are also brown with scalloped borders. The sleeves below these caps are straight.

At the waistline is a brown belt that buttons in the back, and the slightly flared peplum at the hipline is also buttoned in the back.

The russet brown jersey skirt is simple, being made of two gores, back and front, and is slightly flared in the seams.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

Fall days are ideal for protecting rose bushes in anticipation of winter cold, except for hybrid perpetuals and shrub types used for borders and screen planting, which do not need this help, according to E. C. Volz, professor in floriculture at Iowa State college.

Encouragement for a good bloom next year can be given other bushes. Hybrid teas and baby ramblers can be best protected with little labor by drawing earth up around the stems to a height of eight to ten inches, topping this with a mulch of dry leaves or strawy litter.

Volz also recommends trenches for the more tender roses. In this procedure, the entire plant is dup up and buried in a deep trench under a mulch of soil and heavy manure. Climbing roses can be removed from trellises and covered on the ground with dirt or straw, tying down covering, if it is too loose, with burlap or scantling.

A warning against substitutes for genuine Kotex

YES, some substitutes are cleverly made to look like Kotex. But that doesn't make them the same.

Are they clean, like Kotex? Scientifically made in surroundings of hospital cleanliness? Have modern methods been used, so that hands have never touched them?

These questions remain unanswered, when you accept a substitute of whose makers you know nothing — and they are directly related to your health.

Accept no substitute of whose origin you are uncertain. When buying sanitary pads already wrapped, ask the clerk, "Is this real Kotex?" Thus be sure you are getting no inferior substitute.

Kotex is supremely comfortable. Shaped to fit. Adjustable. Stays soft for hours. Hospitals use it. So should you.

If you insist on "CAMPING OUT," please don't consider a FRENCH LINE crossing!

THERE are those to whom the sea says only "Wear shady white ducks and torn sneakers; cook on a rolling gasoline stove unless it lands in your lap first—or open a new tin of beans; wash, if any, in salt water; sleep when and where you can. Consume neat red-eye."

For them is not the French Line. For those hardy spirits is the small-boat and the rough-and-tumble main. Or, if they must cross under steam or oil, let them prefer a liner with a skipper who hasn't yet found out that a Liner is first a proper seagoing hotel—a gruff chap who thinks his passengers perhaps ought to suffer mildly. For them is not the French Line.

They would be suffocated by covered piers at New York and Havre, by the swift simplicity and the deep comfort of any French Line cabin. They would feel puritanly shy about the attentive and skilful service the French Line's Breton sailors and personnel offer twenty-four hours a day. They would not relish (those canned-beans-bravos) the cooking of chefs trained in great Paris restaurants. When the sun rose over the yardarm, they would not quite know how to handle thin-stemmed glassware, or to take time to choose its contents. As for music and gayety, almost no chanties are chantied in the brilliant smoke-room of a French Liner by the dinner-coat crowd—almost none.

FRENCH LINERS are definitely civilized. People seem to enjoy crossing on them, and come back for more, year in, year out. More people choose them, ship for ship, than other estimable vessels of the same type and size from New York to Channel Ports.

HAWTHORNE CHARITY RACES RAISE $70,000

OHIO STATE TO CAST DRAGNET FOR RENTNER

He's Too Dangerous Running Loose.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Columbus, O., Oct. 22.—That Pug Rentner is the fellow the Buckeyes are after. They don't want to really see Pug in this Ohio State-Northwestern football competition here Saturday. But they ARE fixing to watch him—if possible.

Scarlet and Gray has some-how seen thru Pug's general repu-tation to stir up imagination. It's a very personal matter with Ohio this year. It was Pug who cast two passes which led to two touchdowns in last year's Buckeye-Wildcat game. The two passes completely upset the Ohio Staters right off, and never did regain their esprit after the painful termination be-fore a 9 to 3 victory for the North-western.

They Know Mr. Pug!

Ohio, as we understand it, is going to put on every occasion, figur-atively speaking, in favor of Pug Rentner. The audacity of the maneuvers will surely avoid concentration. It is the Buckeye notion to realize that this plan of action, if not involving pushing in Mr. Rentner or twisting off a leg or two, will be done to Mr. Rentner. If plans are successful, will be in the interest of good, clean fun.

Ohio is in readiness to make the visitors uncomfortable upon their ar-rival here tomorrow. They are to be housed in the luxurious Columbus Athletic club where they are to have the entire sixth floor.

Victory is being celebrated as "football Saturday" in Columbus, and in fact, is our dash through the Big Ten rivals, that the Ohio State-Northwestern series has been con-tested in two stretches—the first of which beginning in 1913 and con-tinuing through 1917 and the second series starting in 1927 and continu-ing in relation to date.

Buckeyes Have Won.

In the five games of the 1913-'17 series Ohio State scored 182 points to a few by Northwestern, the three having been acquired by Paddy Dris-coll in the 23 to 3 game of 1916.

Northwestern has won three out of four games since the renewal of the series in 1927, the loss being in 1928 when the Buckeyes were victorious, 3 to 0. Incidentally, the Buckeyes have shut out the Wildcats five times in the series, while the closest the Wildcats have come to blanking the Ohioans was last year. In the renewed series, however, the Wildcats have scored 50 points to 31 by the Buck-eyes. The all time record is six vic-tories for the Buckeyes to three for the Wildcats, with Ohio hanging up 53 points to 50.

Dick Hanley never has defeated Northwestern as a coach, but he came near the Purple look in the face, losing to Ohio's 53 to 0 victory in 1929 when Ohio scored four touchdowns.

They've Been Saving Up.

In preparing for the impending con-test Coaches Willaman and Dick Han-ley seem to be pursuing similar train-ing routines in that neither is going to let anything but the gentlest en-tering conceivable. The week will be passed, it seems, without any serious drills whatsoever.

There has, however, been plenty of talk work on passing and pass de-fense and no slighting of kicking prac-tice. Wes Fesler in his instructions to back concentrating on the idea that passes should be kicked out of bounds on the 3 yard line and not on the 50-yard or worse.

As things stand right now, Ohio ob-servers expect the Scarlet and Gray to outplay the Purple; they expect the Ohio back field to match the Ev-anston back field in power; they think Ohio will outkick their punters. They

20,000, RECORD CROWD OF MEET, CHEER PROGRAM

Volta Maid Captures Feature.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Mayor Cermak's charity day of rac-ing at the Hawthorne track yester-day attracted a crowd of 20,000 and sent approximately $70,000 into Gov. Emmerson's fund for unemployed. It boosted the race tracks' contribution to the governor's fund to a total of $120,000.

The charity crowd was by far the largest of the fall season at Haw-thorne and by the time the second race was run Mayor Cermak an-nounced to a wildly cheering crowd that he had already forwarded a check for $50,000 from the sale of tickets to the unemployment fund. It was estimated the total profits would go far beyond that mark—at least $15,000 and possibly more than $25,-000—which makes Hawthorne's char-ity day the most pretentious of the year in American racing.

Twice Expected Amount.

The amount raised was almost twice as much as had been expected, and while the favorites did not fare so well during the afternoon the folks who backed them cheered just the same—apparently glad that charity had done so well.

It was a 100 per cent profit day for charity. The owners of horses which ran sacrificed some $2,600 in purse money. The programs, which sold at 25 cents each, were donated by Bent-ley Murray company, and besides the profits the Hawthorne association made a cash donation of $5,000.

J. Russell Forgan, chairman of the benefits division of the joint relief committee for Cook county, addressed the throng of racegoers later in the afternoon.

"I want to go on record that in no case have we met with more sympa-thetic response and prompt coopera-tion than we have from the officials and patrons of the Hawthorne race track," he said. "There is something about this sport of kings which instills into its devotees the spirit of kindli-ness and charity toward our less fortu-nate fellow men.

Other Tracks Also Give.

"Lincoln Fields had a charity day which netted well over $20,000 for the governor's commission; Arlington Park has just donated $25,000, while Washington Park has offered to make a generous donation and to give us one day of charity racing next spring. The charity record of the race track is indeed a record to be proud of."

Maybe the spirit of charity prevailed among the thoroughbreds, for the folks who visited Hawthorne never watched more thrilling racing.

In the Charity Day purse at 5½ fur-longs, Volta Maid, bred in Illinois and owned by L. M. Severson of Chicago, was the winner by three lengths after she came from behind to take com-plete control of the situation a six-teenth of a mile from the line of finish. In the mutuels she paid $17.12 for a $2 ticket. The purse was only $300 because of the charity day angle, but the field which she beat was worthy to run for any $10,000 or $20,000 stake.

Miss Marr Second.

Miss Marr, one of the fleetest fillies of her age in the west, was second and Princess Camelia, a stake winner earlier in the season, was third. It was very appropriate that these three Chicago owned fillies should split up the Charity Day purse, for Miss Marr is owned by Mrs. Emil Denemark and Princess Camelia is the property of Joe Leiter.

The Stock Yards Derby, engaging eight ponies which daily chase the steers and the cows and the bulls around at the yards, added an extra thrill. The lads from the yards who daily ride these horses were in the saddles. A pony called Mickey, owned by Tom O'Neil and ridden by Joe Kolar, was the winner. Star Light ran second.

ILLINOIS TRIES TO RUSH JOB OF BUILDING TEAM

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 22.—"Consternation reigns supreme."

Such was Coach Bob Zuppke's characteristic reply when asked Illinois' chances against Michigan in the homecoming football contest at Me-morial Stadium Saturday. This game is the 17th renewal in the series be-tween these two great state univer-sities, frays always keenly fought, usually on well balanced terms.

Consternation, in the sense used by Zuppke, is not the consternation of extreme despair or extreme hopeless-ness against rivals whom most critics would give a decided edge over the Illini in advance predictions. Rather it signifies confusion over a situation in which it is possible not a single regular of the 1930 eleven will be table to start against the Wolverines.

How these sophomores will perform under fire against seasoned opposition is the question. Their showing was not bad, under the circumstances, nor yet anything to write home about, against Purdue. Since then Jensen and Gil Berry, the only regulars from last year, have suffered injuries.

Weak Back Field Lacks Reserves.

Members of the coaching staff, even Zuppke himself, will tell you that this Illinois team has a potentially strong line with a back field below average. Furthermore, this potentially strong line has replacements of about equal ability, but the so-called below aver-age back field lacks reserves. Thus, if Berry is out or can play only part of the contest, Illini chances become that much less.

To an onlooker coming into camp it appears Illinois is at one of those periods where foundations already have been laid for a building. Just how fast can construction proceed?

It was just a few years ago that Illinois had Red Grange. After Grange came well rounded elevens, lacking any one brilliant standout but able to win conference titles through con-sistency in those trying conference races. Following 1929, when Illinois was runner up to Purdue, came last year's eleven, willing enough but made up largely of boys who had not made the team until they were juniors or seniors. It was just a fair team in a year of good teams. Now even that experience is gone and a majority of this year's outfit are sophomores, not the boyish looking squad of 1930, but a husky bunch which with experience should prove formidable.

No Criticism by Alumni.

So alumni, accustomed to victory, take the situation calmly, with no massmeetings of criticism, no desire to "fire the coach," or for any kind of athletic reform. With Justa Lind-gren, one of the greatest line develop-ers in the Big Ten, whose name sel-dom appears in newspapers, to work

Harvard's Mr. Wood Also Throws Texts for a Loss

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 22.—Young Barry Wood, the Harvard football captain, was close to the ideal conception of the American student, athlete, leader, and sportsman in last week's game against the Army. It is hard to put down the impression that one re-ceived of him in this game, for it was one of those impressions best ex-pressed with an awed and bankrupt "Gee!"

I have heard people try to do him justice since then, and have been re-minded of a time when Tex Rickard was called from his compartment to a train window as he was passing through Cleveland toward evening to look at a beautiful sunset over Lake Erie.

"Gee," Mr. Rickard exclaimed. "Ain't that purty, though?"

At That, Mr. Rickard Got the Idea Across.

At that, he got over the same idea as the others who were exclaiming about the mauves and flame colors and all such. The most passionate cries about this sunset, which was really something very special in the way of sunsets, were so far short of the real glory of the show that Mr. Rickard's remark was just as good.

I won't quarrel with any one who wants to call Mr. Wood a knight, but I feel that such words have a sticky, studious sound and mean no more than some one else might, who says, "Gee, what a boy!" soft and low.

I had met Mr. Wood for one of those quick how do you do's in the yard behind the Harvard football arena a few weeks ago and had re-marked to Frank Ryan, the Harvard publicity man, that he had a fine look about him—tall, slim, strong, with a fine face alight with intelligence and, at the moment, a gay manner. Foot-ball practice had just begun and he was captain.

"Yes," Mr. Ryan agreed, "He is one of the greatest athletes we ever had in Harvard and one of the best students along with it. He is going to be a doctor. He could have gone somewhere in tennis this summer, but it would have interfered with his plans."

He Seems to Have a Power Over People.

Superb athletes of good character and intelligence are common enough. But as great as Barry Wood is in ath-letics, I find that whenever he is men-tioned to any one who knows him or knows some one who knows him there is a tendency to hop up on a desk or a trunk and flap the wings and utter shrill, inarticulate sounds of joy and praise for his character and intellect, too.

It would be inadvisable to try to pick him apart and analyze him to see what gives him this power over people. His qualities are complement-ary and when you put them all to-gether they spell that wonderful fig-ure who ran the Harvard team last Saturday in one of the greatest foot-ball games ever seen around here and, himself, individually, won and saved the game.

Sometimes, up in a stand, one gets a mistaken impression of the true way of things on the field. Some in-dividual seems to be doing wonderful things and it develops that somebody else deserved a big assist on the play. Or a player appears to be a great thinker as well as a fine animal and you discover later that he is just an-other of the dumb, athletic type who merely had the correct impulses.

But you may believe that this Wood was leading that Harvard team, that Wood rallied them when they had fallen two touchdowns behind, and, by some mysterious quality which we call by such vague names as inspira-tion and leadership, kept them fight-ing together, hard, fast, and confident, to the end. That you could see even from the stands.

He had dramatic chances to fail and didn't. The sharp, overhauling chase after young Johnson of the Cadet backfield, when that kid got away toward a touchdown, was above and beyond anything that might reason-ably have been expected. He had to close up a handicap of five yards, and he did it inside 25 yards against a youth who was fast enough to break through for several long gains.

They'll Be Talking of Him Twenty Years Hence.

But it was along toward the end of the game that Barry Wood came close under the eyes of the crowd on the Army side just as occasion rose for his most brilliant play of the day. He had intercepted a pass at his 10 yard line and was tearing along the right side of the field at midfield. Here he noticed two cadets bearing over to make the tackle or run him out of bounds and also noticed a red sweater coming up from behind. Mr. Wood broke his pace and seemed to stand still an instant. The red sweat-er from behind came up, plunged, bowled the nearest of the West Point men into the dirt in a perfect job of interference, and Mr. Wood put on steam again. The other tacklers got him about ten yards further on.

The run was nothing unusual, but it was the first time I had ever seen any one, with two men tearing into him, almost stop and wait for the tanks to clear the way. Twenty years from now a number of venerable sport writers who were members of the younger set in the West Point press box last Saturday will still be writing of the time that Dr. Barry Wood, the noted physician, led his team to vic-tory over the Army in one of the greatest football games ever played. Mr. Wood planted several hardy per-ennials that afternoon.

Cuyler Most Valuable in League, Umpire Says

SOMEBODY OUGHT TO WARN PITT OF NOTRE DAME LINE

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 22.—Pitt's power house eleven may be good enough to put the scissors to Notre Dame's string of victories Saturday, but they don't seem to be worrying about it around here. Business is going on as if there was nothing more in the offing than another team resembling Drake, which was man-handled by 63 to 0 last Saturday.

Well meaning letter writers have cautioned Coach Hunk Anderson that dire things are about to happen to the youths who for convenience are spoken of as the "fighting Irish." In addition to the letters, Anderson him-self has a fairly good idea of just what Pitt possesses in the way of skilled football players.

But today Anderson declared that Notre Dame probably has about the best line in its history as a national gridiron standout, and if that isn't telling just how he feels about the chances of Pitt running amuck there is no way of telling it.

What! Better Than These?

When Notre Dame lines are men-tioned the subject should be ap-proached cautiously. About ten years ago, when Anderson himself was one of the late Knute Rockne's stalwarts, the South Bend forwards were con-sidered to be an all time high water brigade. Last fall Rockne came up with another line combination that, despite fears expressed over its abil-ity at the start, was, at the finish, conceded to be about as good as, if not better, than the aforementioned pred-ecessor. Both those lines did mighty well, as the teams which met them can testify. So if the 1931 layout is better it should be fairly safe to de-clare that Notre Dame will go through another season without being whipped.

Anderson's admission that the pres-ent line was better than all others had certain unimportant qualifica-tions. He termed it better defensively. It has more weight, more power and practically the same speed as last sea-son. On offense its value still must be proved, and that will happen Sat-urday.

You can get a good idea of the present line's skill just by mentioning a couple of fellows. Last fall Tiny Metzger, at right guard, was the key-stone of the Notre Dame attack. When he was graduated it was figured the pet scoring play of the Irish would be a back number. It isn't. There's a German lad named Frank Hoffman filling Metzger's shoes. He's not only as fast, but bigger.

Krause Takes Culver's Job.

Another indication of line class is that Ed Krause has taken away Al Culver's left tackle job. Culver was one of last season's regulars, and Krause, also a 200 pounder but fast-

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

It seems to be generally agreed that Notre Dame has a whale of a battle on its hands when it tackles the University of Pittsburgh at South Bend tomorrow.

I read with no little surprise that even Heartly Anderson has broken down and confessed that Melinkovich, Sheeketski, and the rest of the Irish are certain to lose by at least two touchdowns. Mr. Anderson has been fretting about this game all season, but did not abandon hope of victory until an anonymous correspondent told him Notre Dame didn't have a chance.

There's no mistake. Anderson is "carrying on" for Rockne. It was about this time a year ago that Rock picked Carnegie Tech to whip Notre Dame by six or eight touchdowns. It was a fairly close game, at that. Notre Dame won by only two touch-downs.

There's at least one man who will side with me in taking forecasts from Notre Dame coaches with a grain of salt. He is Ossie Solem of Drake. His team is still trying to figure out what hit them last Saturday afternoon. Walter O'Keefe, appearing in one of the loop revues, has advanced the only real explanation for that 63 to 0 score.

"Anderson was acting under in-structions from Rome," he says.

It would be interesting to observe what would happen if Notre Dame would discard its first and second string lineups. Since November, 1930, the Irish have lost seven full backs and there is no glaring weakness at that position.

Savoldi was invited to pack up his books and seek an education else-where the week before the Northwest-ern game. Mullins and Howard, the reserve full backs, were graduated. Hanley, who was expected to be the regular this season, was ruled out of athletics for scholastic reasons. Staab did not return to school. Lukats, who was out in front for the job during the first week of practice, suffered a broken ankle. Then Banas, who was moved up to the lead rôle, broke a finger, so now it is up to Melinkovich to carry on.

A full back at Notre Dame is just like a Mexican general: Never knows when he is going to be assassinated.

—o—

There may be other games on to-morrow's schedule of more impor-tance, but to the supporters of the rival schools none surpasses the annual battle between Michigan and Illinois at Champaign. This rivalry is rich in blustery romance and truculent tra-dition.

Both teams have one conference de-feat against their records. Michigan was whipped by Ohio State and Illi-nois by Purdue.

Coach Zuppke, like Dick Hanley, Hunk Anderson and other gridiron psychologists, stated at the outset of the season that Illinois didn't have a thing and deserved a rating in the lowest strata of the conference with Chicago, Indiana, and Iowa.

Noble Kizer, coach of the team that beat the Illini, has other ideas about Zuppke's boys.

"Illinois has a great line," Kizer told us the other day, "and any team with a good line is hard to beat. The squad is young in experience, but is coming along fast. Illinois will sur-prise one or two of the best teams in the Big Ten before the season is fin-ished."

—o—

Incidentally, we cornered Kizer for an opinion of the relative strength of professional and collegiate football. He answered like this:

"A senior playing his last year of college football knows a lot more and can handle himself better than a sophomore, can't he?"

Find Indiana Hasn't Won from Them Since 1910.

Chicago's football team yesterday went through its third successive day of hard scrimmage in preparation for Indiana's appearance on Stagg field tomorrow.

Defense, particularly against forward passes, was stressed yesterday. Two new pass plays, aimed at short gains, have been the only innovations of the week. For the rest, the Maroon offense will be substantially the same type as that used against Yale.

Two back fields, one composed of sophomores and the other of veterans, have played together all week, and it is possible that Coach Stagg will play them as units.

Frosh to Play Today.

Today's practice will be stiffer than is customary on Fridays. While the varsity is winding up its rehearsal, two freshman squads, one coached in Illinois plays by Inky Bluhm and the other prepared with Purdue plays by Ben Wattenberg, will play a game at Greenwood field.

With the possible exception of the Arkansas game Nov. 7, the encounter with Indiana is regarded as the best chance for anything like a Chicago victory this season. Tradition is all on the side of the Maroons, even though the recent football depression on the Midway has been no respecter of records.

Chicago Wins 18.

In the nineteen games the teams have played since 1903, Chicago has won 18, Indiana's lone victory being a one touchdown battle in 1910. Up to 1928, the Maroons piled up 444 points to Indiana's 51. The only conference victory Chicago has achieved in the last three years, a 13 to 7 win in 1929, was at the expense of the Hoosiers.

INDIANA HERE TODAY

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Easing up after three days of strenuous workouts, Coach E. C. Hays today sent the Indiana football team through its last practice on the home field before leaving tomorrow noon for Chicago, where the Maroons will be met Saturday.

Judging from Indiana practices this week, the Crimson team will resort frequently to the air in an attempt to win their first conference victory this season. A special train leaving here Friday evening will carry a delegation of Indiana fans to Chicago.

SHAMROCKS AND NEW MANAGER MEET TOMORROW

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Shamrocks, Chicago's representatives in the American Hockey league, will begin to bloom for another season this week-end under the guidance of a new gardener, Manager Babe Dye, who will greet them when they report to their training camp at Hamilton, Ont., tomorrow. Little action is anticipated until Sunday or Monday, since tomorrow probably will be spent in dealing out equipment and getting acquainted.

Dye was nicknamed Babe when he played hockey a few years ago. Fans will remember him as the player who scored 174 goals in six consecutive seasons, a mark which is still the National league record.

Dye is an all around athlete, having starred at football, lacrosse and tennis. But the big point in his athletic career, aside from hockey, was his ability as a baseball player. At one time he was the leading batter in the International league while playing with Buffalo. An injury prevented his advancement to the majors. Shortly before he was hurt, Buffalo refused a $35,000 offer for him.

Leads Team Out of Cellar.

This may sound very handsome, but Shamrock followers may be skeptical about his career as a manager. It's a brief but convincing one. Last year, in his first season as manager, Dye took the Port Colborne, Ont., team, an amateur six, long recognized as the cellar champions of their neighborhood, and startled the experts by bringing them to the finals of the Allan Cup series.

What have the Shamrocks to offer Babe in the way of material with which to advance them beyond fifth place, the position in which they finished last year's race? The Shamrocks think it's pretty good, what with the younger players having had a year's experience in the big leagues, and other youngsters having been added to the roster.

The Shamrock personnel follows:

Goalkeepers—Mike Karakas, Sam Timmins, J. Emil Lamontayne.

Defense—Ralph Taylor, Curly Headley, George Burland, Andy Mulligan, Lee Carbol.

Open Season Nov. 15.

Of these the strangers to Shamrock uniforms are Lamontayne, Carbol, Prelesnik, Johnson, Malone, and Armand. Prelesnik, an intercollegiate star with St. Mary's, was signed yesterday. He is six feet tall, weighs 195 pounds, and hails from Eveleth, Minn., home town of Karakas, the Shamrock goalie. Carbol, who played with Minneapolis last year, was assigned to the Shamrocks by the league, as was Johnson, a younger brother of the famous Ching. Malone and Armand are rookies who bring with them good amateur records.

The Shamrocks will open their season on Nov. 15 away from home, but their opponents have not been named as yet. It is likely they will invade Buffalo for the opener. Tom Dyer will be the Shamrocks' physical director again.

Bears Exhaust Quota of Ladies' Day Grid Tickets

Requests for ladies' day tickets for Wrigley field Sunday afternoon for the Bears-Philadelphia pro football game came in with a rush at the last hour, and a checkup yesterday showed that while 20,000 tickets were available the management found it necessary to mail out regret notices to 8,000. It will be the first ladies' day ever held by a National league team.

Although the Yellowjackets have not won a league game, they have given their opposition plenty to worry about. Their great stand against the Packers last Sunday, combined with a week of practice here which eliminated traveling any great distance, indicates they will be at top form for the Bears.

In addition to Herb Joesting, who will perform at full back, the Jackets have Mort Kaer in the back field. It will be his first appearance in Chicago in the game.

Bill Fleckenstein, former local player, will play guard for the visitors. Bill, who is 6 feet 2 inches in height and weighs 215 pounds, was with the Bears in 1927-'28-'29.

Hoffman Waits Until He's a Sophomore to Start Football

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 22.—There is such a thing in football as matching them up by states. There are only two Washington boys on the Notre Dame football squad and they now play side by side. One is Capt. Tommy Yarr, at center. He's from Dabob, Wash., which is supposed to be a town.

The other is Frank Nordy Hoffman, the 6 foot 2 inch, 204 pound lad from Seattle, who after subbing as a tackle has moved into Metzger's right guard post. Hoffman, of course, is the purpose of this piece, his side kick from Dabob being a veteran of whom nothing is new except that he still plays football in capital letters.

Hoffman is another of the fighting Irish who happens to be of German descent. It took him a long time to discover he was good enough to play football. He prepped at St. Martin's in Seattle, but the thought of enveloping himself in moleskins never occurred to him.

Reports in Sophomore Year.

Hoffman still had no thoughts of the game when he was here in his freshman year. Then, because his size had made campus impressions, he decided in his sophomore year that he would report for spring practice.

Last fall he still was a sophomore in studies and a freshman in football, so, while he was a member of the varsity squad, he couldn't get any work until Joe Kurth and Art McMannon had become exhausted at right tackle. Kurth was back

LEST YOU FORGET, MINNESOTA HAS A FOOTBALL TEAM

And It Has Designs on Big Ten Title.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 22.—It isn't that the Big Ten football coaches have forgotten, but we would like to call attention to the fact that the University of Minnesota may be one of the most important factors in the championship race. For two weeks the Gophers have said nothing, just plowed away each day preparing for their western conference rivals, and while the boys won't admit it in public, they're all set to jump all over Iowa Saturday and then keep right on going after Wisconsin, Northwestern, and Michigan.

Dr. Clarence Munn, who with Pat Page, right tackle, holds the weight record for the regulars, is one of the best linemen in the conference. He's also a strong man to have watching for him when the opposition tries to run with the ball.

Coach Criser has ended scrimmage drills for the week. However, he sent the varsity through a long workout tonight, following them with the Hawkeye squad. Passing and kicking also occupied the regulars.

Dr. Criser and Tad Wieman, ex-Michigan to coach Minnesota, are not exactly displeased with the football situation.

The first step along the championship route, the game with Iowa Saturday, apparently does not offer much opposition, for the Hawkeyes haven't scored a point this year. Rather it depends on how far Minnesota's line has advanced in the last few weeks. The Gophers began their season with a double header victory, beating North Dakota Aggies, 19 to 7, and Ripon, 30 to 0. A week later Oklahoma A. and M. was trimmed, 20 to 0. Minnesota then took a trip to the Pacific coast and lost a hard fought, 13 to 0.

Bedick Is Out.

The Stanford game, incidentally, was not decided until the fourth quarter, when a fumble by Minnesota in their territory opened the way. Bedick did not play last week.

With the exception of Quentin Bedick, Criser will have all the team strength available against Iowa. Bedick, a half back, injured his knee in the Oklahoma Aggie game, continuing a long streak of ill luck. A 190 pound son of Usher Bedick, who played at end on the same Minnesota team of 1903, Quentin made his letter in 1928, his sophomore year. Injuries kept him from competition in 1929 and then he was out because of an operation. An attack of appendicitis in fall kept him out of early practice and just when he was hitting his stride he injured his knee.

McDougall's Hand Injured.

Jim McDougall [Pee Wee, they call him, for he weighs only 150 pounds] will play Saturday despite a fractured left hand. However, Pete Somers, redheaded senior, who has 14 pounds advantage on McDougall, probably will start at quarter back. Somers is from International Falls, which borders on the city also claims Bronko Nagurski as a native son.

One of the reasons, other than an added year of experience, for Minnesota's improvement over 1930 is Roy Lee, a sophomore center who has shown excellent ability on pass defense. He has displaced Lloyd Stein, last year's regular. Then in the backfield there is Aly Ubl, another sophomore, who was good enough to send Stein to the bench.

Mass Will Kick.

Art Handera, 200 pounds of plunging fullback, is the siege gun and he's ready to follow in the steps of Joseph Nagurski.

Dr. Clarence Munn, who with Pat Page, right tackle, holds the weight record for the regulars, is one of the best linemen in the conference. He's also a strong man to have watching for him when the opposition tries to run with the ball.

Coach Criser has ended scrimmage drills for the week. However, he sent the varsity through a long workout tonight, following them with the Hawkeye squad. Passing and kicking also occupied the regulars.

NWA DRILLS ON PASSES

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Iowa's final drill comprised University of Iowa's final practice before the Hawkeyes left this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for Minneapolis today, with Hickman, Iowa quarterback, doing the tossing.

The following men made the Minnesota trip:

PURDUE LEAVES FOR EAST

West Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—With four backs still convalescing from the battering they received from Wisconsin last Saturday, Jack White, veteran quarter back, still hobbling about with a leg injury that kept him out of the Badger game, the Purdue football team left for Pittsburgh tonight to play Carnegie Tech Saturday.

Fred Hocker, sophomore star, and Al Pardonner, quarter back, were the only certain starters in the back field against the Tartans.

The game marks Purdue's third invasion of the east in recent years. In 1929 the Boilermakers lost by a narrow margin to the Navy, 17 to 12, and last year retaliated by trimming Harvard, 39 to 0.

Coach Noble Kizer gave no indication as to his starting line, but Captain Ryan, at center, and Paul Moss, end, are certain starters. The squad making the trip was as follows:

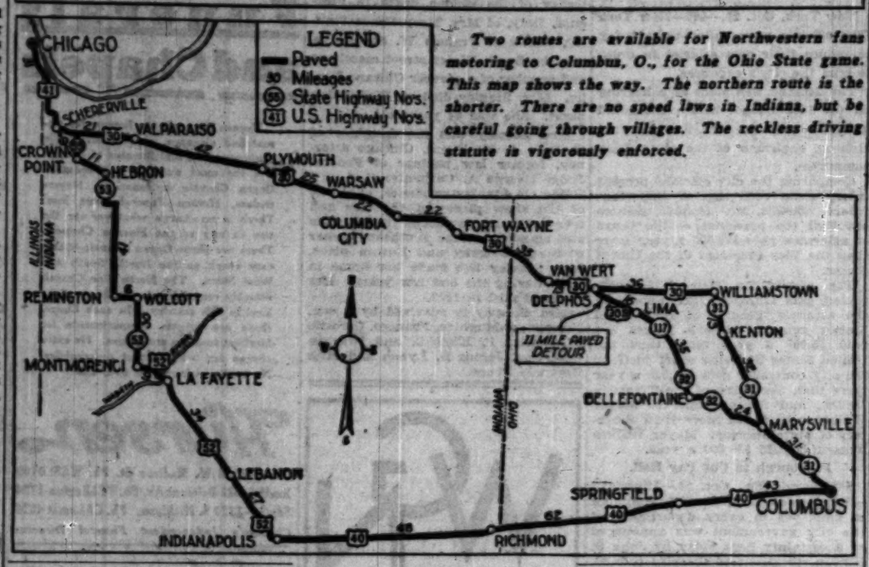
MOTORING TO COLUMBUS? HERE'S WAY



Two routes are available for Northwestern fans motoring to Columbus, O., for the Ohio State game. This map shows the way. The northern route is the shorter. There are no speed laws in Indiana, but be careful going through villages. The reckless driving statute is vigorously enforced.

Ohio State to Cast Dragnet for Rentner

think Cramer will be as elusive as Rentner hopes to be and they think the outcome depends upon the ability of the defense to stop Rentner.

They haven't started to bet on these matters, though.

35 WILDCATS MAKE TRIP

A Northwestern team devoid of any overconfidence left last night for Columbus, O., the scene of tomorrow's game with Ohio State. It will be the Wildcats' opening conference contest of the season.

Thirty-five players made the trip. They were:

Half backs—Burnstein, Rentner, Sullivan, Fessler, Meenan, O'Mary, Lephard.
Quarter backs—Potter, Lewis, Mellin.
Full backs—Olson, Moore, Augustus.
Ends—Fencl, Manske, Eyler, Hall, Jens, Kostbade, Jindrich, Justen.
Tackles—Marvil, J. Riley, W. Riley, Engebretsen, Hynes.
Guards—Evans, Dilley, Larocque, Criswsky, Youngberg, Sutton.
Centers—Weldin, McDonald, Forbers.

A week of practice which took more than the usual toll of injuries was brought to a close yesterday afternoon. Coach Dick Hanley is still undecided concerning his lineup Saturday, but it appears almost certain that Ole Olson, sophomore full back, will be unable to start. He returned to practice two days ago, but is still hampered by a leg infection. Al Moore, whose work this week has been the lone note of encouragement, will replace Olson.

The other members of the back field, including Rentner, Meenan, and Potter, are nursing minor hurts, but none sufficient to keep them from starting.

HALL WINS THIRD STRAIGHT BLOCK FROM FLEMING

Allen Hall of Chicago won his third straight block from Frank L. Fleming of Champaign, Ill., national amateur three cushion billiard champion, at Mussey's, 121 South Wabash avenue yesterday, 50 to 39, in 55 innings. Hall is conceding ten points in each block and leads in the match here by 150 to 92. Including the first half of the match, which was played at Champaign, Hall now leads 250 to 233, Fleming being 27 points behind his quota.

Len Kenney scored his first victory in two starts when he defeated Charles Morin, 50 to 46, in 55 innings in the special three cushion tourney at Kleckhafer's yesterday. Kenney's high run was 5, Morin's, 4.

Edward Peters of Chicago now is tied with Earl Lookabaugh for the lead with two victories and no defeats. Kenney is third with one won and one lost, Harry Towle is fourth with one game won and two lost, while Morin is last with three reverses.

CAMP CLINCHES PLACE IN U. S. POCKET TOURNEY

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Marcel Camp of Detroit clinched a place in the national pocket billiard tournament tonight by scoring his fourth and fifth victories, against no defeat, in the sectional tournament here.

He defeated Al Miller, Racine, Wis., 100 to 26, and then beat B. J. Flint, Minneapolis, 100 to minus 2. Each match went five innings.

In the only other match of the day, Miller defeated Pasquale Natalie, Chicago veteran, 100 to 68, in 18 innings. Miller now has won two matches and lost three, while Natalie and Flint have won one and lost three each.

Two Routes Open to Fans Driving to Columbus, O.

BY HAL FOUST.

Tonight and early tomorrow morning detachments of Chicago automobiles will be rolling across Indiana, carrying Northwestern football fans to the game at Columbus, O.

The shortest route is over the Lincoln highway, bearing the U. S. 30 markers, to Delphos, O., thence via Bellefontaine to Columbus, a distance of 320 miles. The trip by way of Indianapolis is 371 miles. It's eight or nine hours with a heavy foot to the accelerator either way you go.

Indiana has no speed limit, but this doesn't preclude arrests on reckless driving charges for going through villages too fast for safety. Also, more than ordinary care must be exercised on the ageing concrete of the Lincoln highway, where bumps, sharp turns, and oily surface occasionally toss a machine for a total loss.

The southern route will be used by many planning to spend tonight in Indianapolis with its ample hotel accommodations, leaving only 173 miles to be driven in the morning before the game. The better known route to the Indiana capital, over U. S. 41 to U. S. 52, is omitted because the Chicago Motor club reports two detours, one near the intersection of the highways and the other just north of St. John. The latter is slippery in wet weather. Over Indiana 53 there are miles of straight pavement without a village to retard speed.

The U. S. 41 markers can be picked up on the south side outer drive and followed over the boulevard system and through the industrial district.

Congestion during tonight's rush hour can be avoided by using Stony Island south of Jackson park to 95d street, thence east to Colfax avenue, jog south again to 98th street, thence east a few yards to Torrence avenue and follow Torrence to the Lincoln highway.

on promising material, there can be only one result in time. That result is a good line. With a good line, and often with only fair lines which were made to look good, Zuppke always has and can again develop an offense. That's what Illinois alumni believe and are willing to wait for. It is refreshing to find such a period of calm when victories are not coming as often as they once did.

If that is the long term outlook, immediate interest concerns this Michigan game. It is small solace that Illinois will be stronger at the end of the season than now. Michigan is here now. So all Illini energies are bent to maintain the tradition of this series.

Out to Stop Newman's Passes.

Students, townspeople, all Illinois partisans, will admit freely that from a natural viewpoint chances favor the Wolverines. At the same time they point out things have looked that way before and proved otherwise. Michigan has not won on this field since 1925, when Benny Friedman's field goal was the only score. They expect this potentially strong line to be actually strong and to thwart Michigan's plunging. Michigan has not yet uncovered a running attack. To meet Harry Newman's passes is another matter. On this defense the varsity was drilled hard this afternoon, with Jack Beynon of Rockford taking the rôle of Newman for the freshmen in dummy scrimmage.

DRIVES WOLVERINES

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Coach Harry Kipke worked his squad on offense for nearly two hours tonight, driving the backs through running plays and then switching to forward pass work.

It was indicated that the veteran line of Hewitt and Williamson, ends; Auer and Samuels, tackles; Lajeunesse and Hoser, guards, and Morrison, center, will start. Some doubt remains about the starting quarter back, though Newman is likely to get the call. If Newman starts, Tessmer may be used at half in place of Heston. Fay is certain to hold down the other half back post; Capt. Hudson is likely to start at full back, but because of a neck injury may give way to Hewitt. In that event Petoskey will play left end.

33 BADGERS GO EAST

Madison, Wis., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—With the cheers of 2,000 students following them, the Wisconsin football team pulled out this afternoon for Philadelphia and its game with Pennsylvania Saturday. The 33 men who are making the trip were given a light drill, mainly against Penn passes, early in the afternoon. Every Badger is physically fit.

Wisconsin's starting lineup Saturday will be Haworth, l. e.; Cuthbert, l. t.; Kabat, l. g.; Simmons, c.; Kranhold, r. g.; Capt. Smith, r. t.; Lovshin, r. e.; Goldenberg, q. b.; Rebholz, l. h.; McGuire, r. h.; Schnelling, F. B.

The Badger cross country team which races Penn Saturday morning was also in the party. The harriers are Laurence Kirk, George Wright, Harry Cartright, James Crummy, Ken Bertrand, James Schwalbach and Felix Kropp.

Crane Battles Unbeaten Valparaiso Tomorrow

The Crane college football team will travel to Valparaiso, Ind., tomorrow to play the undefeated Valparaiso university eleven. Valparaiso has not been scored on this year.

MANDELL TO BOX RALPH TENNY ON BATTALINO CARD

Supporting bouts for the world's featherweight championship bout between Bat Battalino and Earl Maestro at the Chicago Stadium on Nov. 4 were announced yesterday. Sammy Mandell of Rockford, former world's champion, and Ralph Lenny, Jersey City lightweight, have been matched in the ten round semi-windup.

Although the remainder of the card has not been officially announced, it is understood one eight round bout will bring together Louis [Kid] Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., one time featherweight champion, and Prince Saunders, Chicago Negro, who recently beat Eddie Shea. Barney Ross, former Golden Gloves champion, now a stablemate of Mastro's, is expected to meet Lou Jollis of New York in another eight rounder.

Two 1931 Golden Gloves fighters will be featured in the double windup of the amateur boxing show tonight at the Merry Garden arena, 3136 Sheffield avenue. They are Tony Muscarello, who meets Jack Lazar at 128 pounds, and Jimmy Eliopoulos, who will battle Alex Day at 115 pounds in the other. Six other bouts are on the card.

An injury to Willie Oster's hand gives Ray Tramblie, Chicago middleweight, an opportunity to avenge a defeat administered recently by Sid Novak of Milwaukee, tonight when they meet in the ten round windup of Promoter Billy Cepak's show at the West Side Eagles arena. Tramblie was substituted for Oster.

Baxter Calmes, 21 year old Oklahoman, and Con O'Kelly of Boston, principals in the feature bout on Promoter Mique Malloy's card at White City Monday night, went through drills yesterday. O'Kelly worked out briefly at Brown's gymnasium after his arrival, and Calmes, who has been training at the Arcade gym, worked with Al Keegan and Roy Williams. George Kerwin and Jimmy Murphy meet in one preliminary and Jack Moran and Chuck Heffner in another.

Jackie Fields, former welterweight titleholder, will referee the feature bout in the amateur charity program being conducted tonight under the auspices of the 24th Ward Democratic organization at 3242 West Roosevelt road.

TUSKEGEE SQUAD DRILLS HERE FOR WILBERFORCE

The Tuskegee Institute football team, which meets Wilberforce university of Ohio at Mills stadium tomorrow, arrived here yesterday afternoon. It was met by the Chicago Tuskegee alumni and escorted to the Vincennes hotel. The squad was put through a light signal drill at Washington park. All players appear to be in excellent condition.

Plans for a banquet for the teams, coaches and officials tonight were called off at the last moment due to the intense rivalry between the players of the two schools.

The Wilberforce team will arrive today at 4:30 o'clock and will stop at the Grand hotel.

MAJOR LEAGUERS MAY APPEAR IN CHARITY GAMES

Commissioner K. M. Landis yesterday announced major league players may participate in charity baseball games up to Nov. 15. The clubs voted unanimously in favor of the plan.

"In view of the existing conditions," Landis said, "the major league clubs, by unanimous vote, have suspended the rule against exhibition games after Oct. 31 to authorize their players to participate, after Oct. 31 and to and including Nov. 15, in any exhibition game of which the entire receipts go to relief or charity funds."

U. S. COMMANDER OF LEGION TO SEE CADET GAME HERE

Henry L. Stevens of Warsaw, N. C., national commander of the American Legion, yesterday wired acceptance of an invitation to attend the second annual St. John's-Culver service football game and military pageant at Soldiers' field on Nov. 14. The invitation was issued by Gen. Gignilliat, superintendent at Culver.

Reports from the academies state that the teams are working hard for the big game, and that the coaches are concentrating on having their men in form Nov. 14.

Wesleyan Wins, 33-14, Over Carthage College

Burlington, Ia., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Scoring three touchdowns in the final quarter, Iowa Wesleyan defeated Carthage college here tonight, 33 to 14. Hall and McAvoy starred for Wesleyan and Hankenson for Carthage.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

FOOTBALL PRICES.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 22.—[Special.]—There is a feeling growing with many persons, collegians and noncollegians, that prices of admission to college football games are veering to the high side. Whereas $3 was once top in the middle west, the scale was $4 for Northwestern-Notre Dame and Yale-Chicago. Neither contest drew as many people as anticipated. Whether that was due to depression or price cannot be determined.

Northwestern-Notre Dame's price was held justified by the charity angle. The respective athletic managements still think more actual gate receipts were realized than if the price had been $3. Yale-Chicago's price was based on the unusual attraction. Chicago's poor showing for several years naturally has reduced attendance at Stagg field.

The Wake feels that any price up to $5 per seat is warranted for the "show" presented by two good elevens, as compared with world series, boxing or theatrical "shows." Whether prices over $3 are good policy for colleges which derive support from taxes or private donations is another question. Football really is a "show," but theoretically it is not that alone.

Athletic managements defend the large receipts from football — and rightly, we think—because such expenditures go into funds to provide intra-mural athletics and facilities for general physical education which otherwise could not be obtained. Students, for home games, have season books which include all branches of sport for from $4 to $10 per year. So it's the alumni and public, not students, who pay the toll.

On the other hand, that prices should become high enough to prevent any alumni from attending is not tenable. Suggestion there be two scales with seats in less desirable locations costing less, is vetoed as undemocratic on the same theory that movie houses decline to provide reserved seats at advance prices. All are equal, is the theory.

Colleges, generally, adopt that theory, although as a matter of fact, there are preferred classifications in the allotment of seats, students and alumni coming first. At the big Yale, Harvard, and Princeton games, outsiders have no chance to buy seats after undergraduates and alumni take their quota.

So while colleges no doubt can secure $4 or more for seats for the most attractive games, it is questionable whether more than $3 should be charged as a matter of policy.

"Incompetent," What?

HTW.: Well, Harve, I suppose you read about the old lady down New York way who was found to have something like a million in cold cash currency hidden in her petticoat and other immediate places. And they want to judge her "incompetent." I can't figure how any one who has managed to hold onto a million in these stirring times should be considered incompetent. A lot of smart fellas haven't been able to. I think the old girl's a wiz.

DE PAUL BUILDS PASS DEFENSE FOR HASTINGS

De Paul university, in its game tomorrow against Hastings college, will command its full strength for the first time since the Detroit game. Only three regulars will be on the sidelines at Soldiers' field. The game is being played for the benefit of St. Vincent's orphanage.

The noncombatants are Vin Flood, quarter back; Hal Cherne, and John O'Brien, tackles.

De Paul spent yesterday endeavoring to perfect a pass defense. Jim Condon and Ted Jablonski, both full backs, displayed a weakness on passes and for that reason Art McGivern may again win the starting assignment.

CHAMPS OF PREP LEAGUES TO PLAY FOR RELIEF FUND

Catholic High Schools Sanction Game.

Games Today

Harrison vs. McKinley at Mills stadium, 4 p. m.
St. Philip vs. St. Patrick at Mills stadium, 5 p. m.

A charity football game between the winners of the Chicago Public High School league and Catholic league championships will be played for the benefit of Gov. Emmerson's joint emergency fund at the conclusion of the season's schedules, it was learned yesterday.

While no official announcement has been made, it is understood the game was approved at a meeting of the board of control of the Chicago Public High School league yesterday. Officials of the league refused to comment.

Catholic League Willing.

"The Catholic league is willing to play," Brother Sylvester, president of the Catholic league, said last night. "I have been informed that Cardinal Mundelein has sanctioned such a game for charity. But I have not heard from the Chicago Public High School league as yet.

"Several teams of the Catholic league already have played for charity. De La Salle and Mount Carmel will meet Sunday afternoon at Soldiers' field in a charity game," he said.

Nov. 28 Probable Date.

The interleague game probably will be played at Soldiers' field on Nov. 28. The championship game of the Chicago Public High School league will be played on Nov. 21. The Catholic league title contest will be held on Nov. 22.

Games between the league winners were abandoned in 1928 after Tilden Tech defeated De Paul academy, 14 to 0, before 30,000 at Soldiers' field. In 1927 Mount Carmel won the Chicago title by scoring a 6 to 0 victory over Schurz.

Mills stadium, Kilpatrick avenue and Lake street, will be the scene of two games today. Harrison Tech, with five consecutive victories, will meet McKinley in its second west section Public School league at 4 o'clock.

St. Philip will seek to continue its march toward the north section championship in the Catholic league against St. Patrick at 5 o'clock.

St. Philip has scored two league victories thus far. It won from Weber and defeated Loyola, defending champion. St. Patrick has lost three league games already.

Mount Carmel and De La Salle continued preparations yesterday for their charity game at Soldiers' field Sunday afternoon. The game is expected to attract the largest crowd of the season.

Only two Catholic league games will be played tomorrow, St. Michael meeting St. George at Evanston and Weber facing De Paul at De Paul field. All other contests will be played Sunday.

Another Oak Park victory is expected tomorrow against New Trier at Winnetka. The Villagers won from Evanston, the 1930 champion, last week.

STAFF OF HOTEL KNEW WOMAN AS ERLANGER'S WIFE

Testify in Suit to Share His Millions.

New York, Oct. 22.—[Special.]—Five employés of the Hotel Shelbourne in Atlantic City, N. J., testified today that they knew the late Abraham L. Erlanger, theatrical producer, and Miss Charlotte Fixel, former actress, as man and wife when the couple stopped at the hotel on frequent occasions from 1927 to 1930. Their testimony was given before Surrogate O'Brien when trial of Miss Fixel's suit to have herself declared the common law widow of Mr. Erlanger was resumed.

Miss Fixel must prove that the producer recognized her as his wife before she can claim part of his fortune, which she estimates at more than $75,000,000.

Accepted as His Wife.

Besides the employés, who included the hotel's assistant manager, the housekeeper, the maitre d'hotel, the room service chief, and the head telephone operator, Max D. Steuer, counsel for Miss Fixel, introduced in evidence checks signed by Mr. Erlanger for the couple's bills, which amounted to from $300 to $600 weekly. Isidor J. Kresel, counsel for the Erlanger estate, offered in evidence a letter from the hotel management stating that the couple occupied suites at the Shelbourne in 1927, 1928, and 1929, but never registered as "Mr. and Mrs. Erlanger."

The hotel's housekeeper, Miss Mary Churchville, said she was introduced to the couple as "Mr. and Mrs. Erlanger, special guests."

Previous witnesses, friends of the contestant, have testified that when they called for "Mr. and Mrs. Erlanger" at the hotel the theatrical man and Miss Fixel were produced.

Introduces Hotel Records.

G. Roland Heiss, assistant manager of the Shelbourne, identified the contestant as the woman he knew as "Mrs. Erlanger" when she and the producer stopped at the hotel and said she "was most attentive to Mr. Erlanger." Mr. Erlanger, he said, was the object of special attention by the hotel's president, who invariably sent flowers to the Erlanger suite when the producer and Miss Fixel arrived. Mr. Heiss identified several of the hotel's account records charging "Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Erlanger, chauffeur and valet" with the occupancy of various rooms.

M'CORD BALM SUIT

New York, Oct. 22.—(AP)—With instructions to bring in a sealed verdict if it reached a decision during the evening, a jury today deliberated Miss Vera McCord's $25,000 breach of promise suit against Maurice Rothschild of Chicago.

Rothschild's attorney, in his closing argument, referred to Miss McCord as "the 60 year old woman," bringing a resentful look from the actress, who had told the court she was "between 40 and 60."

Rothschild's testimony was that he had proposed to Miss McCord because he was attracted by the good appearance of her home at Great Neck, L. I., but that he was disillusioned when the actress admitted she quarreled frequently with her brother.

DR. SCHNITZLER ORDERS PAUPER'S BURIAL FOR SELF

VIENNA, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Dr. Arthur Schnitzler, Austrian man of letters, who died yesterday, will be given a pauper's funeral if his own instructions are obeyed.

A codicil of the author's will, which was read tonight, not only orders a funeral "of the very last," or pauper class, but forbids wreaths, obituary announcements and all accessories to the funeral ritual, such as a guard of honor. He asked that the money saved by a pauper's funeral be distributed among hospitals.

The codicil also forbids any funeral orations and specifies that "absolutely no one" is to wear mourning. It is dated April 29, 1912, and also instructs that a needle be thrust through his heart to remove any doubt of his death.

Under the will five charities benefited. The residual estate was bequeathed to 35 cousins and an aunt, Mrs. Frances L. Dodge of Beverly, Mass.

ASKS NEW YORK CITY OFFICIALS TO REDUCE THEIR OWN SALARIES

New York, Oct. 22.—(AP)—New York City officials were called upon today to reduce their own salaries in order to trim the city's expenses.

The demand was made at a hearing on the 1932 budget before the board of estimate by the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, chairman of the city affairs committee.

Comparing the city officials' present salary scale with that of important federal officials, Mr. Holmes pointed out that the president of the board of aldermen gets $10,000 a year more than the Vice President of the United States.

The corporation counsel, he continued, gets $10,000 a year more than the attorney general of the United States; general sessions judges are paid $5,000 a year more than the United States Supreme court justices; the city controller gets $20,000 a year more than Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, and the assistant to Mayor Walker gets $2,500 more than Secretary of State Stimson. Mayor Walker himself is paid $40,000 a year.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

EUROPE FINALLY REALIZES UNCLE SAM IS SOLVENT

Gold Demand Begins to Slacken.

BY O. A. MATHER.

It seems finally to have dawned on Europe that the United States isn't going broke nor off the gold standard. So the rush of foreigners to cash in American securities and credits held in this country in order to take away gold has subsided. It also appears that Americans are getting over the fear that all the banks are going to close, and so the hoarding fever is subsiding.

Saturday, for the first time in several weeks, the international gold movement was in favor of the United States. Actual withdrawals of gold totaled only $189,400, divided among Holland, Switzerland, and the city of Paris. France took none. Gold set aside for foreign disposal, which is called "ear marking," increased $3,000. On the other hand, gold to the amount of $7,642,000 from Japan and China was received at San Francisco, and this resulted in a net gain of $4,600,000 for this country for the day.

Supply Still Large.

Although the rush for gold is over, $82,000,000 of the metal has been shipped abroad in the last two weeks. The weekly statement of the federal reserve system, issued last night, showed a decline of $71,897,000 in gold reserves. However, the reserve system still holds $2,764,117,000 of gold, and this is only a part of the country's total gold stock, which is estimated at around $4,340,000,000.

The reserve statement also indicates a slackening of hoarding in this country. Federal reserve notes in circulation increased $61,545,000, which is not less than increases shown in recent weeks. But total money in circulation increased only $21,000,000. Federal reserve currency outstanding now totals $1,353,352,000, but this is still less than the amount of gold held by the system. While the total is relatively high, the expansion is the result of a much currency being hoarded which will undoubtedly shrink as the hidden money comes back into circulation.

Increase Their Holdings.

The federal reserve banks increased their holdings of bankers' acceptances $6,686,000 in the last week, which largely represents the absorption of the form of credit sold by foreigners. There was a withdrawal of $70,477,000 of foreign bank deposits, which now have been brought down to $160,910,000. The reserve banks now hold $769,066,000 of bankers' bills.

The member banks of the system increased their borrowings from the reserve banks by $70,732,000, bringing the total up to $698,311,000. The reserve banks made little change in their holdings of government securities, which now stand at $727,004,000, but increased their holdings of other securities by $10,931,000, bringing this item to $59,017,000.

Deposits declined $12,083,000, and reserves receded $66,406,000. The ratio of total reserves to liabilities rose to 83.9 per cent, compared with 83.7 per cent a week ago.

Brokers' Loans Decline.

Another sizable shrinkage in brokers' loans in the last week brought the total down to $854,000,000, a new low for more than data have been compiled, Monday in 1926. The decrease for the week was $44,000,000 and the decrease in the last year has been $730,000,000.

The advance in the call money rate in New York from 1½ to 2½ per cent was necessary to that center. Interior banks increased their lendings by $17,000,000, and nonbanking lenders, including corporations, furnished an additional $15,000,000. On the other hand, the New York banks reduced their own loans by $96,000,000.

The Kansas City Federal Reserve bank yesterday increased its rediscount rate from 2 to 3½ per cent. Seven banks in the system have announced raises in the last two weeks. Atlanta still operates on a 3 per cent rate, while that at Minneapolis is 4½.

U. S. Pays Higher Interest on Short Term Financing

Tightening of money rates has resulted in the United States treasury paying higher interest on its short term financing. Secretary Mellon announced last night that $51,338,000 of 91-day treasury bills were sold at an average price of 99.321, the discount rate equivalent to a yield of 2.69 per cent. Several months ago treasury bills sold on a discount basis equivalent to only one-half of 1 per cent. Subscriptions for the current issue total $107,252,000.

Hupp Motor Car Reports September Quarter Loss

Hupp Motor Car comporation yesterday reported a net loss for the September quarter of $396,184 after charges, including depreciation, compared with net loss of $396,198 in the same quarter and net loss of $459,-000 in the third quarter of last year. For the nine months ended Sept. 30 the loss amounted to $1,973,294, compared with net profit of $165,672, or 28 cents a share on 1,512,092 shares, for the like period a year ago.

First 7 Roads Show Drop of 20% in Sept. Earnings

The first seven railroads to report for September had net operating income of $3,958,000, compared with $4,950,000 in September, 1930, a decrease of 20% per cent. In August these carriers had net operating income of $6,718,000, against $11,717,000 in the same 1930 month, a decline of 42 per cent.

Aluminum Producers of Europe Form New Agency

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 22.—Following closely on an announcement from London yesterday of an accord among the principal platinum producers of the world, a dispatch from Switzerland today told of the formation of a marketing company by aluminum producers of France, England, Germany, Switzerland, and Canada. Representatives of some Norwegian producers also took an interest in the company.

For the purpose of developing and extending the aluminum market the producers in these countries have set up a corporation capitalized at 35,000,000 Swiss francs, or about $7,000,000. It is understood that this central agency will engage in research activities calculated to develop a broader market for aluminum.

Promote Platinum Use.

The accord in the platinum industry results from a new English company—Consolidated Platinums, Limited—having concluded contracts to buy and resell virtually all the new platinum production originating in Russia, Canada, South Africa, and Colombia, constituting the major portion of the world's output.

One of the new company's major functions will be to promote the use of platinum through an intensive research and market development program and to facilitate coöperation between distributors, producers, and consumers in this effort.

The company concluded its contracts after six months of negotiations in London among the principal producers in U. S. S. R., Canada, South Africa, and Colombia, including the Mond Nickel Company, Ltd.; Johannesburg Consolidated Investment Company, Limited; New Consolidated Gold Fields, Limited; and Compania Minera Choco Pacifico.

Copper Prices Improve.

New York, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Copper exhibited a slight interest in life today, due partly to a somewhat improved export demand and partly to the fact that the world's leading producers are holding informal group discussions here with the view of further curtailing output and getting prices back to a point where the industry will at least have a chance for small profits.

Asks 7¼ Cents a Pound.

The day's slightly better outlook caused custom smelters to decide they had sold all the copper at 7 cents a pound, delivered, they cared to dispose of, and one smelter raised the asked price of the metal to 7¼ cents. Whether there will be any sales tomorrow at 7 cents is expected to depend largely upon the extent of the foreign demand. Producers generally would sell at 7¼ cents a pound, delivered, a price that would mean 7⅛ cent export copper.

In the meantime copper circles, including Belgian, British and Canadian representatives here for the conference, were discussing the possibility of the United States and England erecting tariff barriers against the metal. There was no unanimity of opinion as to just what effect this would have on the world trade. There is divergence of thought on the tariff question even among the Americans.

Fear British Threat Most.

The British threat of a copper tariff, especially if the National government is returned to power in the coming election, is regarded by the Belgians as even more menacing than that of the United States. It is considered certain that if the matter is brought up at Washington there will be a bitter protest from some of the domestic producers who would feel they were adversely affected.

The Copper Export association gave a luncheon at the Bankers club today for the foreign representatives, and there were informal discussions regarding various phases of the industry. Group meetings of the copper men are expected to continue for several days. If some plan is eventually evolved a general conference session will be held to formally approve it.

NO AUTHORITY TO FORCE COTTON ACREAGE CUT

Washington, Oct. 22.—(AP)—America today wrote a large "No" across the face of an Egyptian proposal that the world-wide ills of the cotton planter be considered by an international conference.

The state department rejected the proposition, saying that this government had no authority to discuss with other nations such vital questions as compulsory acreage restriction or export limitations.

Egypt, one of the five largest producers of the staple, presented its suggestion last August when skidding prices and overproduction spread gloom across the southern states.

The farm board, to which it was transmitted almost immediately, vetoed it. It had two reasons: One, an accord with such nations as Russia, India, and China seemed highly improbable, and, two, belief that government acreage reduction measures would be unconstitutional.

There appeared to be only one question, the state department added in its rejection note, which this government could discuss—stocks held by governmental agencies. Egypt has an agency somewhat similar to the farm board's cotton stabilization corporation.

Therefore, it was suggested that if Cairo cared to talk about the latter point it could send a representative to Washington.

Fidelity Investment Assn. Has Gain in New Contracts

The Fidelity Investment association reports volumes of new contracts written for the third quarter of this year of $13,792,000, an increase of $1,-232,000, or 11 per cent, over the same quarter of last year. For the nine months of 1931 the volume reached $41,812,000, compared with $38,256,000 in the corresponding period of 1930. Resources of the association as of Sept. 30 were $28,503,117, against $25,-047,124 at the beginning of 1931 and compared with $20,151,567 at the beginning of 1930.

INDIANA UNIT OF CREDIT POOL NOW ORGANIZED

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 23.—(AP)—The Indiana unit of the National Credit corporation was formally organized here today, with every member bank of the Indianapolis Clearing House association participating.

Officers elected were Frank D. Stalnaker, president of the Indiana National bank, chairman; J. P. Frenzel Jr., president of the Merchants National bank, treasurer, and Harold S. Cross, examiner for the clearing house association, secretary, all from Indianapolis.

The Indiana organization has subscribed for an approximate total of $2,000,000 of the national organization's debentures.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank of Chicago, announced yesterday that the Chicago banks have subscribed more than $30,-000,000 to the pool. Subscription blanks have been sent to outlying and downstate banks and their pledges are expected to boost the Illinois total. The banks of Wisconsin, Iowa, and Michigan are forming units and raising their own quotas. These states, with Illinois and Indiana, comprise the Chicago federal reserve district, whose quota of the intial $500,000,000 national fund would be around $50,000,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 22.—Net income of E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co. in the quarter ended Sept. 30 amounted to $13,802,549 after bond interest, making the total for the first nine months of this year $41,412,943, and more than covering dividend requirements.

The balance for common stock in the third quarter was equal to $1.11 a share and for the nine months $3.34. This compares with a net income of $13,023,345, or $1.05 a share, in the third quarter of last year and with $45,984,659, or $3.83 a share, in the first nine months of last year. The total net for common stock after deducting debenture dividends was $12,-206,054 in the third quarter of 1930 and $36,830,458 in the first nine months of this year, against $41,505,-674.

The earnings include dividends on Du Pont's investment in the General Motors corporation, which in the third quarter totaled 63 cents a share on the 11,005,442 average shares of Du Pont common outstanding, against $1.05 a share on 11,009,774 shares of Du Pont common last year. In the first nine months of this year Du Pont received an average of $2.04 a share on 11,035,263 shares of its common in the form of dividends from General Motors, as compared with $3.88 a share on 10,700,970, the average number of shares of Du Pont common in the corresponding months of 1930. Of the 1930 return on the General Motors investment 28 cents a share was in the form of an extra dividend.

Earnings on Du Pont common in the third quarter of this year, exclusive of income from General Motors, amounted to 43 cents a share, against 37 cents a share in that quarter of 1930. In the first nine months of this year the earnings on Du Pont common, exclusive of income from General Motors, was $1.30 a share, as compared with $1.50 a share in those months of 1930.

Central Public Service Faces Quiz in Washington

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—The District of Columbia commissioners today ordered a suit filed against the Central Public Service Corporation of Chicago, alleging violation of the La Follette anti-merger act in acquiring controlling stock in the Washington Gas Light company.

The anti-merger act prohibits purchase of stock in local public utility companies by outside utility or holding corporations. The action results from an investigation by the public utilities commission of charges that the Chicago concern owned 84 per cent of the gas light company's stock.

Lawyers for the Chicago company claim the real ownership of the stock in question rested in the Washington and Suburban companies.

C. & E. I. Seeks to Pledge $5,262,500 as Collateral

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad yesterday asked the interstate commerce commission for authority to pledge and repledge $5,262,500 of its prior lien mortgage 6 per cent bonds as collateral security for any note or notes it may issue. The road said that during the period beginning Nov. 1 next and to May 15 next $5,953,414 in interest and maturing securities will become due.

Chile Copper Directors Vote to Omit Dividend

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 22.—Directors of the Chile Copper company, controlled by Anaconda Copper through ownership of nearly all of the outstanding stock, decided today to pass the dividend due at this time on its shares. Three months ago a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share was paid.

Canada Wire and Cable company declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the class B stock, placing the issue on a $1 annual basis, against $1.75 paid previously.

The Missouri Portland Cement company declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common stock, placing that issue on a $1 annual basis, against $2 previously.

Raises Class B Dividend.

International Safety Razor company declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on its B stock, compared with 25 cents a share paid three months ago. The regular quarterly 60 cents also was declared on the A stock.

Gray Processes corporation declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share in addition to the regular semi-annual payment of 50 cents. Six months ago a similar extra was declared.

Eastern States Power corporation omitted the quarterly dividends of $1.75 a share on the preferred A and $1.50 on the preferred B stocks due at this time. Ohio Midcities corporation declared a stock dividend equivalent to 40 cents a share to holders of class A preference stock.

American Stores company of Philadelphia declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share on the common, payable in December. Similar extras were declared in each of the preceding Decembers for the last three years.

On $2 Annual Basis.

Only the regular quarterly dividends are expected to be declared on American Tobacco common and B shares when directors of the company meet for action next Wednesday. The street until recently had been given to discussing the possibilities of another extra at that time, but in usually well posted quarters it is now argued there is little reason for anticipating more than the regular dividend. Including the regular dividends at the rate of $5 a share and the extra already paid this year in March, it was pointed out that total disbursements for 1931 would foot up to $6 a share.

FALL MEETING OF MERCHANTS AIDS BUSINESS

Increased activity in the Chicago wholesale market as the result of large number of buyers brought to town by the convention of the Interstate Merchants' council is reported by the mid week trade reviews.

"The first fall meeting of the association brought 700 buyers into the Chicago market," Bradstreet's reports. "They came from all sections of the country and merchants expressed fairly optimistic opinions as to present and future prospects. In backing their views they made liberal purchases, bringing an aggregate tonnage of orders booked to a volume in excess of last year's, although it must be considered this is the first time a fall meeting has been held."

Dun's review says: "Department store sales were most active in shoes, women's hats and dress accessories, and in a few household lines. Sales of heavy apparel were retarded by mild weather. Wholesale furniture manufacturers reported a fair volume of orders for novelties for the Christmas trade."

Says Autostrop Co. Has Large "Nuisance Value"

Boston, Mass., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Henry J. Fuller, one of the defendant directors of the Gillette Safety Razor company being sued on a $21,000,000 bill in equity brought by minority stockholders, testified today that the Autostrop company had a "nuisance value" of from $10,000,000 to $12,000,-000.

Fuller, who has been on the witness stand since the Gillette case hearings were resumed on Tuesday, estimated that it was worth $28,000,000 to the Gillette company to keep Autostrop out of the double edged blade business.

By "nuisance value" he said he meant the cost to the Gillette company of threatened competition, litigation and patent suits.

Sears Insurance Division Adds Automobile Policies

HARVESTER FIRM CUTS PRICES AND SALARIES, STEPS UP PRODUCTION

International Harvester company has instituted reductions in prices, wages, and salaries, but is increasing production. Working schedules are being increased from three to four days a week. A further reduction in salaries and initial cuts in wages were announced in varying percentages.

Because of the increase in the working schedule wage earners will be getting more money in the pay envelope than before, officials stated.

"Following the company's policy of providing as much employment as possible in winter, most of our plants will now increase their production and operating schedules, so that weekly earnings of employés will be substantially higher than they have been able to make at the higher wage rate," Alexander Legge, president, stated.

It is hoped that the increased schedules can be maintained throughout the winter, Mr. Legge added.

METAL JOURNAL EXPRESSES HOPE FOR STEEL TRADE

The American Metal Market, in its weekly iron and steel review, says: "In the last fortnight many steel consumers have formed a more hopeful view as to their business in the next couple of months and the whole tone of the steel situation is regarded as improved. In only occasional instances, however, has there been an actual increase in shipping orders, particularly so as the major part of the automobile steel recently bought is for delivery next month. The general average of production is about 26 per cent of rated capacity against 27 per cent last week and 28 per cent for several weeks preceding. The balance of probability seems to be that there will be noticeable increases in the next few weeks."

Two Investment Firms Agree on Merger Plan

Melvin E. Swain, president of the Broad Street Investing company, announced that directors of his company and of the First American corporation have approved a plan for uniting both companies under one management. Under the terms of the proposed merger, stockholders of First American corporation will receive shares of the Broad Street Investing company, the basis of exchange to be the liquidating values of the shares of both companies computed as of the close of business Nov. 17, 1931.

BY FRED HARVEY.

New York, Oct. 22.—The stock market was in a bad way again today. Consensus among professional observers was that it was waiting for something in the way of fresh news. Today's budget was as bare of incentive as Mother Hubbard's cupboard was of a bone for her dog.

Some attempt was made to rally the copper shares on prospects of a workable agreement looking to curtailment of output as a result of the negotiations now under way, but it didn't get very far and thereafter the market sagged pretty steadily and generally. Closing prices were 1@4 points below those of last night.

Rails Range Lower.

Trading was at a slow pace, the turnover totaling only about 1,400,000 shares, or a little more than half of that of yesterday's session.

Price movements were too uniform to provide much interest. Rails as a group ranged substantially lower, but they did not stand out from the others as conspicuously as they did yesterday.

Union Pacific sold off 4¾ points and Atchison, 4. New York Central and Norfolk and Western were off 2¾ each, Lackawanna and New Haven, about 2 each, and Southern Pacific, 2¾. Losses of 1@2 points were suffered by most of the remainder of the group. For a time in the early dealings the rails held fairly steady, but they were unable to attract a following, and the afternoon found them leading the market to lower levels.

The pivotal issues, United States Steel, American Can, Consolidated Gas, General Motors, and the like were lower from the outset, but never under any particular pressure. The close found them showing losses of about 1@2 points.

Auburn Off 7 Points.

Among the volatiles, Auburn Auto raised a little racket by taking a tumble for some 7 points. American Telephone found the going too much for it and gave up 4¼. Case Threshing Machine lost about 3, and National Biscuit, 3.

Ingersoll-Rand was a feature on the upside in the forenoon trading, adding some 3 points to its 4¼ point gain of yesterday, but liquidation bore it down with the rest later on. Another active issue to show stubborn resistance to the selling was Allied Chemical. It moved ahead in the early trading, then gave way and eventually rallied to close unchanged from yesterday. Some good buying is said to have appeared in behalf of this issue in the last week or so.

In the motor section Mack Trucks eased off about 2 points in spite of reports that the company's business just now is the best it has been at any time this year. Other motors, with the exception of Auburn, did little.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET DULL; PRICES EASIER

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Trading on the Chicago stock market was quiet yesterday and prices were moderately easier. Volume of sales dropped to 51,000 shares. All classes of issues shared the weakness.

Utilities and motor shares received most of the attention. Commonwealth Edison dropped to 146 and North American Light which had a sharp run up Wednesday reacted 2 points to 29.

The motor accessory shares which had shown strength on the previous day were off fractionally on a moderate volume of sales. Among the miscellaneous issues U. S. Radio and Walgreen receded slightly.

Reports Earnings.

National Standard was firm on the announcement by President W. F. Harrah that earnings for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 were in excess of $4 a share. The formal report will be distributed to stockholders late next month. In the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1930, the company reported net earnings of $4.01a share on the common stock. The company's balance sheet, Mr. Harrah said, will show cash and marketable securities of more than $1,000,000.

National Standard company has no bonds of preferred stock outstanding nor any bank loans. Mr. Harrah said that during the last year the tonnage of bead material supplied to tire manufacturers exceeded that of 1930 by a substantial margin and the outlook for the coming year is very satisfactory.

Seat Brings $8,000.

The Borg-Warner corporation reported yesterday that September business of the Long Manufacturing company, a subsidiary, was 35 per cent ahead of August. C. S. Davis, president, said that the increase was caused by new contracts and renewals made during the month. The Long division manufactures clutches and radiators.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 5,000; hogs, 22,000; sheep, 16,000.

The cattle market hit a snag after three sessions had reached new high levels for the season yesterday and all but the extreme top kinds sank to a fully 25c lower level before the close. The new $21.00 top was paid oftener and for stronger weights, prime 1,210 lb steers averaging selling at that figure.

Unseasonably warm weather has been the rule for most of the country during the last few days and is seriously affecting the demand for beef, which has slipped down since last week's close. Considering the adverse factors in the trade, the advance in value prices has been rather phenomenal.

Receipts this week are running most of the year and eastern demand for daughter cattle has been heavier than a week ago. However, there is an acute scarcity of highly finished steers, and these are the kinds that show the advance. Others are selling lower and the spread in price is at the widest point of the year. Butcher stock yesterday ranged sharply.

Warm Hogs Bid $6.00.

Buyers in the hog futures market yesterday were willing to pay $6.00 for hogs delivered to them during the last half of next March, but the lowest they sold was $7.00. Numerous bids of $5.50@6.00 were placed on December and January contracts and occasional offers in December heavy packer were lowered to $5.00. On the cash market light weights were bid $5.75 and mediums $5.50.

Hogs sold on an erratic market yesterday, which opened steady to 10c higher and finished unevenly 5@15c lower; 180@220 lb averages showing little weakness toward the finish. The top for load lots at $5.50 was paid for 210@240 lb butchers, while very best averaging 268 lbs reached $5.40, being 10c above the previous day's peak. The general average went down 5c at $5.10, and the range of prices shows a tendency to widen a little.

Large local packers bought freely in the late break, Armour, Swift, and Wilson getting 5,100 good to choice kinds of 180@210 lb averages at $5.05@5.10. Only 5,000 were left. Receipts yesterday were smaller than a week ago, but they were second largest for Thursday since last February. Unusual warm weather brought about another break in the wholesale trade for fresh pork loins, which are selling at the lowest prices since last February.

Range Lambs at $6.35.

No better quality of range lambs than the prices in that branch yesterday, but considering the improved feeder grades, the market was rated generally steady. Colorado range lambs sold at $6.25 to packers and at $6.35 to shippers, while "hand picked" natives went to city butchers as high as $6.60 and to packers at $6.35.

Aged sheep were strong, the best 2@3c stronger selling up to $3.00 to local packers. Yearlings were firm and feeding lambs met better demand at steady to 25c higher prices. Top lambs sold at $5.60, only 5c under the highest price paid for feeders last week.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 2,000 cattle, 23,000 hogs, and 16,000 sheep, against 1,458 cattle, 6,322 hogs, and 29,540 sheep, the previous Friday and 3,151 cattle, 15,274 hogs, and 22,845 sheep a year ago.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Cotton goods were selling moderately today on a basis of 6c for 39½ inch 64x60 print cloths. More interest has come forward on sheetings. Fall goods lines were still selling for prompt shipment chiefly. Some rayon users were running special concessions in the way of inducements and market belief grows that further readjustment will be forced by the fall guarantees expire. Burlaps were steady. Light goods were selling in small lots for quick use. Silks were quiet.

BUYING LAGS IN WHEAT; PRICES CLOSE LOWER

Foreign Grain News Again Favors Holders.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Weakness in the stock market caused some change in local sentiment yesterday as to the immediate trend of wheat prices. There was a lack of the aggressive buying so much in evidence recently, but at the same time the undertone was relatively firm.

Commission house buying in small lots on scale orders and support from holders of bids checked the decline after prices had declined around 1c from Wednesday's finish, and the close was ¾c lower, with the December 52¼@52¾c; May, 56⅝@56⅞c, and July, 57⅝@57¾c.

Outside interest in the wheat market was smaller than of late and a number of the local element showed hesitancy in following bulges with buying orders in view of the advance of around 3c from the recent low point. At the inside figure yesterday the May was only 1¼c under the high of the previous day, and, while sentiment is still decidedly bullish, operators who have taken profits would like to see a further recession before taking the buying side again.

Foreign News Bullish.

Foreign news on wheat was again in favor of holders, and had it not been for the decline in securities the trade claimed that prices would probably have advanced to a new high on the present movement. Owing to the poor quality of the French wheat crop millers there are trying to have the government modify its ruling as to the amount of foreign grain that can be ground. Italy is expected to permit the use of 25 per cent foreign wheat after Nov. 1, compared with 5 per cent at present.

Almost without exception advices from abroad indicate that Russian exports of wheat and other grain will fall off gradually from now on, although that country cleared 4,940,000 bu during the last week. However, Liverpool reported nothing offered there. Futures in Liverpool closed ⅛@⅜d higher, with December closing at 53⅛c per bu, figured on $3.93 for sterling.

Export demand for North American wheat yesterday was somewhat less aggressive, but sales in all positions were placed at 600,000 bu or more, largely Manitobas, and included 100,000 bu sold from the Pacific coast to the orient. Winnipeg reported a lighter trade than of late with futures ⅛@⅜c lower. December closed at 58¼c in Canadian funds which were 10¾c discount as compared with American.

Corn Eases with Wheat.

There was little interest taken in the corn market and trade was again largely local with pit operations influenced largely by the action of wheat. Closing trades were at net losses of ⅝@¾c, with December 36⅛@36⅝c; May, 40¾@41c, and July, 43¾c. Country offerings of both old and new corn to arrive were light and shipping demand relatively slow.

Weather conditions were generally favorable for field work, and the rapidity with which husking is being completed was reflected in larger receipts of new grain, around 25 cars being received here, with the bulk of it grading No. 4 or better. Buenos Aires finished ¼c lower.

Trade in oats was light and the close was ⅛@¼c lower with December finishing at 23@23¼c; May, 25⅛@25⅜c, and July, 25⅛@25⅝c. There was some foreign demand for Canadian oats at the seaboard, but no sales were reported.

Rye eased in sympathy with wheat and closed ½@¾c lower, with December 39¾c and May 44c at the last. Nothing was heard regarding foreign demand during the day. German markets were reported as firm, however. Russia cleared 740,000 bu during the past week.

COTTON GINNING ACTIVE

Cotton is being ginned at a record breaking pace, the J. E. Bennett & Co.-E. H. Miller report, showing 4,089,000 bales ginned between Oct. 1 and 18, compared with 2,951,000 bales during the same period last year. Total ginnings for the season to date of 9,507,000 bales are 795,000 bales in excess of last year. Ginnings by states follow:

FOREIGN CROPS

A New York exporter received cable from Italy in response to inquiry as to when Italian milling quota would be changed, saying: "Expect 25 per cent allowance by end of this month." At present Italian mills are only permitted to use 5 per cent of foreign wheat in their grind.

Two cargoes of Russian wheat arrived at Italian ports out of condition last week. Private cables claim the wheat is unmillable and was apparently harvested in damp weather.

French millers are complaining of the quality of native wheat and have asked the government for a modification of the quota. Trade in native wheat is quiet. Rain is now reported with unsettled weather reported by Broomhall.

The German government, according to Broomhall, is compelling millers in that country to purchase 50 per cent of their foreign wheat requirements from the hard winter stocks recently bought from the American Farm Board. A fair amount of German wheat is being exported to the United Kingdom, as the shippers desire to import an equal quantity of strong foreign grain.

LARD MARKET FIRM

Covering by shorts and also moderate buying credited to cash interests in the nearby deliveries of lard gave the market a firm undertone yesterday and the close as 2½@3c higher. There was some buying of October and selling of November, changing hands between white carriers, did the reverse. Scattered longs sold the deferred months. Liverpool lard closed unchanged to 6d higher. Hogs were steady to strong with receipts 50,000. The western run while well below that of a week ago was in excess of last year. Prices follow:

MILLINERY FIRM SUBLEASES SHOP IN PALMER HOUSE

Household Finance Rents 63d-Ashland Office.

The Kate Exclusive Millinery company has subleased the store at 121 North State street—in the Palmer House block—from the Boyd-Welsh company and after alterations state that they will open in the premises the largest exclusive millinery shop in the country. Neither the terms nor the rental was disclosed.

The store, which was formerly occupied by the Peacock Shoe company, has a frontage of eighteen feet on State street, with a depth of 110 feet. In addition the lease provides for basement sales space containing approximately 7,500 square feet. Samuel Insull is the head of the millinery company which operates approximately twenty hat stores in the Chicago district. Curt & Ehrenhalt and L. M. Rice & Co. were brokers in the Palmer House transaction. Meyer Abstaard was attorney for the lessee.

Household Finance Lease.

The Household Finance corporation has leased from the Aaron estate approximately 2,000 square feet of space on the second floor of the building at the northeast corner of 63d street and Ashland avenue. The lease is for five years from Dec. 1, 1931, at a gross rental in excess of $12,500 for the five years. Extensive alterations are under way. When finished there will be seven separate offices and a large reception room. The office is larger than necessary for outlying districts as the space is intended to serve the Halsted and 63d street district. Frank C. Wylie & Co. were brokers.

The Angelus Jacket corporation, a St. Louis concern, has leased from Harry C. Edmonds, Robert P. and Ben Bass, the store and basement at 211 North Michigan avenue for offices and showroom for the display of jackets and uniforms. The lease becomes operative Jan. 1, 1932, and terminates April 30, 1936. The total rental is $16,000.

Capper & Capper Transfer.

Fred E. Hussmel, as trustee in bankruptcy for the estate of Capper & Capper, Inc., has transferred title to the property at 6018 Wabash avenue to Capper & Capper, Ltd., successor to the former company for a total consideration of $183,100. The said consideration includes merchandise, equipment, etc., in the Chicago and Minneapolis stores of Capper & Capper, Inc. The garage occupies a site 49½ x 187 feet and contains living quarters on the second floor. John Richmann, Trumbull and de Voe attorneys.

Dirk and Isaac Shapiro have transferred title to the apartment house property on the west side of Dorchester avenue, 150 feet south of 45th street, to Rose Freeman and Beatrice Kerr for an undisclosed consideration. The ground is 150 x 200 feet. Blankman, Freeman & Freeman were attorneys.

APPROVE CUT IN LEHMAN CORP. CAPITAL STOCK

Further reduction in the capital stock of the Lehman corporation was authorized when stockholders approved a proposal to retire 34,000 shares owned by the company. This action is in keeping with the company's policy, whenever the opportunity permits, of retiring its own stock purchased previously in the open market.

After the retirement of these shares the total outstanding stock of the corporation will be 639,100 shares, compared with the original offering of 700,000 shares when the company was organized in September, 1929.

Stockholders also authorized a change in the stated value of the shares from $50 to $5. An amendment to the certificate of incorporation was adopted decreasing the authorized number of shares from 5,000,000 to 1,000,000. Directors of the company were reelected.

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The Nationally known Household Loan Plan offers cash loans of $50 to $300 to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Household's rate on all loans above $100 is almost one-third lower than the maximum permitted by the small-loan law. We voluntarily established this low rate in 1928, and our customers have benefited ever since. This rate remains the same until the loan is paid off. It does not increase as the unpaid balance decreases.

For example:

The average monthly cost of a $200 loan, repaid in 20 equal monthly payments, is $2.63. This is the lowest cost in Chicago.
